THE SCENES OF THE PLAY

Act I. Morning-room in Lord Windermere’s house.

Act II. Drawing-room in Lord Windermere’s house.

Act III. Lord Darlington’s rooms.

Act IV. Same as Act I.

Time: The Present.

Place: London.

The action of the play takes place within twenty-four hours, beginning on a Tuesday afternoon at five o’clock, and ending the next day at 1.30 p.m.
FIRST ACT

SCENE

Morning-room of Lord Windermere's house in Carlton House Terrace. Doors C. and R. Bureau with books and papers R. Sofa with small tea-table L. Window opening on to terrace L. Table R.

[LADY WINDERMERE is at table R., arranging roses in a blue bowl.]

[Enter PARKER.]

PARKER
Is your ladyship at home this afternoon?

LADY WINDERMERE
Yes—who has called?

PARKER
Lord Darlington, my lady.

A
ACT I. LADY WINDERMERE

[LADY WINDERMERE hesitates for a moment.] Show him up—and I'm at home to any one who calls.

PARKER

Yes, my lady. [Exit C.]

LADY WINDERMERE

It's best for me to see him before to-night. I'm glad he's come. [Enter PARKER C.]

PARKER

Lord Darlington. [Enter LORD DARLINGTON C.] [Exit PARKER.]

LORD DARLINGTON

How do you do, Lady Windermere?

LADY WINDERMERE

How do you do, Lord Darlington? No, I can't shake hands with you. My hands are all wet with these roses.
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

 Aren’t they lovely? They came up Act I from Selby this morning.

LORD DARLINGTON

 They are quite perfect. [Sees a fan lying on the table.] And what a wonderful fan! May I look at it?

LADY WINDERMERE

 Do. Pretty, isn’t it! It’s got my name on it, and everything. I have only just seen it myself. It’s my husband’s birthday present to me. You know to-day is my birthday?

LORD DARLINGTON

 No? Is it really?

LADY WINDERMERE

 Yes, I’m of age to-day. Quite an important day in my life, isn’t it? That is why I am giving this party to-night. Do sit down. [Still arranging flowers.]
LADY WINDERMERES'S FAN

ACT I. LORD DARLINGTON

[Sitting down.] I wish I had known it was your birthday, Lady Windermere. I would have covered the whole street in front of your house with flowers for you to walk on. They are made for you.

[A short pause.]

LADY WINDERMERER

Lord Darlington, you annoyed me last night at the Foreign Office. I am afraid you are going to annoy me again.

LORD DARLINGTON

I, Lady Windermere?

[Enter Parker and Footman C., with tray and tea things.]

LADY WINDERMERER

Put it there, Parker. That will do.

[Wipes her hands with her pocket-handkerchief, goes to tea-table L., and sits down.] Won't you come over, Lord Darlington?

[Exit Parker C.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD DARLINGTON

[Takes chair and goes across L.C.] I am quite miserable, Lady Windermere. You must tell me what I did. [Sits down at table L.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Well, you kept paying me elaborate compliments the whole evening.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Smiling.] Ah, nowadays we are all of us so hard up, that the only pleasant things to pay are compliments. They're the only things we can pay.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Shaking her head.] No, I am talking very seriously. You mustn't laugh, I am quite serious. I don't like compliments, and I don't see why a man should think he is pleasing a woman enormously when he says to her a whole heap of things that he doesn't mean.

ACT I. LORD DARLINGTON

Ah, but I did mean them. [Takes tea which she offers him.]

LADY WINDERMERE

[Gravely.] I hope not. I should be sorry to have to quarrel with you, Lord Darlington. I like you very much, you know that. But I shouldn’t like you at all if I thought you were what most other men are. Believe me, you are better than most other men, and I sometimes think you pretend to be worse.

LORD DARLINGTON

We all have our little vanities, Lady Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERE

Why do you make that your special one? [Still seated at table L.]

LORD DARLINGTON

[Still seated L.C.] Oh, nowadays so many conceited people go about Society pretending to be good, that I think it shows rather a sweet and modest disposition to pretend to be bad. Besides, there is this to be said. If you pretend to be good, the world takes you very seriously. If you pretend to be bad, it doesn’t. Such is the astounding stupidity of optimism.

Lady Windermere

Don’t you want the world to take you seriously then, Lord Darlington?

Lord Darlington

No, not the world. Who are the people the world takes seriously? All the dull people one can think of, from the Bishops down to the bores. I should like you to take me very seriously, Lady Windermere, you more than any one else in life.

Lady Windermere

Why—why me?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. LORD DARLINGTON

[After a slight hesitation.] Because I think we might be great friends. Let us be great friends. You may want a friend some day.

LADY WINDERMERE

Why do you say that?

LORD DARLINGTON

Oh!—we all want friends at times.

LADY WINDERMERE

I think we’re very good friends already, Lord Darlington. We can always remain so as long as you don’t—

LORD DARLINGTON

Don’t what?

LADY WINDERMERE

Don’t spoil it by saying extravagant silly things to me. You think I am a Puritan, I suppose? Well, I have something of the Puritan in me. I was actually brought up like that. I am glad of it. My mother died when I was a mere child. I lived always with Lady Julia, my father's elder sister, you know. She was stern to me, but she taught me what the world is forgetting, the difference that there is between what is right and what is wrong. She allowed of no compromise. I allow of none.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD DARLINGTON

My dear Lady Windermere!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Leaning back on the sofa.] You look on me as being behind the age.—Well, I am! I should be sorry to be on the same level as an age like this.

LORD DARLINGTON

You think the age very bad?

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes. Nowadays people seem to look
ACT I. on life as a speculation. It is not a speculation. It is a sacrament. Its ideal is Love. Its purification is sacrifice.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Smiling.] Oh, anything is better than being sacrificed!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Leaning forward.] Don’t say that.

LORD DARLINGTON

I do say it. I feel it—I know it.

[Enter PARKER C.]

PARKER

The men want to know if they are to put the carpets on the terrace for to-night, my lady?

LADY WINDERMERE

You don’t think it will rain, Lord Darlington, do you?

10
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD DARLINGTON

ACT I.

I won't hear of its raining on your birthday!

LADY WINDERMERE

Tell them to do it at once, Parker.

[Exit PARKER C.]

LORD DARLINGTON

[Still seated.] Do you think then—of course I am only putting an imaginary instance—do you think that in the case of a young married couple, say about two years married, if the husband suddenly becomes the intimate friend of a woman of—well, more than doubtful character—is always calling upon her, lunching with her, and probably paying her bills—do you think that the wife should not console herself?

LADY WINDERMERE

[Frowning.] Console herself?
ACT I. LORD DARLINGTON
   Yes, I think she should—I think she has the right.

LADY WINDERMERE
   Because the husband is vile—should the wife be vile also?

LORD DARLINGTON
   Vileness is a terrible word, Lady Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERE
   It is a terrible thing, Lord Darlington.

LORD DARLINGTON
   Do you know I am afraid that good people do a great deal of harm in this world. Certainly the greatest harm they do is that they make badness of such extraordinary importance. It is absurd to divide people into good and bad. People are either charming or tedious. I take the side of the charming, and you,
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

Lady Windermere, can’t help belonging ACT I. to them.

LADY WINDERMERE

Now, Lord Darlington. [Rising and crossing R., front of him.] Don’t stir, I am merely going to finish my flowers. [Goes to table R.C.]

LORD DARLINGTON

[Rising and moving chair.] And I must say I think you are very hard on modern life, Lady Windermere. Of course there is much against it, I admit. Most women, for instance, nowadays, are rather mercenary.

LADY WINDERMERE

Don’t talk about such people.

LORD DARLINGTON

Well then, setting aside mercenary people, who, of course, are dreadful, do you think seriously that women who
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. have committed what the world calls a fault should never be forgiven?

LADY WINDERMERE

[Standing at table.] I think they should never be forgiven.

LORD DARLINGTON

And men? Do you think that there should be the same laws for men as there are for women?

LADY WINDERMERE

Certainly!

LORD DARLINGTON

I think life too complex a thing to be settled by these hard and fast rules.

LADY WINDERMERE

If we had 'these hard and fast rules, we should find life much more simple.

LORD DARLINGTON

You allow of no exceptions?

14
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

None!

LORD DARLINGTON

Ah, what a fascinating Puritan you are, Lady Windermere!

LADY WINDERMERE

The adjective was unnecessary, Lord Darlington.

LORD DARLINGTON

I couldn't help it. I can resist everything except temptation.

LADY WINDERMERE

You have the modern affectation of weakness.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Looking at her.] It's only an affectation, Lady Windermere.

[Enter Parker C.]
LADY WINDERMERES'S FAN

ACT I. PARKER

The Duchess of Berwick and Lady Agatha Carlisle.

[Enter the Duchess of Berwick and Lady Agatha Carlisle C.]

[Exit Parker C.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Coming down C., and shaking hands.]

Dear Margaret, I am so pleased to see you. You remember Agatha, don’t you?

[Crossing L.C.] How do you do, Lord Darlington? I won’t let you know my daughter, you are far too wicked.

LORD DARLINGTON

Don’t say that, Duchess. As a wicked man I am a complete failure. Why, there are lots of people who say I have never really done anything wrong in the whole course of my life. Of course they only say it behind my back.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Isn’t he dreadful? Agatha, this is Lord
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

Darlington. Mind you don’t believe a word he says. [LORD DARLINGTON crosses R.C.] No, no tea, thank you, dear. [Crosses and sits on sofa.] We have just had tea at Lady Markby’s. Such bad tea, too. It was quite undrinkable. I wasn’t at all surprised. Her own son-in-law supplies it. Agatha is looking forward so much to your ball to-night, dear Margaret.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Seated L.C.] Oh, you mustn’t think it is going to be a ball, Duchess. It is only a dance in honour of my birthday. A small and early.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Standing L.C.] Very small, very early, and very select, Duchess.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[On sofa L.] Of course it’s going to be select. But we know that, dear Margaret, about your house. It is really one of the
LADY WINDERMERES FAN

Act I. few houses in London where I can take Agatha, and where I feel perfectly secure about dear Berwick. I don't know what society is coming to. The most dreadful people seem to go everywhere. They certainly come to my parties—the men get quite furious if one doesn't ask them. Really, some one should make a stand against it.

LADY WINDERMERES

I will, Duchess. I will have no one in my house about whom there is any scandal.

LORD DARLINGTON

[R.C.] Oh, don't say that, Lady Windermere. I should never be admitted! [Sitting.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Oh, men don't matter. With women it is different. We're good. Some of us are, at least. But we are positively getting elbowed into the corner. Our husbands would really forget our existence if we didn’t nag at them from time to time, just to remind them that we have a perfect legal right to do so.

LORD DARLINGTON

It’s a curious thing, Duchess, about the game of marriage—a game, by the way, that is going out of fashion—the wives hold all the honours, and invariably lose the odd trick.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

The odd trick? Is that the husband, Lord Darlington?

LORD DARLINGTON

It would be rather a good name for the modern husband.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Dear Lord Darlington, how thoroughly depraved you are!
ACT I. LADY WINDERMERE

Lady Windermere

Lord Darlington is trivial.

Lord Darlington

Ah, don't say that, Lady Windermere

Lady Windermere

Why do you talk so trivially about life. then?

Lord Darlington

Because I think that life is far too important a thing ever to talk seriously about it. [Moves up C.]

Duchess of Berwick

What does he mean? Do, as a concession to my poor wits, Lord Darlington, just explain to me what you really mean.

Lord Darlington

[Coming down back of table.] I think I had better not, Duchess. Nowadays to be intelligible is to be found out. Good-bye! [Shakes hands with Duchess.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

And now—[goes up stage] Lady Windermere, good-bye. I may come to-night, mayn't I? Do let me come.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Standing up stage with Lord Darlington.] Yes, certainly. But you are not to say foolish, insincere things to people.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Smiling.] Ah! you are beginning to reform me. It is a dangerous thing to reform any one, Lady Windermere.

[Bows, and exit C.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Who has risen, goes C.] What a charming, wicked creature! I like him so much. I'm quite delighted he's gone! How sweet you're looking! Where do you get your gowns? And now I must tell you how sorry I am for you, dear Margaret. [Crosses to sofa and sits with Lady Windermere.] Agatha, darling!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. LADY AGATHA
   Yes, mamma.  \([Rises.]\)

DUCHESS OF BERWICK
   Will you go and look over the photograph album that I see there?

LADY AGATHA
   Yes, mamma.  \([Goes to table up L.]\)

DUCHESS OF BERWICK
   Dear girl! She is so fond of photographs of Switzerland. Such a pure taste, I think. But I really am so sorry for you, Margaret.

LADY WINDERMERE
   \([Smiling.]\)  Why, Duchess?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK
   Oh, on account of that horrid woman. She dresses so well, too, which makes it much worse, sets such a dreadful example. Augustus—you know my disreputable brother—such a trial to us all—well,
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

Augustus is completely infatuated about ACT I. her. It is quite scandalous, for she is absolutely inadmissible into society. Many a woman has a past, but I am told that she has at least a dozen, and that they all fit.

LADY WINDERMERE

Whom are you talking about, Duchess?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

About Mrs. Erlynne.

LADY WINDERMERE

Mrs. Erlynne? I never heard of her, Duchess. And what has she to do with me?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

My poor child! Agatha, darling!

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.
ACT I. DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Will you go out on the terrace and look at the sunset?

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.

[Exit through window L.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Sweet girl! So devoted to sunsets! Shows such refinement of feeling, does it not? After all, there is nothing like Nature, is there?

LADY WINDERMERE

But what is it, Duchess? Why do you talk to me about this person?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Don’t you really know? I assure you we’re all so distressed about it. Only last night at dear Lady Jansen’s every one was saying how extraordinary it was that, of all men in London, Windermere should behave in such a way.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

My husband—what has he got to do with any woman of that kind?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Ah, what indeed, dear? That is the point. He goes to see her continually, and stops for hours at a time, and while he is there she is not at home to any one. Not that many ladies call on her, dear, but she has a great many disreputable men friends—my own brother particularly, as I told you—and that is what makes it so dreadful about Windermere. We looked upon him as being such a model husband, but I am afraid there is no doubt about it. My dear nieces—you know the Saville girls, don't you?—such nice domestic creatures—plain, dreadfully plain, but so good—well, they're always at the window doing fancy work, and making ugly things for the poor, which I think so useful of them in these dreadful socialistic days, and this terrible woman has taken a
LADY WINDERMERÉ'S FAN

ACT I. house in Curzon Street, right opposite them—such a respectable street, too. I don't know what we're coming to! And they tell me that Windermere goes there four and five times a week—they see him. They can't help it—and although they never talk scandal, they—well, of course—they remark on it to every one. And the worst of it all is that I have been told that this woman has got a great deal of money out of somebody, for it seems that she came to London six months ago without anything at all to speak of, and now she has this charming house in Mayfair, drives her ponies in the Park every afternoon and all—well, all—since she has known poor dear Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERÉ

Oh, I can't believe it!

