ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This glossary has been a collaborative effort and has slowly been compiled over the last five years. The idea was first suggested at a Pacific Island History Teachers workshop in Honiara in 1995. It became a priority for the TTPF project, a five-year program of History teacher workshops, and publications, funded by the Sasakawa Foundation in Japan. At every TTPF workshop over the next five years the idea was discussed, and a large number of teachers have contributed suggestions, phrases and lists of words that Pacific Island history students had difficulty interpreting. Dr Asofou So'o, President of the Western Samoa History Teachers Association, Ms Melinda Noble and Dr Max Quanchi, of the TTPF office in Brisbane, took on the task of putting together a final draft based on these suggestions. A number of published glossaries were also consulted and a shorter “Pacific” list created. We hope the final result, the last publication of the TTPF project, will be helpful to history students across the region.

The TTPF project ended its work in April 2000. The new regional organisation for History teacher associations is called HistoryCOPs and is based at the National University of Samoa. Copies of this publication may be obtained by contacting HistoryCOPs.