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

But it's quite true, my dear. The whole of London knows it. That is why
LADY WINNERMERE'S FAN

I felt it was better to come and talk to you, and advise you to take Windermere away at once to Homburg or to Aix, where he'll have something to amuse him, and where you can watch him all day long. I assure you, my dear, that on several occasions after I was first married, I had to pretend to be very ill, and was obliged to drink the most unpleasant mineral waters, merely to get Berwick out of town. He was so extremely susceptible. Though I am bound to say he never gave away any large sums of money to anybody. He is far too high-principled for that!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Interrupting.] Duchess, Duchess, it's impossible! [Rising and crossing stage to C.] We are only married two years. Our child is but six months old. [Sits in chair R. of L. table.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Ah, the dear pretty baby! How is the little darling? Is it a boy or a girl? I hope a girl—Ah, no, I remember it's a boy! I'm so sorry. Boys are so wicked. My boy is excessively immoral. You wouldn't believe at what hours he comes home. And he's only left Oxford a few months—I really don't know what they teach them there.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I

LADY WINDERMERE
Are all men bad?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK
Oh, all of them, my dear, all of them, without any exception. And they never grow any better. Men become old, but they never become good.

LADY WINDERMERE
Windermere and I married for love.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK
Yes, we begin like that. It was only Berwick's brutal and incessant threats of suicide that made me accept him at all, and before the year was out, he was running after all kinds of petticoats, every colour, every shape, every material. In fact, before the honeymoon was over, I caught him winking at my maid, a most pretty, respectable girl. I dismissed her at once without a character.—No, I remember I passed her on to my sister; poor dear Sir George is so short-sighted, I thought it wouldn’t matter. But it did, though—it was most unfortunate. [Rises.] And now, my dear child, I must go, as we are dining out. And mind you don’t take this little aberration of Windermere’s too much to heart. Just take him abroad, and he’ll come back to you all right.

LADY WINDERMERE

Come back to me? [C.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[L.C.] Yes, dear, these wicked women get our husbands away from us, but they ACT I. always come back, slightly damaged, of course. And don't make scenes, men hate them!

LADY WINDERMERE

It is very kind of you, Duchess, to come and tell me all this. But I can't believe that my husband is untrue to me.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Pretty child! I was like that once. Now I know that all men are monsters. [LADY WINDERMERE rings bell.] The only thing to do is to feed the wretches well. A good cook does wonders, and that I know you have. My dear Margaret, you are not going to cry?

LADY WINDERMERE

You needn't be afraid, Duchess, I never cry.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

That's quite right, dear. Crying is the refuge of plain women but the ruin of pretty ones. Agatha, darling!

LADY WINDERMERÉ'S FAN

LADY AGATHA

[Entering L.] Yes, mamma. [Stands back of table L.C.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Come and bid good-bye to Lady Windermere, and thank her for your charming visit. [Coming down again.] And by the way, I must thank you for sending a card to Mr. Hopper—he’s that rich young Australian people are taking such notice of just at present. His father made a great fortune by selling some kind of food in circular tins—most palatable, I believe—I fancy it is the thing the servants always refuse to eat. But the son is quite interesting. I think he’s attracted by dear Agatha’s clever talk. Of course, we should be very sorry to lose her, but I think that a mother who doesn’t part with a daughter every season has no real affection. We’re coming to-night, dear. [PARKER opens C. doors.] And remember my advice, take the poor fellow out of town at once, it is the only
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. thing to do. Good-bye, once more; come, Agatha.

[Exeunt duchess and lady agatha C.]

LADY WINDERMERE

How horrible! I understand now what Lord Darlington meant by the imaginary instance of the couple not two years married. Oh! it can't be true—she spoke of enormous sums of money paid to this woman. I know where Arthur keeps his bank book—in one of the drawers of that desk. I might find out by that. I will find out. [Opens drawer.] No, it is some hideous mistake. [Rises and goes C.] Some silly scandal! He loves me! He loves me! But why should I not look? I am his wife, I have a right to look! [Returns to bureau, takes out book and examines it page by page, smiles and gives a sigh of relief.] I knew it! there is not a word of truth in this stupid story. [Puts book back in drawer. As she does so, starts and takes out another book.] A second book—private—locked! [Tries to open it, but fails. Sees paper knife on Act I bureau, and with it cuts cover from book. Begins to start at the first page. [‘Mrs. Erlynne—£600—Mrs. Erlynne—£700—Mrs. Erlynne—£400.’ Oh! it is true! it is true! How horrible! [Throws book on floor.]]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

[Enter LORD WINDERMERE C.]

LORD WINDERMERE

Well, dear, has the fan been sent home yet? [Going R.C. Sees book.] Margaret, you have cut open my bank book. You have no right to do such a thing!

LADY WINDERMERE

You think it wrong that you are found out, don’t you?

LORD WINDERMERE

I think it wrong that a wife should spy on her husband.

LADY WINDERMERE

I did not spy on you. I never knew
LADY WINDERMERÉ'S FAN

ACT I. of this woman's existence till half an hour ago. Some one who pitied me was kind enough to tell me what every one in London knows already—your daily visits to Curzon Street, your mad infatuation, the monstrous sums of money you squander on this infamous woman!

[Crossing L.]

LORD WINDERMERÉ

Margaret! don't talk like that of Mrs. Erlynne, you don't know how unjust it is!

LADY WINDERMERÉ

[Turning to him.] You are very jealous of Mrs. Erlynne's honour. I wish you had been as jealous of mine.

LORD WINDERMERÉ

Your honour is untouched, Margaret. You don't think for a moment that—[Plts book back into desk.]

LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

I think that you spend your money strangely. That is all. Oh, don't imagine I mind about the money. As far as I am concerned, you may squander everything we have. But what I do mind is that you who have loved me, you who have taught me to love you, should pass from the love that is given to the love that is bought. Oh, it's horrible! [Sits on sofa.] And it is I who feel degraded! You don't feel anything. I feel stained, utterly stained. You can't realise how hideous the last six months seem to me now—every kiss you have given me is tainted in my memory.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Crossing to her.] Don't say that, Margaret. I never loved any one in the whole world but you.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Rises.] Who is this woman, then? Why do you take a house for her?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. LORD WINDERMERE

I did not take a house for her.

LADY WINDERMERE

You gave her the money to do it, which is the same thing.

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, as far as I have known Mrs. Erlynne—

LADY WINDERMERE

Is there a Mr. Erlynne—or is he a myth?

LORD WINDERMERE

Her husband died many years ago. She is alone in the world.

LADY WINDERMERE

No relations? [A pause.]

LORD WINDERMERE

None.

86
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

Rather curious, isn't it? [L.]

LORD WINDERMERE

[L.C.] Margaret, I was saying to you—and I beg you to listen to me—that as far as I have known Mrs. Erlynne, she has conducted herself well. If years ago—

LADY WINDERMERE

Oh! [Crossing R.C.] I don't want details about her life!

LORD WINDERMERE

[C.] I am not going to give you any details about her life. I tell you simply this—Mrs. Erlynne was once honoured, loved, respected. She was well born, she had position—she lost everything—threw it away, if you like. That makes it all the more bitter. Misfortunes one can endure—they come from outside, they are accidents. But to suffer for one's own faults—ah!—there is the sting of life. It was twenty years ago, too. She was little more than a girl then. She had been a wife for even less time than you have.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I

LADY WINDERMERE

I am not interested in her—and—you should not mention this woman and me in the same breath. It is an error of taste. [Sitting R. at desk.]

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, you could save this woman. She wants to get back into society, and she wants you to help her. [Crossing to her.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Me!

LORD WINDERMERE

Yes, you.

LADY WINDERMERE

How impertinent of her! [A pause.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, I came to ask you a great favour, and I still ask it of you, though you have discovered what I had intended you should never have known, that I have given Mrs. Erlynne a large sum of money. I want you to send her an invitation for our party to-night. [Standing L. of her.]

LADY WINDERMERE

You are mad! [Rises.]

LORD WINDERMERE

I entreat you. People may chatter about her, do chatter about her, of course, but they don't know anything definite against her. She has been to several houses — not to houses where you would go, I admit, but still to houses where women who are in what is called Society nowadays do go. That does not content her. She wants you to receive her once.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT I. LADY WINDERMERE

As a triumph for her, I suppose?

LORD WINDERMERE

No; but because she knows that you are a good woman—and that if she comes here once she will have a chance of a happier, a surer life than she has had. She will make no further effort to know you. Won't you help a woman who is trying to get back?

LADY WINDERMERE

No! If a woman really repents, she never wishes to return to the society that has made or seen her ruin.

LORD WINDERMERE

I beg of you.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Crossing to door R.] I am going to dress for dinner, and don't mention the subject again this evening. Arthur [going to him C.], you fancy because I have no father or mother that I am alone in the world, and that you can treat me as you choose. You are wrong, I have friends, many friends.

LORD WINDERMERE

[L.C.] Margaret, you are talking foolishly, recklessly. I won't argue with you, but I insist upon your asking Mrs. Erlynne to-night.

LADY WINDERMERE

[R.C.] I shall do nothing of the kind. [Crossing L.C.]

LORD WINDERMERE

You refuse? [C.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Absolutely!

LORD WINDERMERE

Ah, Margaret, do this for my sake; it is her last chance.
ACT I. LADY WINDERMERE
What has that to do with me?

LORD WINDERMERE
How hard good women are!

LADY WINDERMERE
How weak bad men are!

LORD WINDERMERE
Margaret, none of us men may be good enough for the women we marry—that is quite true—but you don’t imagine I would ever—oh, the suggestion is monstrous!

LADY WINDERMERE
Why should you be different from other men? I am told that there is hardly a husband in London who does not waste his life over some shameful passion.

LORD WINDERMERE
I am not one of them.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

I am not sure of that!

LORD WINDERMERE

You are sure in your heart. But don't make chasm after chasm between us. God knows the last few minutes have thrust us wide enough apart. Sit down and write the card.

LADY WINDERMERE

Nothing in the whole world would induce me.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Crossing to bureau.] Then I will! [Rings electric bell, sits and writes card.]

LADY WINDERMERE

You are going to invite this woman?

[Crossing to him.]

LORD WINDERMERE

Yes.

[Pause. Enter PARKER.]

Parker!

ACT I

PARKER

Yes, my lord. [Comes down L.C.]

LORD WINDERMERE

Have this note sent to Mrs. Erlynne at No. 84A Curzon Street. [Crossing to L.C. and giving note to PARKER.] There is no answer!

[Exit PARKER C.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Arthur, if that woman comes here, I shall insult her.

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, don't say that.

LADY WINDERMERE

I mean it.

LORD WINDERMERE

Child, if you did such a thing, there's not a woman in London who wouldn't pity you.

ACT I.

There is not a good woman in London who would not applaud me. We have been too lax. We must make an example. I propose to begin to-night.

[Picking up fan.] Yes, you gave me this fan to-day; it was your birthday present. If that woman crosses my threshold, I shall strike her across the face with it.

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, you couldn't do such a thing.

LADY WINDERMERE

You don't know me! [Moves R.]

[Enter PARKER.]

Parker!

PARKER

Yes, my lady.

ACT I. LADY WINDERMERE

I shall dine in my own room. I don’t want dinner, in fact. See that everything is ready by half-past ten. And, Parker, be sure you pronounce the names of the guests very distinctly to-night. Sometimes you speak so fast that I miss them. I am particularly anxious to hear the names quite clearly, so as to make no mistake. You understand, Parker?

PARKER

Yes, my lady.

LADY WINDERMERE

That will do! [Exit PARKER C.]

[Speaking to LORD WINDERMERE.] Arthur, if that woman comes here—I warn you——

LORD WINDERMERE

Margaret, you’ll ruin us!

46
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

Us! From this moment my life is separate from yours. But if you wish to avoid a public scandal, write at once to this woman, and tell her that I forbid her to come here!

LORD WINDERMERE

I will not—I cannot—she must come!

LADY WINDERMERE

Then I shall do exactly as I have said. [Goes R.] You leave me no choice. [Exit R.]

LORD WINDERMERE

[Calling after her.] Margaret! Margaret! [A pause.] My God! What shall I do? I dare not tell her who this woman really is. The shame would kill her. [Sinks down into a chair and buries his face in his hands.]

SCENE

Drawing-room in Lord Windermere's house. Door R.U. opening into ball-room, where band is playing. Door L. through which guests are entering. Door L.U. opens on to illuminated terrace. Palms, flowers, and brilliant lights. Room crowded with guests. Lady Windermere is receiving them.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Up C.] So strange Lord Windermere isn't here. Mr. Hopper is very late, too. You have kept those five dances for him, Agatha? [Comes down.]

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Sitting on sofa.] Just let me see your card. I'm so glad Lady Windermere
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. has revived cards.—They're a mother's only safeguard. You dear simple little thing! [Scratches out two names.] No nice girl should ever waltz with such particularly younger sons! It looks so fast! The last two dances you might pass on the terrace with Mr. Hopper.

[Enter Mr. Dumby and Lady Plymdale from the ball-room.]

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Fanning herself.] The air is so pleasant there.

PARKER

Good evening, Lady Stutfield. I suppose this will be the last ball of the season?

I suppose so, Mr. Dumby. It’s been a delightful season, hasn’t it?

DUMBY

Quite delightful! Good evening, Duchess. I suppose this will be the last ball of the season?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

I suppose so, Mr. Dumby. It has been a very dull season, hasn’t it?

DUMBY

Dreadfully dull! Dreadfully dull!

MRS. COWPER-COWPER

Good evening, Mr. Dumby. I suppose this will be the last ball of the season?

DUMBY

Oh, I think not. There’ll probably be two more. [Wanders back to LADY PLYMDALE.]

HOPPER

How do you do, Lady Windermere? How do you do, Duchess? [Bows to LADY AGATHA.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Dear Mr. Hopper, how nice of you to come so early. We all know how you are run after in London.

HOPPER

Capital place, London! They are not nearly so exclusive in London as they are in Sydney.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Ah! we know your value, Mr. Hopper. We wish there were more like you. It would make life so much easier. Do you know, Mr. Hopper, dear Agatha and I are so much interested in Australia. It must be so pretty with all the dear little kangaroos flying about. Agatha has found it on the map. What a curious shape it is! Just like a large packing case. However, it is a very young country, isn’t it?

HOPPER

Wasn’t it made at the same time as the others, Duchess?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

How clever you are, Mr. Hopper. You have a cleverness quite of your own. Now I mustn’t keep you.

HOPPER

But I should like to dance with Lady Agatha, Duchess.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Well, I hope she has a dance left. Have you a dance left, Agatha?

LORD AUGUSTUS

Good evening, Lady Windermere.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Sir James, will you take me into the ball-room? Augustus has been dining with us to-night. I really have had quite enough of dear Augustus for the moment.

[SIR JAMES ROYSTON gives the DUCHESS his arm and escorts her into the ball-room.]

PARKER

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bowden. Lord and Lady Paisley. Lord Darlington.
[These people enter as announced.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Coming up to Lord Windermere.] Want to speak to you particularly, dear
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. boy. I'm worn to a shadow. Know I don't look it. None of us men do look what we really are. Demmed good thing, too. What I want to know is this. Who is she? Where does she come from? Why hasn't she got any demmed relations? Demmed nuisance, relations! But they make one so demmed respectable.

LORD WINDERMERE

You are talking of Mrs. Erlynne, I suppose? I only met her six months ago. Till then, I never knew of her existence.

LORD AUGUSTUS

You have seen a good deal of her since then.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Coldly.] Yes, I have seen a good deal of her since then. I have just seen her.

58
Lady Windermere's Fan

Lord Augustus

Egad! the women are very down on her. I have been dining with Arabella this evening! By Jove! you should have heard what she said about Mrs. Erlynne. She didn't leave a rag on her. . . . [Aside.] Berwick and I told her that didn't matter much, as the lady in question must have an extremely fine figure. You should have seen Arabella's expression! . . . But, look here, dear boy. I don't know what to do about Mrs. Erlynne. Egad! I might be married to her; she treats me with such demmed indifference. She's deuced clever, too! She explains everything. Egad! she explains you. She has got any amount of explanations for you—and all of them different.

Lord Windermere

No explanations are necessary about my friendship with Mrs. Erlynne.
ACT II

LORD AUGUSTUS

Hem! Well, look here, dear old fellow. Do you think she will ever get into this demmed thing called Society? Would you introduce her to your wife? No use beating about the confounded bush. Would you do that?

LORD WINDERMERE

Mrs. Erlynne is coming here to-night.

LORD AUGUSTUS

Your wife has sent her a card?

LORD WINDERMERE

Mrs. Erlynne has received a card.

LORD AUGUSTUS

Then she's all right, dear boy. But why didn't you tell me that before? It would have saved me a heap of worry and demmed misunderstandings!

[LADY AGATHA and MR. HOPPER cross and exit on terrace L.U.E.]

ACT II.

PARKER

Mr. Cecil Graham!

[Enter Mr. Cecil Graham.]

CECIL GRAHAM

[Bows to Lady Windermere, passes over and shakes hands with Lord Windermere.] Good evening, Arthur. Why don't you ask me how I am? I like people to ask me how I am. It shows a wide-spread interest in my health. Now, to-night I am not at all well. Been dining with my people. Wonder why it is one's people are always so tedious? My father would talk morality after dinner. I told him he was old enough to know better. But my experience is that as soon as people are old enough to know better, they don't know anything at all. Hallo, Tuppy! Hear you're going to be married again; thought you were tired of that game.

61

ACT II. LORD AUGUSTUS

You're excessively trivial, my dear boy, excessively trivial!

CECIL GRAHAM

By the way, Tuppy, which is it? Have you been twice married and once divorced, or twice divorced and once married? I say you've been twice divorced and once married. It seems so much more probable.

LORD AUGUSTUS

I have a very bad memory. I really don't remember which. [Moves away R.]

LADY PLYMDALE

Lord Windermere, I've something most particular to ask you.

LORD WINDERMERE

I am afraid—if you will excuse me—I must join my wife.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY PLYMDALE

Oh, you mustn’t dream of such a thing. It’s most dangerous nowadays for a husband to pay any attention to his wife in public. It always makes people think that he beats her when they’re alone. The world has grown so suspicious of anything that looks like a happy married life. But I’ll tell you what it is at supper. [Moves towards door of ballroom.]

LORD WINDERMERE

[C.] Margaret! I must speak to you.

LADY WINDERMERE

Will you hold my fan for me, Lord Darlington? Thanks. [Comes down to him.]

LORD WINDERMERE

[Crossing to her.] Margaret, what you said before dinner was, of course, impossible?
ACT II. LADY WINDERMERE

That woman is not coming here to night!

LORD WINDERMERE

[R.C.] Mrs. Erlynne is coming here, and if you in any way annoy or wound her, you will bring shame and sorrow on us both. Remember that! Ah, Margaret! only trust me! A wife should trust her husband!

LADY WINDERMERE

[C.] London is full of women who trust their husbands. One can always recognise them. They look so thoroughly unhappy. I am not going to be one of them. [Moves up.] Lord Darlington, will you give me back my fan, please? Thanks. . . . A useful thing a fan, isn’t it? . . . I want a friend to-night, Lord Darlington: I didn’t know I would want one so soon.

LORD DARLINGTON

Lady Windermere! I knew the time would come some day; but why to-night?

LORD WINDERMERE

I will tell her. I must. It would be terrible if there were any scene. Margaret . . .

PARKER

Mrs. Erlynne!

[LORD WINDERMERE starts. MRS. ERLYNNE enters, very beautifully dressed and very dignified. LADY WINDERMERE clutches at her fan, then lets it drop on the floor. She bows coldly to MRS. ERLYNNE, who bows to her sweetly in turn, and sails into the room.]

LORD DARLINGTON

You have dropped your fan, Lady Windermere. [Picks it up and hands it to her.]

ACT II. MRS. ERLYNNE

[C.] How do you do, again, Lord Windermere? How charming your sweet wife looks! Quite a picture!

LORD WINDERMERE

[In a low voice.] It was terribly rash of you to come!

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Smiling.] The wisest thing I ever did in my life. And, by the way, you must pay me a good deal of attention this evening. I am afraid of the women. You must introduce me to some of them. The men I can always manage. How do you do, Lord Augustus? You have quite neglected me lately. I have not seen you since yesterday. I am afraid you’re faithless. Every one told me so.

LORD AUGUSTUS

[R.] Now really, Mrs. Erlynne, allow me to explain.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

[ACT II.

[R.C.] No, dear Lord Augustus, you can’t explain anything. It is your chief charm.

LORD AUGUSTUS

Ah! if you find charms in me, Mrs. Erlynne——

[They converse together. LORD WINDERMERE moves uneasily about the room watching MRS. ERLYNNE.]

LORD DARLINGTON

[To LADY WINDERMERE.] How pale you are!

LADY WINDERMERE

Cowards are always pale!

LORD DARLINGTON

You look faint. Come out on the terrace.

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes. [To PARKER.] Parker, send my cloak out.
ACT II. MRS. ERLYNNE

[Crossing to her.] Lady Windermere, how beautifully your terrace is illuminated. Reminds me of Prince Doria's at Rome.

[LADY WINDERMERE bows coldly, and goes off with LORD DARLINGTON.]
Oh, how do you do, Mr. Graham? Isn't that your aunt, Lady Jedburgh? I should so much like to know her.

CECIL GRAHAM

[After a moment's hesitation and embarrassment.] Oh, certainly, if you wish it. Aunt Caroline, allow me to introduce Mrs. Erlynne.

MRS. ERLYNNE

So pleased to meet you, Lady Jedburgh. [Sits beside her on the sofa.] Your nephew and I are great friends. I am so much interested in his political career. I think he's sure to be a wonderful success. He thinks like a
Lady Windermere's Fan

Tory, and talks like a Radical, and that's Act II. so important nowadays. He's such a brilliant talker, too. But we all know from whom he inherits that. Lord Allandale was saying to me only yesterday, in the Park, that Mr. Graham talks almost as well as his aunt.

Lady Jedburgh

[R.] Most kind of you to say these charming things to me! [Mrs. Erlynne smiles, and continues conversation.]

Dumby

[To Cecil Graham.] Did you introduce Mrs. Erlynne to Lady Jedburgh?

Cecil Graham

Had to, my dear fellow. Couldn't help it! That woman can make one do anything she wants. How, I don't know.

Dumby

Hope to goodness she won't speak to me! [Saunters towards Lady Plymdale.]
ACT II. MRS. ERLYNNE

[C. To LADY JEDBURGH.] On Thursday? With great pleasure. [Rises, and speaks to LORD WINDERMERE, laughing.] What a bore it is to have to be civil to these old dowagers! But they always insist on it!

LADY PLYMDALE

[To MR. DUMBY.] Who is that well-dressed woman talking to Windermere?

DUMBY

Haven't got the slightest idea! Looks like an édition de luxe of a wicked French novel, meant specially for the English market.

MRS. ERLYNNE

So that is poor Dumby with Lady Plymdale? I hear she is frightfully jealous of him. He doesn't seem anxious to speak to me to-night. I suppose he is afraid of her. Those straw-coloured women have dreadful tempers. Do you know, I think I'll dance with you first, Act II. Windermere. [Lord Windermere bites his lip and frowns.] It will make Lord Augustus so jealous! Lord Augustus! [Lord Augustus comes down.] Lord Windermere insists on my dancing with him first, and, as it's his own house, I can't well refuse. You know I would much sooner dance with you.

Lord Augustus

[With a low bow.] I wish I could think so, Mrs. Erlynne.

Mrs. Erlynne

You know it far too well. I can fancy a person dancing through life with you and finding it charming.

Lord Augustus

[Placing his hand on his white waistcoat.] Oh, thank you, thank you. You are the most adorable of all ladies!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. MRS. ERLYNNE

What a nice speech! So simple and so sincere! Just the sort of speech I like. Well, you shall hold my bouquet. [Goes towards ball-room on Lord Windermere's arm.] Ah, Mr. Dumby, how are you? I am so sorry I have been out the last three times you have called. Come and lunch on Friday.

DUMBY

[With perfect nonchalance.] Delighted!

[LADY PLYMDALE glares with indignation at MR. DUMBY. LORD AUGUSTUS follows MRS. ERLYNNE and LORD WINDERMERE into the ball-room holding bouquet.]

LADY PLYMDALE

[To MR. DUMBY.] What an absolute brute you are! I never can believe a word you say! Why did you tell me you didn't know her? What do you mean by calling on her three times running? You are not to go to lunch there; of course you understand that?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II.

DUMBY

My dear Laura, I wouldn't dream of going!

LADY PLYMDALE

You haven't told me her name yet! Who is she?

DUMBY

[Coughs slightly and smooths his hair.] She's a Mrs. Erlynne.

LADY PLYMDALE

That woman!

DUMBY

Yes; that is what every one calls her.

LADY PLYMDALE

How very interesting! How intensely interesting! I really must have a good stare at her. [Goes to door of ball-room and looks in.] I have heard the most shocking things about her. They say she is ruining poor Windermere. And ACT II. Lady Windermere, who goes in for being so proper, invites her! How extremely amusing! It takes a thoroughly good woman to do a thoroughly stupid thing. You are to lunch there on Friday!

DUMBY

Why?

LADY PLYMDALE

Because I want you to take my husband with you. He has been so attentive lately, that he has become a perfect nuisance. Now, this woman is just the thing for him. He'll dance attendance upon her as long as she lets him, and won't bother me. I assure you, women of that kind are most useful. They form the basis of other people's marriages.

DUMBY

What a mystery you are!

LADY PLYMDALE

[Looking at him.] I wish you were!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

DUMBY

I am—to myself. I am the only person in the world I should like to know thoroughly; but I don’t see any chance of it just at present.

[They pass into the ball-room, and LADY WINDERMERE and LORD DARLINGTON enter from the terrace.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes. Her coming here is monstrous, unbearable. I know now what you meant to-day at tea time. Why didn’t you tell me right out? You should have!

LORD DARLINGTON

I couldn’t! A man can’t tell these things about another man! But if I had known he was going to make you ask her here to-night, I think I would have told you. That insult, at any rate, you would have been spared.
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

ACT II. LADY WINDERMERE

I did not ask her. He insisted on her coming—against my entreaties—against my commands. Oh! the house is tainted for me! I feel that every woman here sneers at me as she dances by with my husband. What have I done to deserve this? I gave him all my life. He took it—used it—spoiled it! I am degraded in my own eyes; and I lack courage—I am a coward! [Sits down on sofa.]

LORD DARLINGTON

If I know you at all, I know that you can’t live with a man who treats you like this! What sort of life would you have with him? You would feel that he was lying to you every moment of the day. You would feel that the look in his eyes was false, his voice false, his touch false, his passion false. He would come to you when he was weary of others; you would have to comfort him. He would come to you when he was devoted to others; you would have to charm him. You would have to be to him the mask of his real ACT II. life, the cloak to hide his secret.

LADY WINDERMERE

You are right—you are terribly right. But where am I to turn? You said you would be my friend, Lord Darlington.—Tell me, what am I to do? Be my friend now.

LORD DARLINGTON

Between men and women there is no friendship possible. There is passion, enmity, worship, love, but no friendship. I love you——

LADY WINDERMERE

No, no! [Rises.]

LORD DARLINGTON

Yes, I love you! You are more to me than anything in the whole world. What does your husband give you? Nothing. Whatever is in him he gives to this wretched woman, whom he has?

ACT II. thrust into your society, into your home, to shame you before every one. I offer you my life—

LADY WINDERMERE
Lord Darlington!

LORD DARLINGTON
My life—my whole life. Take it, and do with it what you will. . . . I love you—love you as I have never loved any living thing. From the moment I met you I loved you, loved you blindly, adoringly, madly! You did not know it then—you know it now! Leave this house to-night. I won't tell you that the world matters nothing, or the world's voice, or the voice of society. They matter a great deal. They matter far too much. But there are moments when one has to choose between living one's own life, fully, entirely, completely—or dragging out some false, shallow, degrading existence that the world in its hypocrisy Choose! Oh, my love, choose!

LADY WINDERMERES

Moving slowly away from him, and looking at him with startled eyes.] I have not the courage.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Following her.] Yes; you have the courage. There may be six months of pain, of disgrace even, but when you no longer bear his name, when you bear mine, all will be well. Margaret, my love, my wife that shall be some day—yes, my wife! You know it! What are you now? This woman has the place that belongs by right to you. Oh! go—go out of this house, with head erect, with a smile upon your lips, with courage in your eyes. All London will know why you did it; and who will blame you? No one. If they do, what matter? Wrong? What is wrong? It's wrong for a man to abandon his
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. wife for a shameless woman. It is wrong for a wife to remain with a man who so dishonours her. You said once you would make no compromise with things. Make none now. Be brave! Be yourself!

LADY WINDERMERE

I am afraid of being myself. Let me think! Let me wait! My husband may return to me. [Sits down on sofa.]

LORD DARLINGTON

And you would take him back! You are not what I thought you were. You are just the same as every other woman. You would stand anything rather than face the censure of a world, whose praise you would despise. In a week you will be driving with this woman in the Park. She will be your constant guest—your dearest friend. You would endure anything rather than break with one blow this monstrous tie. You are right. You have no courage; none!

LORD DARLINGTON

You break my heart!

LADY WINDERMERÉ

Mine is already broken. [A pause.]

LORD DARLINGTON

How alone I am in life! How terribly alone!

[The music stops. Enter the DUCHESS OF BERWICK and LORD PAISLEY laughing and talking. Other guests come on from ball-room.]

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Dear Margaret, I’ve just been having such a delightful chat with Mrs. Erlynne. I am so sorry for what I said to you this afternoon about her. Of course, she must be all right if you invite her. A most attractive woman, and has such sensible views on life. Told me she entirely disapproved of people marrying more than once, so I feel quite safe about poor Augustus. Can’t imagine why people speak against her. It’s those horrid nieces of mine—the Saville girls—they’re always talking scandal. Still, I should go to Homburg, dear, I really should. She is just a little too attractive. But where is Agatha? Oh, there
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

She is! [LADY AGATHA AND MR. HOPPER ACT II. ENTER FROM TERRACE L.U.E.] Mr. Hopper, I am very, very angry with you. You have taken Agatha out on the terrace, and she is so delicate.

HOPPER

[L.C.] Awfully sorry, Duchess. We went out for a moment and then got chatting together.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[C.] Ah, about dear Australia, I suppose?

HOPPER

Yes!

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

Agatha, darling! [Beckons her over.]

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma!

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Aside.] Did Mr. Hopper definitely——

ACT II  LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

And what answer did you give him, dear child?

LADY AGATHA

Yes, mamma.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Affectionately.] My dear one! You always say the right thing. Mr. Hopper! James! Agatha has told me everything. How cleverly you have both kept your secret.

HOPPER

You don't mind my taking Agatha off to Australia, then, Duchess?

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

[Indignantly.] To Australia? Oh, don't mention that dreadful vulgar place.

84
But she said she'd like to come with me.

[Severely.] Did you say that, Agatha?

Yes, mamma.

Agatha, you say the most silly things possible. I think on the whole that Grosvenor Square would be a more healthy place to reside in. There are lots of vulgar people live in Grosvenor Square, but at any rate there are no horrid kangaroos crawling about. But we'll talk about that to-morrow. James, you can take Agatha down. You'll come to lunch, of course, James. At half-past one, instead of two. The Duke will wish to say a few words to you, I am sure.

ACT II. HOPPER

I should like to have a chat with the Duke, Duchess. He has not said a single word to me yet.

DUCHESS OF BERWICK

I think you'll find he will have a great deal to say to you to-morrow. [Exit LADY AGATHA with MR. HOPPER.] And now good-night, Margaret. I'm afraid it's the old, old story, dear. Love—well, not love at first sight, but love at the end of the season, which is so much more satisfactory.

LADY WINDERMERE

Good-night, Duchess.

[Exit the DUCHESS OF BERWICK on LORD PAISLEY'S arm.]

LADY PLYMDALE

My dear Margaret, what a handsome woman your husband has been dancing with! I should be quite jealous if I

LADY WINDERMERE

No!

LADY PLYMDALE

Really? Good-night, dear. [Looks at MR. DUMBY and exit.]

DUMBY

Awful manners young Hopper has!

CECIL GRAHAM

Ah! Hopper is one of Nature's gentlemen, the worst type of gentleman I know.

DUMBY

Sensible woman, Lady Windermere. Lots of wives would have objected to Mrs. Erlynne coming. But Lady Windermere has that uncommon thing called common sense.
And Windermere knows that nothing looks so like innocence as an indiscretion.

Yes; dear Windermere is becoming almost modern. Never thought he would. [Bows to Lady Windermere and exit.]

Good-night, Lady Windermere. What a fascinating woman Mrs. Erlynne is! She is coming to lunch on Thursday, won't you come too? I expect the Bishop and dear Lady Merton.

I am afraid I am engaged, Lady Jedburgh.

So sorry. Come, dear. [Exit Lady Jedburgh and Miss Graham.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Charming ball it has been! Quite reminds me of old days. [Sits on sofa.] And I see that there are just as many fools in society as there used to be. So pleased to find that nothing has altered! Except Margaret. She's grown quite pretty. The last time I saw her—twenty years ago, she was a fright in flannel. Positive fright, I assure you. The dear Duchess! and that sweet Lady Agatha! Just the type of girl I like! Well, really, Windermere, if I am to be the Duchess's sister-in-law——

LORD WINDERMERE

[Sitting L. of her.] But are you——?

[Exit MR. CECIL GRAHAM with rest of guests. LADY WINDERMERE watches, with a look of scorn and pain, MRS. ERLYNNE and her husband. They are unconscious of her presence.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh, yes! He's to call to-morrow at twelve o'clock! He wanted to propose to-night. In fact he did. He kept on proposing. Poor Augustus, you know how he repeats himself. Such a bad habit! But I told him I wouldn't give him an answer till to-morrow. Of course I am going to take him. And I dare say I'll make him an admirable wife, as wives go. And there is a great deal of good in Lord Augustus. Fortunately it is all on the surface. Just where good qualities should be. Of course you must help me in this matter.

LORD WINDERMERE

I am not called on to encourage Lord Augustus, I suppose?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh, no! I do the encouraging. But you will make me a handsome settlement, Windermere, won't you?

90
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD WINDERMERE

[Frowning.] Is that what you want to talk to me about to-night?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes.

LORD WINDERMERE

[With a gesture of impatience.] I will not talk of it here.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Laughing.] Then we will talk of it on the terrace. Even business should have a picturesque background. Should it not, Windermere? With a proper background women can do anything.

LORD WINDERMERE

Won't to-morrow do as well?

MRS. ERLYNNE

No; you see, to-morrow I am going to accept him. And I think it would be
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. a good thing if I was able to tell him that I had—well, what shall I say?—£2000 a year left to me by a third cousin—or a second husband—or some distant relative of that kind. It would be an additional attraction, wouldn't it? You have a delightful opportunity now of paying me a compliment, Windermere. But you are not very clever at paying compliments. I am afraid Margaret doesn't encourage you in that excellent habit. It's a great mistake on her part. When men give up saying what is charming, they give up thinking what is charming. But seriously, what do you say to £2000? £2500, I think. In modern life margin is everything. Windermere, don't you think the world an intensely amusing place? I do!

[Exit on terrace with Lord Windermere. Music strikes up in ball-room.]

LADY WINDERMERE

To stay in this house any longer is impossible. To-night a man who loves me offered me his whole life. I refused ACT II.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

it. It was foolish of me. I will offer him mine now. I will give him mine.
I will go to him! [Puts on cloak and goes to the door, then turns back. Sits down at table and writes a letter, puts it into an envelope, and leaves it on table.] Arthur has never understood me. When he reads this, he will. He may do as he chooses now with his life. I have done with mine as I think best, as I think right. It is he who has broken the bond of marriage—not I. I only break its bondage.

[Exit.

[PARKER enters L. and crosses towards the ball-room R. Enter MRS. ERLYNNE.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Is Lady Windermere in the ball-room?

PARKER

Her ladyship has just gone out.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Gone out? She's not on the terrace!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. PARKER

No, madam. Her ladyship has just gone out of the house.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Starts, and looks at the servant with a puzzled expression in her face.] Out of the house?

PARKER

Yes, madam—her ladyship told me she had left a letter for his lordship on the table.

MRS. ERLYNNE

A letter for Lord Windermere?

PARKER

Yes, madam.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Thank you.

[Exit PARKER. The music in the ball-room stops.] Gone out of her house! A letter addressed to her husband! [Goes over to bureau and looks at letter. Takes ACT II.
it up and lays it down again with a shudder of fear.] No, no! It would be impossible!
Life doesn't repeat its tragedies like that!
Oh, why does this horrible fancy come across me? Why do I remember now the one moment of my life I most wish to forget? Does life repeat its tragedies?
[ Tears letter open and reads it, then sinks down into a chair with a gesture of anguish.]
Oh, how terrible! The same words that twenty years ago I wrote to her father! and how bitterly I have been punished for it! No; my punishment, my real punishment is to-night, is now! [Still seated R.]

[Enter LORD WINDERMERE L. U. E.]

LORD WINDERMERE
Have you said good-night to my wife?
[Comes C.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Crushing letter in her hand.] Yes.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. LORD WINDERMERE

Where is she?

MRS. ERLYNNE

She is very tired. She has gone to bed. She said she had a headache.

LORD WINDERMERE

I must go to her. You'll excuse me?

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Rising hurriedly.] Oh, no! It's nothing serious. She's only very tired, that is all. Besides, there are people still in the supper-room. She wants you to make her apologies to them. She said she didn't wish to be disturbed. [Drops letter.] She asked me to tell you!

LORD WINDERMERE

[Picks up letter.] You have dropped something.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh yes, thank you, that is mine. [Puts out her hand to take it.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II

LORD WINDERMERE

[Still looking at letter.] But it's my wife's handwriting, isn't it?

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Takes the letter quickly.] Yes, it's—an address. Will you ask them to call my carriage, please?

LORD WINDERMERE

Certainly. [Goes L. and Exit.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Thanks! What can I do? What can I do? I feel a passion awakening within me that I never felt before. What can it mean? The daughter must not be like the mother—that would be terrible. How can I save her? How can I save my child? A moment may ruin a life. Who knows that better than I? Windermere must be got out of the house; that is absolutely necessary. [Goes L.] But
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT II. how shall I do it? It must be done somehow. Ah!

[Enter LOrD AUGUSTUS R.U.E. carrying bouquet.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

Dear lady, I am in such suspense! May I not have an answer to my request?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Lord Augustus, listen to me. You are to take Lord Windermere down to your club at once, and keep him there as long as possible. You understand?

LORD AUGUSTUS

But you said you wished me to keep early hours!

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Nervously.] Do what I tell you. Do what I tell you.

LORD AUGUSTUS

And my reward?

98
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

Your reward? Your reward? Oh! ask me that to-morrow. But don't let Windermere out of your sight to-night. If you do I will never forgive you. I will never speak to you again. I'll have nothing to do with you. Remember you are to keep Windermere at your club, and don't let him come back to-night.

[Exit L.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

Well, really, I might be her husband already. Positively I might. [Follows her in a bewildered manner.]

Act Drop THIRD ACT

LADY WINDERMER

[Standing by the fireplace.] Why doesn't he come? This waiting is horrible. He should be here. Why is he not here, to wake by passionate words some fire within me? I am cold—cold as a loveless thing. Arthur must have read my letter by this time. If he cared for me, he would have come after me, would have taken me back by force. But he doesn't care. He's entrammelled by this woman—fascinated
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. by her—dominated by her. If a woman wants to hold a man, she has merely to appeal to what is worst in him. We make gods of men and they leave us. Others makes brutes of them and they fawn and are faithful. How hideous life is!... Oh! it was mad of me to come here, horribly mad. And yet, which is the worst, I wonder, to be at the mercy of a man who loves one, or the wife of a man who in one's own house dishonours one? What woman knows? What woman in the whole world? But will he love me always, this man to whom I am giving my life? What do I bring him? Lips that have lost the note of joy, eyes that are blinded by tears, chill hands and icy heart. I bring him nothing. I must go back—no; I can't go back, my letter has put me in their power—Arthur would not take me back! That fatal letter! No! Lord Darlington leaves England tomorrow. I will go with him—I have no choice. [Sits down for a few moments.

104
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

Then starts up and puts on her cloak.] ACT III.

No, no! I will go back, let Arthur do with me what he pleases. I can't wait here. It has been madness my coming. I must go at once. As for Lord Darlington—Oh! here he is! What shall I do? What can I say to him? Will he let me go away at all? I have heard that men are brutal, horrible . . . Oh!

[Hides her face in her hands.]

[Enter Mrs. Erlynne L.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Lady Windermere! [LADY WINDERMERE starts and looks up. Then recoils in contempt.] Thank Heaven I am in time. You must go back to your husband's house immediately.

LADY WINDERMERE

Must?

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Authoritatively.] Yes, you must! There is not a second to be lost. Lord Darlington may return at any moment.

105 ACT III. LADY WINDERMERE

Don't come near me!

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh! You are on the brink of ruin, you are on the brink of a hideous precipice. You must leave this place at once, my carriage is waiting at the corner of the street. You must come with me and drive straight home.

[LADY WINDERMERE throws off her cloak and flings it on the sofa.]

What are you doing?

LADY WINDERMERE

Mrs. Erlynne—if you had not come here, I would have gone back. But now that I see you, I feel that nothing in the whole world would induce me to live under the same roof as Lord Windermere. You fill me with horror. There is something about you that stirs the wildest—rage within me. And I know why you are here. My husband sent you to lure me back that I might serve as a blind to whatever relations ACT III exist between you and him.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh! You don't think that—you can't.

LADY WINDERMERÉ

Go back to my husband, Mrs. Erlynne. He belongs to you and not to me. I suppose he is afraid of a scandal. Men are such cowards. They outrage every law of the world, and are afraid of the world's tongue. But he had better prepare himself. He shall have a scandal. He shall have the worst scandal there has been in London for years. He shall see his name in every vile paper, mine on every hideous placard.

MRS. ERLYNNE

No—no——

LADY WINDERMERÉ

Yes! he shall. Had he come himself,
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. I admit I would have gone back to the life of degradation you and he had prepared for me—I was going back—but to stay himself at home, and to send you as his messenger—oh! it was infamous—infamous.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[C.] Lady Windermere, you wrong me horribly—you wrong your husband horribly. He doesn't know you are here—he thinks you are safe in your own house. He thinks you are asleep in your own room. He never read the mad letter you wrote to him!

LADY WINDERMERE

[R.] Never read it!

MRS. ERLYNNE

No—he knows nothing about it.

LADY WINDERMERE

How simple you think me! [Going to her.] You are lying to me!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Restraining herself.] I am not. I am telling you the truth.

LADY WINDERMERE

If my husband didn't read my letter, how is it that you are here? Who told you I had left the house you were shameless enough to enter? Who told you where I had gone to? My husband told you, and sent you to decoy me back. [Crosses L.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

[R.C.] Your husband has never seen the letter. I—saw it, I opened it. I—read it.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Turning to her.] You opened a letter of mine to my husband? You wouldn't dare!

MRS. ERLYNNE

Dare! Oh! to save you from the
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. abyss into which you are falling, there is nothing in the world I would not dare, nothing in the whole world. Here is the letter. Your husband has never read it. He never shall read it. [Going to fireplace.] It should never have been written. [Tears it and throws it into the fire.]

LADY WINDERMERE

[With infinite contempt in her voice and look.] How do I know that that was my letter after all? You seem to think the commonest device can take me in!

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh! why do you disbelieve everything I tell you? What object do you think I have in coming here, except to save you from utter ruin, to save you from the consequence of a hideous mistake? That letter that is burnt now was your letter. I swear it to you!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Slowly.] You took good care to burn
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

it before I had examined it. I cannot trust you. You, whose whole life is a lie, how could you speak the truth about anything? [Sits down.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Hurriedly.] Think as you like about me—say what you choose against me, but go back, go back to the husband you love.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Sullenly.] I do not love him!

MRS. ERLYNNE

You do, and you know that he loves you.

LADY WINDERMERE

He does not understand what love is. He understands it as little as you do—but I see what you want. It would be a great advantage for you to get me back. Dear Heaven! what a life I would have then! Living at the mercy ACT III. of a woman who has neither mercy nor pity in her, a woman whom it is an infamy to meet, a degradation to know, a vile woman, a woman who comes between husband and wife!

MRS. ERLYNNE

[With a gesture of despair.] Lady Windermere, Lady Windermere, don’t say such terrible things. You don’t know how terrible they are, how terrible and how unjust. Listen, you must listen! Only go back to your husband, and I promise you never to communicate with him again on any pretext—never to see him—never to have anything to do with his life or yours. The money that he gave me, he gave me not through love, but through hatred, not in worship, but in contempt. The hold I have over him——

LADY WINDERMERE

[Rising.] Ah! you admit you have a hold!
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes, and I will tell you what it is. It is his love for you, Lady Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERE

You expect me to believe that?

MRS. ERLYNNE

You must believe it! It is true. It is his love for you that has made him submit to—oh! call it what you like, tyranny, threats, anything you choose. But it is his love for you. His desire to spare you—shame, yes, shame and disgrace.

LADY WINDERMERE

What do you mean? You are insolent! What have I to do with you?

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Humbly.] Nothing. I know it—but I tell you that your husband loves you—that you may never meet with such love again in your whole life—that such love...
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. you will never meet—and that if you throw it away, the day may come when you will starve for love and it will not be given to you, beg for love and it will be denied you—Oh! Arthur loves you!

LADY WINDERMERE

Arthur? And you tell me there is nothing between you?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Lady Windermere, before Heaven your husband is guiltless of all offence towards you! And I—I tell you that had it ever occurred to me that such a monstrous suspicion would have entered your mind, I would have died rather than have crossed your life or his—oh! died, gladly died! [Moves away to sofa R.]

LADY WINDERMERE

You talk as if you had a heart. Women like you have no hearts. Heart is not in you. You are bought and sold. [Sits L.C.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Starts, with a gesture of pain. Then restrains herself, and comes over to where LADY WINDERMERE is sitting. As she speaks, she stretches out her hands towards her, but does not dare to touch her.] Believe what you choose about me. I am not worth a moment's sorrow. But don't spoil your beautiful young life on my account! You don't know what may be in store for you, unless you leave this house at once. You don't know what it is to fall into the pit, to be despised, mocked, abandoned, sneered at—to be an outcast! to find the door shut against one, to have to creep in by hideous byways, afraid every moment lest the mask should be stripped from one's face, and all the while to hear the laughter, the horrible laughter of the world, a thing more tragic than all the tears the world has ever shed. You don't know what it is. One pays for one's sin, and then one pays again, and all one's life one pays. You must never know that.—As for me, ACT III. if suffering be an expiation, then at this moment I have expiated all my faults, whatever they have been; for to-night you have made a heart in one who had it not, made it and broken it.—But let that pass. I may have wrecked my own life, but I will not let you wreck yours. You—why, you are a mere girl, you would be lost. You haven't got the kind of brains that enables a woman to get back. You have neither the wit nor the courage. You couldn't stand dishonour! No! Go back, Lady Windermere, to the husband who loves you, whom you love. You have a child, Lady Windermere. Go back to that child who even now, in pain or in joy, may be calling to you. [LADY WINDERMERE rises.] God gave you that child. He will require from you that you make his life fine, that you watch over him. What answer will you make to God if his life is ruined through you? Back to your house, Lady Windermere—your husband loves you! He has never swerved for a moment from the love he bears you. But even if he had a thousand ACT III loves, you must stay with your child. If he was harsh to you, you must stay with your child. If he ill-treated you, you must stay with your child. If he abandoned you, your place is with your child.

[LADY WINDERMERE bursts into tears and buries her face in her hands.]

[Rushing to her.] Lady Windermere!

LADY WINDERMERE

[ Holding out her hands to her, helplessly, as a child might do. ] Take me home. Take me home.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[ Is about to embrace her. Then restrains herself. There is a look of wonderful joy in her face. ] Come! Where is your cloak? [ Getting it from sofa. ] Here. Put it on. Come at once!

[ They go to the door. ]

LADY WINDERMERE

Stop! Don't you hear voices?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. MRS. ERLYNNE

No, no! There is no one!

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes, there is! Listen! Oh! that is my husband's voice! He is coming in! Save me! Oh, it's some plot! You have sent for him.

[Voices outside.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Silence! I'm here to save you, if I can. But I fear it is too late! There! [Points to the curtain across the window.] The first chance you have, slip out, if you ever get a chance!

LADY WINDERMERE

But you?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh! never mind me. I'll face them.

[LADY WINDERMERE hides herself behind the curtain.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Outside.] Nonsense, dear Windermere, you must not leave me!

MRS. ERLYNNE

Lord Augustus! Then it is I who am lost! [Hesitates for a moment, then looks round and sees door R., and exit through it.]

[Enter LORD DARLINGTON, MR. DUMBY, LORD WINDERMERE, LORD AUGUSTUS LORTON, and MR. CECIL GRAHAM.

DUMBY

What a nuisance their turning us out of the club at this hour! It's only two o'clock. [Sinks into a chair.] The lively part of the evening is only just beginning. [Yawns and closes his eyes.]

LORD WINDERMERE

It is very good of you, Lord Darlington, allowing Augustus to force our company on you, but I'm afraid I can't stay long.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. LORD DARLINGTON

Really! I am so sorry! You'll take a cigar, won't you?

LORD WINDERMERE

Thanks! [Sits down.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

[To LORD WINDERMERE.] My dear boy, you must not dream of going. I have a great deal to talk to you about, of demmed importance, too. [Sits down with him at L. table.]

CECIL GRAHAM

Oh! We all know what that is! Tuppy can't talk about anything but Mrs. Erlynne!

LORD WINDERMERE

Well, that is no business of yours, is it, Cecil?

CECIL GRAHAM

None! That is why it interests me.

120
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

My own business always bores me to death. I prefer other people's.

LORD DARLINGTON

Have something to drink, you fellows. Cecil, you'll have a whisky and soda?

CECIL GRAHAM

Thanks. [Goes to table with LORD DARLINGTON.] Mrs. Erlynne looked very handsome to-night, didn't she?

LORD DARLINGTON

I am not one of her admirers.

CECIL GRAHAM

I wasn't to be, but I am now. Why! she actually made me introduce her to poor dear Aunt Caroline. I believe she is going to lunch there.

LORD DARLINGTON

[In surprise.] No?

CECIL GRAHAM

She is, really.
LADY WINDERMERES FAN

ACT III. LORD DARLINGTON

Excuse me, you fellows. I'm going away to-morrow. And I have to write a few letters. [Goes to writing table and sits down.]

DUMBY

Clever woman, Mrs. Erlynne.

CECIL GRAHAM

Hallo, Dumby! I thought you were asleep.

DUMBY

I am, I usually am!

LORD AUGUSTUS

A very clever woman. Knows perfectly well what a demmed fool I am—knows it as well as I do myself.

[CECIL GRAHAM comes towards him laughing.]

Ah, you may laugh, my boy, but it is a great thing to come across a woman who thoroughly understands one.

122
LADY WINDERMERÉ’S FAN

DUMBY

It is an awfully dangerous thing. They always end by marrying one.

CECIL GRAHAM

But I thought, Tuppy, you were never going to see her again! Yes! you told me so yesterday evening at the club. You said you’d heard—

[Whispering to him.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

Oh, she’s explained that.

CECIL GRAHAM

And the Wiesbaden affair?

LORD AUGUSTUS

She’s explained that too.

DUMBY

And her income, Tuppy? Has she explained that?

123
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. LORD AUGUSTUS

[In a very serious voice.] She's going to explain that to-morrow.

[CECIL GRAHAM goes back to C. table.]

DUMBY

Awfully commercial, women nowadays. Our grandmothers threw their caps over the mills, of course, but, by Jove, their granddaughters only throw their caps over mills that can raise the wind for them.

LORD AUGUSTUS

You want to make her out a wicked woman. She is not!

CECIL GRAHAM

Oh! Wicked women bother one. Good women bore one. That is the only difference between them.

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Puffing a cigar.] Mrs. Erlynne has a future before her.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

DUMBY

Mrs. Erlynne has a past before her.

LORD AUGUSTUS

I prefer women with a past. They're always so demmed amusing to talk to.

CECIL GRAHAM

Well, you'll have lots of topics of conversation with her, Tuppy. [Rising and going to him.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

You're getting annoying, dear boy; you're getting demmed annoying.

CECIL GRAHAM

[Putting his hands on his shoulders.] Now, Tuppy, you've lost your figure and you've lost your character. Don't lose your temper; you have only got one.

LORD AUGUSTUS

My dear boy, if I wasn't the most good-natured man in London—— 125
We'd treat you with more respect, wouldn't we, Tuppy? [Strolls away.]

The youth of the present day are quite monstrous. They have absolutely no respect for dyed hair. [LORD AUGUSTUS looks round angrily.]

Mrs. Erlynne has a very great respect for dear Tuppy.

Then Mrs. Erlynne sets an admirable example to the rest of her sex. It is perfectly brutal the way most women nowadays behave to men who are not their husbands.

Dumby, you are ridiculous, and Cecil, you let your tongue run away with you. You must leave Mrs. Erlynne alone.
LADY WINDERMERES FAN

You don't really know anything about her, and you're always talking scandal against her.

CECIL GRAHAM

LORD WINDERMERES

What is the difference between scandal and gossip?

CECIL GRAHAM

Oh! gossip is charming! History is merely gossip. But scandal is gossip made tedious by morality. Now, I never moralise. A man who moralises is usually a hypocrite, and a woman who moralises is invariably plain. There is nothing in the whole world so unbecoming to a woman as a Nonconformist conscience. And most women know it, I'm glad to say.

127
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. LORD AUGUSTUS

Just my sentiments, dear boy, just my sentiments.

CECIL GRAHAM

Sorry to hear it, Tuppy; whenever people agree with me, I always feel I must be wrong.

LORD AUGUSTUS

My dear boy, when I was your age—

CECIL GRAHAM

But you never were, Tuppy, and you never will be. [Goes up C.] I say, Darlington, let us have some cards. You'll play, Arthur, won't you?

LORD WINDERMERE

No, thanks, Cecil.

DUMBY

[With a sigh.] Good heavens! how marriage ruins a man! It's as demoralising as cigarettes, and far more expensive.

CECIL GRAHAM
You'll play, of course, Tuppy?

LORD AUGUSTUS
[Pouring himself out a brandy and soda at table.] Can't, dear boy. Promised Mrs. Erlynne never to play or drink again.

CECIL GRAHAM
Now, my dear Tuppy, don't be led astray into the paths of virtue. Reformed, you would be perfectly tedious. That is the worst of women. They always want one to be good. And if we are good, when they meet us, they don't love us at all. They like to find us quite irrevocably bad, and to leave us quite unattractively good.

LORD DARLINGTON
[Rising from R. table, where he has been]
They always do find us bad!

I don’t think we are bad. I think we are all good, except Tuppy.

No, we are all in the gutter, but some of us are looking at the stars. [Sits down at C. table.]

We are all in the gutter, but some of us are looking at the stars? Upon my word, you are very romantic to-night, Darlington.

Too romantic! You must be in love. Who is the girl?

The woman I love is not free, or thinks she isn’t. [Glances instinctively at Lord Windermere while he speaks.]
CECIL GRAHAM

A married woman, then! Well, there's nothing in the world like the devotion of a married woman. It's a thing no married man knows anything about.

LORD DARLINGTON

Oh! she doesn't love me. She is a good woman. She is the only good woman I have ever met in my life.

CECIL GRAHAM

The only good woman you have ever met in your life?

LORD DARLINGTON

Yes!

CECIL GRAHAM

[Lighting a cigarette.] Well, you are a lucky fellow! Why, I have met hundreds of good women. I never seem to meet any but good women. The world is perfectly packed with good women. To know them is a middle-class education.
ACT III. LORD DARLINGTON

This woman has purity and innocence. She has everything we men have lost.

CECIL GRAHAM

My dear fellow, what on earth should we men do going about with purity and innocence? A carefully thought-out buttonhole is much more effective.

DUMBY

She doesn't really love you then?

LORD DARLINGTON

No, she does not!

DUMBY

I congratulate you, my dear fellow. In this world there are only two tragedies. One is not getting what one wants, and the other is getting it. The last is much the worst, the last is a real tragedy! But I am interested to hear she does not love you. How long could you love a woman who didn’t love you, Cecil?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

CECIL GRAHAM

A woman who didn't love me? Oh, all my life!

DUMBY

So could I. But it's so difficult to meet one.

LORD DARLINGTON

How can you be so conceited, Dumby?

DUMBY

I didn't say it as a matter of conceit. I said it as a matter of regret. I have been wildly, madly adored. I am sorry I have. It has been an immense nuisance. I should like to be allowed a little time to myself now and then.

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Looking round.] Time to educate yourself, I suppose.

DUMBY

No, time to forget all I have learned.
LADY WINDERMERÉ'S FAN

ACT III. That is much more important, dear Tuppy. [LORD AUGUSTUS moves uneasily in his chair.]

LORD DARLINGTON

What cynics you fellows are!

CECIL GRAHAM

What is a cynic? [Sitting on the back of the sofa.]

LORD DARLINGTON

A man who knows the price of everything and the value of nothing.

CECIL GRAHAM

And a sentimentalist, my dear Darlington, is a man who sees an absurd value in everything, and doesn't know the market price of any single thing.

LORD DARLINGTON

You always amuse me, Cecil. You talk as if you were a man of experience.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

CECIL GRAHAM

I am. [Moves up to front of fireplace.]

LORD DARLINGTON

You are far too young!

CECIL GRAHAM

That is a great error. Experience is a question of instinct about life. I have got it. Tuppy hasn't. Experience is the name Tuppy gives to his mistakes. That is all. [LORD AUGUSTUS looks round indignantly.]

DUMBY

Experience is the name every one gives to their mistakes.

CECIL GRAHAM

[Standing with his back to the fireplace.] One shouldn't commit any. [Sees LADY WINDERMERE's fan on sofa.]

DUMBY

Life would be very dull without them.
ACT III. CECIL GRAHAM

Of course you are quite faithful to this woman you are in love with, Darlington, to this good woman?

LORD DARLINGTON

Cecil, if one really loves a woman, all other women in the world become absolutely meaningless to one. Love changes one—I am changed.

CECIL GRAHAM

Dear me! How very interesting! Tuppy, I want to talk to you. [LORD AUGUSTUS takes no notice.]

DUMBY

It's no use talking to Tuppy. You might just as well talk to a brick wall.

CECIL GRAHAM

But I like talking to a brick wall—it's the only thing in the world that never contradicts me! Tuppy!

186
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD AUGUSTUS

Well, what is it? What is it?
[Rising and going over to CECIL GRAHAM.]

CECIL GRAHAM

Come over here. I want you particularly. [Aside.] Darlington has been moralising and talking about the purity of love, and that sort of thing, and he has got some woman in his rooms all the time.

LORD AUGUSTUS

No, really! really!

CECIL GRAHAM

[In a low voice.] Yes, here is her fan.
[Points to the fan.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Chuckling.] By Jove! By Jove!

LORD WINDERMERE

[Up by door.] I am really off now,
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. Lord Darlington. I am sorry you are leaving England so soon. Pray call on us when you come back! My wife and I will be charmed to see you!

LORD DARLINGTON

[Up stage with LORD WINDERMERE.] I am afraid I shall be away for many years. Good-night!

CECIL GRAHAM

Arthur!

LORD WINDERMERE

What?

CECIL GRAHAM

I want to speak to you for a moment. No, do come!

LORD WINDERMERE

[Putting on his coat.] I can't—I'm off!

138
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

CECIL GRAHAM

It is something very particular. It will interest you enormously.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Smiling.] It is some of your nonsense, Cecil.

CECIL GRAHAM

It isn't! It isn't really.

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Going to him.] My dear fellow, you mustn't go yet. I have a lot to talk to you about. And Cecil has something to show you.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Walking over.] Well, what is it?

CECIL GRAHAM

Darlington has got a woman here in his rooms. Here is her fan. Amusing, isn't it? [A pause.]
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT III. LORD WINDERMERE
   Good God! [Seizes the fan—DUMBY rises.]

CECIL GRAHAM
   What is the matter?

LORD WINDERMERE
   Lord Darlington!

LORD DARLINGTON
   [Turning round.] Yes!

LORD WINDERMERE
   What is my wife's fan doing here in your rooms? Hands off, Cecil. Don't touch me.

LORD DARLINGTON
   Your wife's fan?

LORD WINDERMERE
   Yes, here it is! 140

ACT III.

LORD DARLINGTON

[Walking towards him.] I don't know!

LORD WINDERMERE

You must know. I demand an explanation. Don't hold me, you fool. [To Cecil Graham.]

LORD DARLINGTON

[Aside.] She is here after all!

LORD WINDERMERE

Speak, sir! Why is my wife's fan here? Answer me! By God! I'll search your rooms, and if my wife's here, I'll— [Moves.]

LORD DARLINGTON

You shall not search my rooms. You have no right to do so. I forbid you!

LORD WINDERMERE

You scoundrel! I'll not leave your room till I have searched every corner of it! What moves behind that curtain?

[Rushes towards the curtain C.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Enters behind R.] Lord Windermere!

LORD WINDERMERE

Mrs. Erlynne!

[Every one starts and turns round. Lady Windermere slips out from behind the curtain and glides from the room L.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

I am afraid I took your wife's fan in mistake for my own, when I was leaving your house to-night. I am so sorry.

[Takes fan from him. Lord Windermere looks at her in contempt. Lord Darling-ton in mingled astonishment and anger. Lord Augustus turns away. The other men smile at each other.]

Act Drop.

142 FOURTH ACT

SCENE—Same as in Act I.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Lying on sofa.] How can I tell him? I can’t tell him. It would kill me. I wonder what happened after I escaped from that horrible room. Perhaps she told them the true reason of her being there, and the real meaning of that—fatal fan of mine. Oh, if he knows—how can I look him in the face again? He would never forgive me. [Touches bell.] How securely one thinks one lives—out of reach of temptation, sin, folly. And then suddenly—Oh! Life is terrible. It rules us, we do not rule it.

[Enter ROSALIE R.]

ROSALIE

Did your ladyship ring for me?
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. LADY WINDERMERE

Yes. Have you found out at what time Lord Windermere came in last night?

ROSALIE

His lordship did not come in till five o'clock.

LADY WINDERMERE

Five o'clock? He knocked at my door this morning, didn't he?

ROSALIE

Yes, my lady—at half-past nine. I told him your ladyship was not awake yet.

LADY WINDERMERE

Did he say anything?

ROSALIE

Something about your ladyship's fan. I didn't quite catch what his lordship said. Has the fan been lost, my lady?
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

I can’t find it, and Parker says it was ACT IV not left in any of the rooms. He has looked in all of them and on the terrace as well.

LADY WINDERMERE

It doesn’t matter. Tell Parker not to trouble. That will do.

[Exit Rosalie.]

LADY WINDERMERE

[Rising.] She is sure to tell him. I can fancy a person doing a wonderful act of self-sacrifice, doing it spontaneously, recklessly, nobly—and afterwards finding out that it costs too much. Why should she hesitate between her ruin and mine? . . . How strange! I would have publicly disgraced her in my own house. She accepts public disgrace in the house of another to save me. . . . There is a bitter irony in things, a bitter irony in the way we talk of good and bad women. . . . Oh, what a lesson! and what a pity that in life we only get our lessons when
LADY WINDERMERÉ’S FAN

ACT IV. they are of no use to us! For even if she doesn’t tell, I must. Oh! the shame of it, the shame of it. To tell it is to live through it all again. Actions are the first tragedy in life, words are the second. Words are perhaps the worst. Words are merciless. . . . Oh! [Starts as LORD WINDERMERÉ enters.]

LORD WINDERMERÉ

[Kisses her.] Margaret—how pale you look!

LADY WINDERMERÉ

I slept very badly.

LORD WINDERMERÉ

[Sitting on sofa with her.] I am so sorry. I came in dreadfully late, and didn’t like to wake you. You are crying, dear.

LADY WINDERMERÉ

Yes, I am crying, for I have something to tell you, Arthur.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV.

LORD WINDERMERE

My dear child, you are not well. You've been doing too much. Let us go away to the country. You'll be all right at Selby. The season is almost over. There is no use staying on. Poor darling! We'll go away to-day, if you like. [Rises.] We can easily catch the 3.40. I'll send a wire to Fannen. [Crosses and sits down at table to write a telegram.]

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes; let us go away to-day. No; I can't go to-day, Arthur. There is some one I must see before I leave town—some one who has been kind to me.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Rising and leaning over sofa.] Kind to you?

LADY WINDERMERE

Far more than that. [Rises and goes to him.] I will tell you, Arthur, but LADY WINDERMERER'S FAN

ACT IV. only love me, love me as you used to love me.

LORD WINDERMERER

Used to? You are not thinking of that wretched woman who came here last night? [Coming round and sitting R. of her.] You don’t still imagine—no, you couldn’t.

LADY WINDERMERER

I don’t. I know now I was wrong and foolish.

LORD WINDERMERER

It was very good of you to receive her last night—but you are never to see her again.

LADY WINDERMERER

Why do you say that? [A pause.]

LORD WINDERMERER

[ Holding her hand. ] Margaret, I thought Mrs. Erlynne was a woman 150 more sinned against than sinning, as the ACT IV. phrase goes. I thought she wanted to be good, to get back into a place that she had lost by a moment’s folly, to lead again a decent life. I believed what she told me—I was mistaken in her. She is bad—as bad as a woman can be.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

Arthur, Arthur, don’t talk so bitterly about any woman. I don’t think now that people can be divided into the good and the bad as though they were two separate races or creations. What are called good women may have terrible things in them, mad moods of recklessness, assertion, jealousy, sin. Bad women, as they are termed, may have in them sorrow, repentance, pity, sacrifice. And I don’t think Mrs. Erlynne a bad woman—I know she’s not.

LORD WINDERMERE

My dear child, the woman’s impossible. No matter what harm she tries to do us,
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. you must never see her again. She is inadmissible anywhere.

LADY WINDERMERE
But I want to see her. I want her to come here.

LORD WINDERMERE Never!

LADY WINDERMERE
She came here once as your guest. She must come now as mine. That is but fair.

LORD WINDERMERE
She should never have come here.

LADY WINDERMERE
[Rising.] It is too late, Arthur, to say that now. [Moves away.]

LORD WINDERMERE
[Rising.] Margaret, if you knew where Mrs. Erlynne went last night, 152
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

after she left this house, you would not act IV.
sit in the same room with her. It was absolutely shameless, the whole thing.

LADY WINDERMERE

Arthur, I can’t bear it any longer. I must tell you. Last night——

[Enter Parker with a tray on which lie Lady Windermere's fan and a card.

PARKER

Mrs. Erlynne has called to return your ladyship’s fan which she took away by mistake last night. Mrs. Erlynne has written a message on the card.

LADY WINDERMERE

Oh, ask Mrs. Erlynne to be kind enough to come up. [Reads card.] Say I shall be very glad to see her.

[Exit Parker.
She wants to see me, Arthur.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Takes card and looks at it.] Margaret,
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. I beg you not to. Let me see her first, at any rate. She’s a very dangerous woman. She is the most dangerous woman I know. You don’t realise what you’re doing.

LADY WINDERMERE

It is right that I should see her.

LORD WINDERMERE

My child, you may be on the brink of a great sorrow. Don’t go to meet it. It is absolutely necessary that I should see her before you do.

LADY WINDERMERE

Why should it be necessary?

[Enter Parker.]

PARKER

Mrs. Erlynne.

[Enter Mrs. Erlynne.]

[Exit Parker.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

How do you do, Lady Windermere?
LADY WINDERMEREE'S FAN

[To Lord Windermere.] How do you act. do? Do you know, Lady Windermere, I am so sorry about your fan. I can’t imagine how I made such a silly mistake. Most stupid of me. And as I was driving in your direction, I thought I would take the opportunity of returning your property in person with many apologies for my carelessness, and of bidding you good-bye.

LADY WINDERMEREE

Good-bye? [Moves towards sofa with Mrs. Erlynne and sits down beside her.] Are you going away, then, Mrs. Erlynne?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes; I am going to live abroad again. The English climate doesn’t suit me. My—heart is affected here, and that I don’t like. I prefer living in the south. London is too full of fogs and—and serious people, Lord Windermere. Whether the fogs produce the serious ACT IV. people or whether the serious people produce the fogs, I don’t know, but the whole thing rather gets on my nerves, and so I'm leaving this afternoon by the Club Train.

LADY WINDERMERE

This afternoon? But I wanted so much to come and see you.

MRS. ERLYNNE

How kind of you! But I am afraid I have to go.

LADY WINDERMERE

Shall I never see you again, Mrs. Erlynne?

MRS. ERLYNNE

I am afraid not. Our lives lie too far apart. But there is a little thing I would like you to do for me. I want a photograph of you, Lady Windermere—would you give me one? You don’t know how gratified I should be.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LADY WINDERMERE

Oh, with pleasure. There is one on that table. I’ll show it to you. [Goes across to the table.]

LORD WINDERMERE

[Coming up to MRS. ERLYNNE and speaking in a low voice.] It is monstrous your intruding yourself here after your conduct last night.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[With an amused smile.] My dear Windermere, manners before morals!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Returning.] I’m afraid it is very flattering—I am not so pretty as that. [Showing photograph.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

You are much prettier. But haven’t you got one of yourself with your little boy?

157
LADY WINDERMEREE'S FAN

ACT IV. LADY WINDERMEREE

I have. Would you prefer one of those?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes.

LADY WINDERMEREE

I'll go and get it for you, if you'll excuse me for a moment. I have one upstairs.

MRS. ERLYNNE

So sorry, Lady Windermere, to give you so much trouble.

LADY WINDERMEREE

[Moves to door R.] No trouble at all, Mrs. Erlynne.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Thanks so much.

[Exit LADY WINDERMEREE R.]

You seem rather out of temper this morning, Windermere. Why should you be? Margaret and I get on charmingly together.
LADY WINDERMERÉ'S FAN

LORD WINDERMERÉ

I can't bear to see you with her. Besides, you have not told me the truth, Mrs. Erlynne.

MRS. ERLYNNE

I have not told her the truth, you mean.

LORD WINDERMERÉ

[Standing C.] I sometimes wish you had. I should have been spared then the misery, the anxiety, the annoyance of the last six months. But rather than my wife should know—that the mother whom she was taught to consider as dead, the mother whom she has mourned as dead, is living—a divorced woman, going about under an assumed name, a bad woman preying upon life, as I know you now to be—rather than that, I was ready to supply you with money to pay
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. bill after bill, extravagance after extravagance, to risk what occurred yesterday, the first quarrel I have ever had with my wife. You don't understand what that means to me. How could you? But I tell you that the only bitter words that ever came from those sweet lips of hers were on your account, and I hate to see you next her. You sully the innocence that is in her. [Moves L.C.] And then I used to think that with all your faults you were frank and honest. You are not.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Why do you say that?

LORD WINDERMERE

You made me get you an invitation to my wife's ball.

MRS. ERLYNNE

For my daughter's ball—yes.

160
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

LORD WINDERMERE ACT IV

You came, and within an hour of your leaving the house you are found in a man’s rooms—you are disgraced before every one. [Goes up stage C.]

MRS. ERLYNNE
Yes.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Turning round on her.] Therefore I have a right to look upon you as what you are—a worthless, vicious woman. I have the right to tell you never to enter this house, never to attempt to come near my wife——

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Coldly.] My daughter, you mean.

LORD WINDERMERE

You have no right to claim her as your daughter. You left her, abandoned her when she was but a child in the cradle, abandoned her for your lover, who abandoned you in turn.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. MRS. ERLYNNE

[Rising.] Do you count that to his credit, Lord Windermere—or to mine?

LORD WINDERMERE

To his, now that I know you.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Take care—you had better be careful.

LORD WINDERMERE

Oh, I am not going to mince words for you. I know you thoroughly.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Looking steadily at him.] I question that.

LORD WINDERMERE

I do know you. For twenty years of your life you lived without your child, without a thought of your child. One day you read in the papers that she had married a rich man. You saw your hideous chance. You knew that to spare her the ignominy of learning that a 16?
woman like you was her mother, I would act iv. endure anything. You began your blackmailing.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Shrugging her shoulders.] Don't use ugly words, Windermere. They are vulgar. I saw my chance, it is true, and took it.

LORD WINDERMERE

Yes, you took it—and spoiled it all last night by being found out.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[With a strange smile.] You are quite right, I spoiled it all last night.

LORD WINDERMERE

And as for your blunder in taking my wife's fan from here and then leaving it about in Darlington's rooms, it is unpardonable. I can't bear the sight of it now. I shall never let my wife use it again. The thing is soiled for me. You
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. should have kept it and not brought it back.

MRS. ERLYNNE

I think I shall keep it. [Goes up.] It’s extremely pretty. [Takes up fan.] I shall ask Margaret to give it to me.

LORD WINDERMERE

I hope my wife will give it you.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Oh, I’m sure she will have no objection.

LORD WINDERMERE

I wish that at the same time she would give you a miniature she kisses every night before she prays—It’s the miniature of a young innocent-looking girl with beautiful dark hair.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Ah, yes, I remember. How long ago that seems! [Goes to sofa and sits down.]
LADY WINDERMERE’S FAN

It was done before I was married. Dark ACT IV hair and an innocent expression were the fashion then, Windermere! [A pause.]

LORD WINDERMERE

What do you mean by coming here this morning? What is your object? [Crossing L.C. and sitting.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

[With a note of irony in her voice.] To bid good-bye to my dear daughter, of course. [LORD WINDERMERE bites his under lip in anger. MRS. ERLYNNE looks at him, and her voice and manner become serious. In her accents as she talks there is a note of deep tragedy. For a moment she reveals herself.] Oh, don’t imagine I am going to have a pathetic scene with her, weep on her neck and tell her who I am, and all that kind of thing. I have no ambition to play the part of a mother. Only once in my life have I known a mother’s feelings. That was last night. They were terrible — they ACT IV. made me suffer—they made me suffer too much. For twenty years, as you say, I have lived childless,—I want to live childless still. [Hiding her feelings with a trivial laugh.] Besides, my dear Windermere, how on earth could I pose as a mother with a grown-up daughter? Margaret is twenty-one, and I have never admitted that I am more than twenty-nine, or thirty at the most. Twenty-nine when there are pink shades, thirty when there are not. So you see what difficulties it would involve. No, as far as I am concerned, let your wife cherish the memory of this dead, stainless mother. Why should I interfere with her illusions? I find it hard enough to keep my own. I lost one illusion last night. I thought I had no heart. I find I have, and a heart doesn’t suit me, Windermere. Somehow it doesn’t go with modern dress. It makes one look old. [Takes up hand-mirror from table and looks into it.] And it spoils one’s career at critical moments.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

LORD WINDERMERE

You fill me with horror—with absolute horror.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Rising.] I suppose, Windermere, you would like me to retire into a convent, or become a hospital nurse, or something of that kind, as people do in silly modern novels. That is stupid of you, Arthur; in real life we don't do such things—not as long as we have any good looks left, at any rate. No—what consoles one nowadays is not repentance, but pleasure. Repentance is quite out of date. And besides, if a woman really repents, she has to go to a bad dressmaker, otherwise no one believes in her. And nothing in the world would induce me to do that. No; I am going to pass entirely out of your two lives. My coming into them has been a mistake—I discovered that last night.

A fatal mistake.

167
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. MRS. ERLYNNE

[Smiling.] Almost fatal.

LORD WINDERMERE

I am sorry now I did not tell my wife the whole thing at once.

MRS. ERLYNNE

I regret my bad actions. You regret your good ones—that is the difference between us.

LORD WINDERMERE

I don't trust you. I will tell my wife. It's better for her to know, and from me. It will cause her infinite pain—it will humiliate her terribly, but it's right that she should know.

MRS. ERLYNNE

You propose to tell her?

LORD WINDERMERE

I am going to tell her.
[Going up to him.] If you do, I will make my name so infamous that it will mar every moment of her life. It will ruin her, and make her wretched. If you dare to tell her, there is no depth of degradation I will not sink to, no pit of shame I will not enter. You shall not tell her—I forbid you.

LORD WINDERMERE
Why?

MRS. ERLYNNE
[After a pause.] If I said to you that I cared for her, perhaps loved her even—you would sneer at me, wouldn’t you?

LORD WINDERMERE
I should feel it was not true. A mother’s love means devotion, unselfishness, sacrifice. What could you know of such things?
ACT IV. MRS. ERLYNNE

You are right. What could I know of such things? Don't let us talk any more about it—as for telling my daughter who I am, that I do not allow. It is my secret, it is not yours. If I make up my mind to tell her, and I think I will, I shall tell her before I leave the house—if not, I shall never tell her.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Angrily.] Then let me beg of you to leave our house at once. I will make your excuses to Margaret.

[Enter LADY WINDERMERE R. She goes over to MRS. ERLYNNE with the photograph in her hand. LORD WINDERMERE moves to back of sofa, and anxiously watches MRS. ERLYNNE as the scene progresses.]

LADY WINDERMERE

I am so sorry, Mrs. Erlynne, to have kept you waiting. I couldn't find the photograph anywhere. At last I discovered it in my husband's dressing-room ACT IV—he had stolen it.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Takes the photograph from her and looks at it.] I am not surprised—it is charming. [Goes over to sofa with LADY WINDERMERE, and sits down beside her. Looks again at the photograph.] And so that is your little boy! What is he called?

LADY WINDERMERE

Gerard, after my dear father.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Laying the photograph down.] Really?

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes. If it had been a girl, I would have called it after my mother. My mother had the same name as myself, Margaret.

MRS. ERLYNNE

My name is Margaret too.
LADY WINDERMERES'S FAN

ACT IV. LADY WINDERMERER

Indeed!

MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes. [Pause.] You are devoted to your mother's memory, Lady Windermere, your husband tells me.

LADY WINDERMERER

We all have ideals in life. At least we all should have. Mine is my mother.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Ideals are dangerous things. Realities are better. They wound, but they're better.

LADY WINDERMERER

[Shaking her head.] If I lost my ideals, I should lose everything.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Everything?

LADY WINDERMERER

Yes. [Pause.]

172
MRS. ERLYNNE

Did your father often speak to you of your mother?

LADY WINDERMERE

No, it gave him too much pain. He told me how my mother had died a few months after I was born. His eyes filled with tears as he spoke. Then he begged me never to mention her name to him again. It made him suffer even to hear it. My father—my father really died of a broken heart. His was the most ruined life I know.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Rising.] I am afraid I must go now, Lady Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Rising.] Oh no, don’t.

MRS. ERLYNNE

I think I had better. My carriage must have come back by this time. I sent it to Lady Jedburgh’s with a note.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. LADY WINDERMERE

Arthur, would you mind seeing if Mrs. Erlynne's carriage has come back?

MRS. ERLYNNE

Pray don't trouble, Lord Windermere.

LADY WINDERMERE

Yes, Arthur, do go, please.

[LORD WINDERMERE hesitates for a moment and looks at MRS. ERLYNNE. She remains quite impassive. He leaves the room.]

[To MRS. ERLYNNE.] Oh! What am I to say to you? You saved me last night? [Goes towards her.]

MRS. ERLYNNE

Hush—don't speak of it.

LADY WINDERMERE

I must speak of it. I can't let you think that I am going to accept this sacrifice. I am not. It is too great. I am going to tell my husband everything. It is my duty.
MRS. ERLYNNE

It is not your duty—at least you have duties to others besides him. You say you owe me something?

LADY WINDERMERE

I owe you everything.

MRS. ERLYNNE

Then pay your debt by silence. That is the only way in which it can be paid. Don't spoil the one good thing I have done in my life by telling it to any one. Promise me that what passed last night will remain a secret between us. You must not bring misery into your husband's life. Why spoil his love? You must not spoil it. Love is easily killed. Oh! how easily love is killed. Pledge me your word, Lady Windermere, that you will never tell him. I insist upon it.

LADY WINDERMERE

[With bowed head.] It is your will, not mine.
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. MRS. ERLYNNE

Yes, it is my will. And never forget your child—I like to think of you as a mother. I like you to think of yourself as one.

LADY WINDERMERE

[Looking up.] I always will now. Only once in my life I have forgotten my own mother—that was last night. Oh, if I had remembered her I should not have been so foolish, so wicked.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[With a slight shudder.] Hush, last night is quite over.
[Enter LORD WINDERMERE.]

LORD WINDERMERE

Your carriage has not come back yet, Mrs. Erlynne.

MRS. ERLYNNE

It makes no matter. I'll take a hansom. There is nothing in the world so respectable as a good Shrewsbury and ACT IV. Talbot. And now, dear Lady Windermere, I am afraid it is really good-bye. [Moves up C.] Oh, I remember. You’ll think me absurd, but do you know I’ve taken a great fancy to this fan that I was silly enough to run away with last night from your ball. Now, I wonder would you give it to me? Lord Windermere says you may. I know it is his present.

LADY WINDERMERE

Oh, certainly, if it will give you any pleasure. But it has my name on it. It has ‘Margaret’ on it.

MRS. ERLYNNE

But we have the same Christian name.

LADY WINDERMERE

Oh, I forgot. Of course, do have it. What a wonderful chance our names being the same!

Lord Augustus Lorton. Mrs. Erlynne's carriage has come.

LORD AUGUSTUS

Good morning, dear boy. Good morning, Lady Windermere. [Sees MRS. ERLYNNE.] Mrs. Erlynne!

MRS. ERLYNNE

How do you do, Lord Augustus? Are you quite well this morning?

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Coldly.] Quite well, thank you, Mrs. Erlynne.

LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

MRS. ERLYNNE

You don't look at all well, Lord Augustus. You stop up too late—it is so bad for you. You really should take more care of yourself. Good-bye, Lord Windermere. [Goes towards door with a bow to LORD AUGUSTUS. Suddenly smiles and looks back at him.] Lord Augustus! Won't you see me to my carriage? You might carry the fan.

LORD WINDERMERE

Allow me!

MRS. ERLYNNE

No; I want Lord Augustus. I have a special message for the dear Duchess. Won't you carry the fan, Lord Augustus?

LORD AUGUSTUS

If you really desire it, Mrs. Erlynne.

MRS. ERLYNNE

[Laughing.] Of course I do. You'll carry it so gracefully. You would carry ACT IV. off anything gracefully, dear Lord Augustus.

[When she reaches the door she looks back for a moment at LADY WINDERMERE. Their eyes meet. Then she turns, and exit C. followed by LORD AUGUSTUS.]

LADY WINDERMERE

You will never speak against Mrs. Erlynne again, Arthur, will you?

LORD WINDERMERE

[Gravely.] She is better than one thought her.

LADY WINDERMERE

She is better than I am.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Smiling as he strokes her hair.] Child, you and she belong to different worlds. Into your world evil has never entered.

LADY WINDERMERE

Don't say that, Arthur. There is the 180 same world for all of us, and good and evil, sin and innocence, go through it hand in hand. To shut one's eyes to half of life that one may live securely is as though one blinded oneself that one might walk with more safety in a land of pit and precipice.

LORD WINDERMERE

[Moves down with her.] Darling, why do you say that?

LADY WINDERMERE

[Sits on sofa.] Because I, who had shut my eyes to life, came to the brink. And one who had separated us——

LORD WINDERMERE

We were never separated.

LADY WINDERMERE

We never must be again. O Arthur, don't love me less, and I will trust you more. I will trust you absolutely. Let
LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN

ACT IV. Us go to Selby. In the Rose Garden at Selby the roses are white and red.

[Enter Lord Augustus C.]

LORD AUGUSTUS

Arthur, she has explained everything!

[Lady Windermere looks horribly frightened at this. Lord Windermere starts. Lord Augustus takes Windermere by the arm and brings him to front of stage. He talks rapidly and in a low voice. Lady Windermere stands watching them in terror.]

My dear fellow, she has explained every demmed thing. We all wronged her immensely. It was entirely for my sake she went to Darlington's rooms. Called first at the Club—fact is, wanted to put me out of suspense—and being told I had gone on—followed—naturally frightened when she heard a lot of us coming in—retired to another room—I assure you, most gratifying to me, the whole thing. We all behaved brutally to her. She is just the woman for me. Suits me down act iv. to the ground. All the conditions she makes are that we live entirely out of England. A very good thing too. Demmed clubs, demmed climate, demmed cooks, demmed everything. Sick of it all!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Frightened.] Has Mrs. Erlynne——?

LORD AUGUSTUS

[Advancing towards her with a low bow.] Yes, Lady Windermere—Mrs. Erlynne has done me the honour of accepting my hand.

LORD WINDERMERE

Well, you are certainly marrying a very clever woman!

LADY WINDERMERE

[Taking her husband's hand.] Ah, you're marrying a very good woman!

FIRST ACT

SCENE

Morning-room in Algernon's flat in Half-Moon Street. The room is luxuriously and artistically furnished. The sound of a piano is heard in the adjoining room.

[Lane is arranging afternoon tea on the table, and after the music has ceased, Algernon enters.]

ALGERNON

Did you hear what I was playing, Lane?

LANE

I didn't think it polite to listen, sir.

ALGERNON

I'm sorry for that, for your sake. I don't play accurately—any one can play accurately—but I play with wonderful expression. As far as the piano is concerned, sentiment is my forte. I keep science for Life.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. LANE

Yes, sir.

ALGERNON

And, speaking of the science of Life, have you got the cucumber sandwiches cut for Lady Bracknell?

LANE

Yes, sir. [Hands them on a salver.]

ALGERNON

[Inspects them, takes two, and sits down on the sofa.] Oh! . . . by the way, Lane, I see from your book that on Thursday night, when Lord Shoreman and Mr. Worthing were dining with me, eight bottles of champagne are entered as having been consumed.

LANE

Yes, sir; eight bottles and a pint.

ALGERNON

Why is it that at a bachelor's establishment the servants invariably drink the champagne? I ask merely for information.
I attribute it to the superior quality of the wine, sir. I have often observed that in married households the champagne is rarely of a first-rate brand.

ALGERNON

Good Heavens! Is marriage so demoralising as that?

LANE

I believe it is a very pleasant state, sir. I have had very little experience of it myself up to the present. I have only been married once. That was in consequence of a misunderstanding between myself and a young person.

ALGERNON

[Languidly.] I don’t know that I am much interested in your family life, Lane.

LANE

No, sir; it is not a very interesting subject. I never think of it myself.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I  ALGERNON
    Very natural, I am sure. That will do, Lane, thank you.

LANE
    Thank you, sir.  [LANE goes out.]

ALGERNON
    Lane's views on marriage seem somewhat lax. Really, if the lower orders don't set us a good example, what on earth is the use of them? They seem, as a class, to have absolutely no sense of moral responsibility.
    [Enter LANE.]

LANE
    Mr. Ernest Worthing.
    [Enter JACK.]
    [LANE goes out.]

ALGERNON
    How are you, my dear Ernest? What brings you up to town?

JACK
    Oh, pleasure, pleasure! What else should bring one anywhere? Eating as usual, I see, Algy!
ALGERNON
[Stiffly.] I believe it is customary in good society to take some slight refreshment at five o’clock. Where have you been since last Thursday?

JACK
[Sitting down on the sofa.] In the country.

ALGERNON
What on earth do you do there?

JACK
[Pulling off his gloves.] When one is in town one amuses oneself. When one is in the country one amuses other people. It is excessively boring.

ALGERNON
And who are the people you amuse?

JACK
[Airily.] Oh, neighbours, neighbours.

ALGERNON
Got nice neighbours in your part of Shropshire?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. JACK
Perfectly horrid! Never speak to one of them.

ALGERNON
How immensely you must amuse them! [Goes over and takes sandwich.] By the way, Shropshire is your county, is it not?

JACK
Eh? Shropshire? Yes, of course. Hallo! Why all these cups? Why cucumber sandwiches? Why such reckless extravagance in one so young? Who is coming to tea?

ALGERNON
Oh! merely Aunt Augusta and Gwendolen.

JACK
How perfectly delightful!

ALGERNON
Yes, that is all very well; but I am afraid Aunt Augusta won't quite approve of your being here.
BEING EARNEST

ACT I.

JACK

May I ask why?

ALGERNON

My dear fellow, the way you flirt with Gwendolen is perfectly disgraceful. It is almost as bad as the way Gwendolen flirts with you.

JACK

I am in love with Gwendolen. I have come up to town expressly to propose to her.

ALGERNON

I thought you had come up for pleasure? . . . I call that business.

JACK

How utterly unromantic you are!

ALGERNON

I really don't see anything romantic in proposing. It is very romantic to be in love. But there is nothing romantic about a definite proposal. Why, one may be accepted. One usually is, I believe. Then the excitement is all over. The very
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. essence of romance is uncertainty. If ever I get married, I'll certainly try to forget the fact.

JACK
I have no doubt about that, dear Algy. The Divorce Court was specially invented for people whose memories are so curiously constituted.

ALGERNON
Oh! there is no use speculating on that subject. Divorces are made in Heaven [JACK puts out his hand to take a sandwich. ALGERNON at once interferes.] Please don't touch the cucumber sandwiches. They are ordered specially for Aunt Augusta. [Takes one and eats it.]

JACK
Well, you have been eating them all the time.

ALGERNON
That is quite a different matter. She is my aunt. [Takes plate from below.] Have some bread and butter. The bread and... butter is for Gwendolen. Gwendolen is Act I devoted to bread and butter.

JACK

[Advancing to table and helping himself.] And very good bread and butter it is too.

ALGERNON

Well, my dear fellow, you need not eat as if you were going to eat it all. You behave as if you were married to her already. You are not married to her already, and I don't think you ever will be.

JACK

Why on earth do you say that?

ALGERNON

Well, in the first place girls never marry the men they flirt with. Girls don't think it right.

JACK

Oh, that is nonsense!

ALGERNON

It isn't. It is a great truth. It accounts for the extraordinary number of bachelors.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. that one sees all over the place. In the second place, I don't give my consent.

JACK
Your consent!

ALGERNON
My dear fellow, Gwendolen is my first cousin. And before I allow you to marry her, you will have to clear up the whole question of Cecily. [Rings bell.]

JACK
Cecily! What on earth do you mean? What do you mean, Algy, by Cecily! I don't know any one of the name of Cecily.

[Enter LANE.]

ALGERNON
Bring me that cigarette case Mr. Worthing left in the smoking-room the last time he dined here.

LANE
Yes, sir. [LANE goes out.]

JACK
Do you mean to say you have had my 10 cigarette case all this time? I wish to act in goodness you had let me know. I have been writing frantic letters to Scotland Yard about it. I was very nearly offering a large reward.

ALGERNON

Well, I wish you would offer one. I happen to be more than usually hard up.

JACK

There is no good offering a large reward now that the thing is found.

[Enter LANE with the cigarette case on a salver. ALGERNON takes it at once. LANE goes out.]

ALGERNON

I think that is rather mean of you,
Ernest, I must say. [Opens case and examines it.] However, it makes no matter, for, now that I look at the inscription inside, I find that the thing isn't yours after all.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. JACK

Of course it's mine. [Moving to him.] You have seen me with it a hundred times, and you have no right whatsoever to read what is written inside. It is a very un-gentlemanly thing to read a private cigarette case.

ALGERNON

Oh! it is absurd to have a hard and fast rule about what one should read and what one shouldn't. More than half of modern culture depends on what one shouldn't read.

JACK

I am quite aware of the fact, and I don't propose to discuss modern culture. It isn't the sort of thing one should talk of in private. I simply want my cigarette case back.

ALGERNON

Yes; but this isn't your cigarette case. This cigarette case is a present from some one of the name of Cecily, and you said you didn't know any one of that name.
BEING EARNEST

JACK

Well, if you want to know, Cecily happens to be my aunt.

ALGERNON

Your aunt!

JACK

Yes. Charming old lady she is, too. Lives at Tunbridge Wells. Just give it back to me, Algy.

ALGERNON

[Retreating to back of sofa.] But why does she call herself little Cecily if she is your aunt and lives at Tunbridge Wells? [Reading.] ‘From little Cecily with her fondest love.’

JACK

[Moving to sofa and kneeling upon it.] My dear fellow, what on earth is there in that? Some aunts are tall, some aunts are not tall. That is a matter that surely an aunt may be allowed to decide for herself. You seem to think that every aunt should be exactly like your aunt! That is absurd!
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. For Heaven's sake give me back my cigarette case. [Follows ALGERNON round the room.]

ALGERNON

Yes. But why does your aunt call you her uncle? 'From little Cecily, with her fondest love to her dear Uncle Jack.' There is no objection, I admit, to an aunt being a small aunt, but why an aunt, no matter what her size may be, should call her own nephew her uncle, I can't quite make out. Besides, your name isn't Jack at all; it is Ernest.

JACK

It isn't Ernest; it's Jack.

ALGERNON

You have always told me it was Ernest. I have introduced you to everyone as Ernest. You answer to the name of Ernest. You look as if your name was Ernest. You are the most earnest-looking person I ever saw in my life. It is perfectly absurd your saying that your name isn't Ernest. It's on your cards. Here is one of ACT I them. [Taking it from case.] 'Mr. Ernest Worthing, B. 4, The Albany.' I'll keep this as a proof that your name is Ernest if ever you attempt to deny it to me, or to Gwendolen, or to any one else. [Puts the card in his pocket.]
BEING EARNEST

JACK

Well, my name is Ernest in town and Jack in the country, and the cigarette case was given to me in the country.

ALGERNON

Yes, but that does not account for the fact that your small Aunt Cecily, who lives at Tunbridge Wells, calls you her dear uncle. Come, old boy, you had much better have the thing out at once.

JACK

My dear Algy, you talk exactly as if you were a dentist. It is very vulgar to talk like a dentist when one isn't a dentist. It produces a false impression.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. ALGERNON

Well, that is exactly what dentists always do. Now, go on! Tell me the whole thing. I may mention that I have always suspected you of being a confirmed and secret Bunburyist; and I am quite sure of it now.

JACK

Bunburyist? What on earth do you mean by a Bunburyist?

ALGERNON

I'll reveal to you the meaning of that incomparable expression as soon as you are kind enough to inform me why you are Ernest in town and Jack in the country.

JACK

Well, produce my cigarette case first.

ALGERNON

Here it is. [Hands cigarette case.] Now produce your explanation, and pray make it improbable. [Sits on sofa.]
BEING EARNEST

JACK

My dear fellow, there is nothing improbable about my explanation at all. In fact it’s perfectly ordinary. Old Mr. Thomas Cardew, who adopted me when I was a little boy, made me in his will guardian to his grand-daughter, Miss Cecily Cardew. Cecily, who addresses me as her uncle from motives of respect that you could not possibly appreciate, lives at my place in the country under the charge of her admirable governess, Miss Prism.

ALGERNON

Where is that place in the country, by the way?

JACK

That is nothing to you, dear boy. You are not going to be invited... I may tell you candidly that the place is not in Shropshire.

ALGERNON

I suspected that, my dear fellow! I have Bunburyed all over Shropshire on two
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. separate occasions. Now, go on. Why are you Ernest in town and Jack in the country?

JACK

My dear Algy, I don't know whether you will be able to understand my real motives. You are hardly serious enough. When one is placed in the position of guardian, one has to adopt a very high moral tone on all subjects. It's one's duty to do so. And as a high moral tone can hardly be said to conduce very much to either one's health or one's happiness, in order to get up to town I have always pretended to have a younger brother of the name of Ernest, who lives in the Albany, and gets into the most dreadful scrapes. That, my dear Algy, is the whole truth pure and simple.

ALGERNON

The truth is rarely pure and never simple. Modern life would be very tedious if it were either, and modern literature a complete impossibility!
BEING EARNEST

JACK

That wouldn’t be at all a bad thing.

ALGERNON

 Literary criticism is not your forte, my dear fellow. Don’t try it. You should leave that to people who haven’t been at a University. They do it so well in the daily papers. What you really are is a Bunburyist. I was quite right in saying you were a Bunburyist. You are one of the most advanced Bunburyists I know.

JACK

What on earth do you mean?

ALGERNON

You have invented a very useful younger brother called Ernest, in order that you may be able to come up to town as often as you like. I have invented an invaluable permanent invalid called Bunbury, in order that I may be able to go down into the country whenever I choose. Bunbury is perfectly invaluable. If it wasn’t for Bunbury’s extraordinary bad health, for instance, I wouldn't be able to dine with you at Willis's to-night, for I have been really engaged to Aunt Augusta for more than a week.

JACK
I haven't asked you to dine with me anywhere to-night.

ALGERNON
I know. You are absurdly careless about sending out invitations. It is very foolish of you. Nothing annoys people so much as not receiving invitations.

JACK
You had much better dine with your Aunt Augusta.

ALGERNON
I haven't the smallest intention of doing anything of the kind. To begin with, I dined there on Monday, and once a week is quite enough to dine with one's own relations. In the second place, whenever I do dine there I am always treated as a member of the family, and sent down with 20 either no woman at all, or two. In the Act I third place, I know perfectly well whom she will place me next to, to-night. She will place me next Mary Farquhar, who always flirts with her own husband across the dinner-table. That is not very pleasant. Indeed, it is not even decent... and that sort of thing is enormously on the increase. The amount of women in London who flirt with their own husbands is perfectly scandalous. It looks so bad. It is simply washing one's clean linen in public. Besides, now that I know you to be a confirmed Bunburyist I naturally want to talk to you about Bunburying. I want to tell you the rules.

JACK

I'm not a Bunburyist at all. If Gwendolen accepts me, I am going to kill my brother, indeed I think I'll kill him in any case. Cecily is a little too much interested in him. It is rather a bore. So I am going to get rid of Ernest. And I strongly advise you to do the same with Mr. . . .
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. with your invalid friend who has the absurd name.

ALGERNON

Nothing will induce me to part with Bunbury, and if you ever get married, which seems to me extremely problematic, you will be very glad to know Bunbury. A man who marries without knowing Bunbury has a very tedious time of it.

JACK

That is nonsense. If I marry a charming girl like Gwendolen, and she is the only girl I ever saw in my life that I would marry, I certainly won’t want to know Bunbury.

ALGERNON

Then your wife will. You don’t seem to realise, that in married life three is company and two is none.

JACK

[Sententiously.] That, my dear young friend, is the theory that the corrupt
BEING EARNEST

French Drama has been propounding for ACT I. the last fifty years.

ALGERNON

Yes; and that the happy English home has proved in half the time.

JACK

For heaven's sake, don't try to be cynical. It's perfectly easy to be cynical.

ALGERNON

My dear fellow, it isn't easy to be anything nowadays. There's such a lot of beastly competition about. [The sound of an electric bell is heard.] Ah! that must be Aunt Augusta. Only relatives, or creditors, ever ring in that Wagnerian manner. Now, if I get her out of the way for ten minutes, so that you can have an opportunity for proposing to Gwendolen, may I dine with you to-night at Willis's?

JACK

I suppose so, if you want to.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. ALGERNON

Yes, but you must be serious about it. I hate people who are not serious about meals. It is so shallow of them.

[Enter LANE.]

LANE

Lady Bracknell and Miss Fairfax.

[ALGERNON goes forward to meet them. Enter LADY BRACKNELL and GWENDOLEN.]

LADY BRACKNELL

Good afternoon, dear Algernon, I hope you are behaving very well.

ALGERNON

I'm feeling very well, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL

That's not quite the same thing. In fact the two things rarely go together.

[Sees JACK and bows to him with icy coldness.]

ALGERNON

[To GWENDOLEN.] Dear me, you are smart!
I am always smart! Am I not, Mr. Worthing?

You're quite perfect, Miss Fairfax.

Oh! I hope I am not that. It would leave no room for developments, and I intend to develop in many directions.

[GWENDOLEN and JACK sit down together in the corner.]

I'm sorry if we are a little late, Algernon, but I was obliged to call on dear Lady Harbury. I hadn't been there since her poor husband's death. I never saw a woman so altered; she looks quite twenty years younger. And now I'll have a cup of tea, and one of those nice cucumber sandwiches you promised me.

Certainly, Aunt Augusta. [Goes over to tea-table.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. LADY BRACKNELL

Won't you come and sit here, Gwendolen?

GWENDOLEN

Thanks, mamma, I'm quite comfortable where I am.

ALGERNON

[Picking up empty plate in horror.] Good heavens! Lane! Why are there no cucumber sandwiches? I ordered them specially.

LANE

[Gravely.] There were no cucumbers in the market this morning, sir. I went down twice.

ALGERNON

No cucumbers!

LANE

No, sir. Not even for ready money.

ALGERNON

That will do, Lane, thank you.
BEING EARNEST

LANE

Thank you, sir. [Goes out.]

ALGERNON

I am greatly distressed, Aunt Augusta, about there being no cucumbers, not even for ready money.

LADY BRACKNELL

It really makes no matter, Algernon. I had some crumpets with Lady Harbury, who seems to me to be living entirely for pleasure now.

ALGERNON

I hear her hair has turned quite gold from grief.

LADY BRACKNELL

It certainly has changed its colour. From what cause I, of course, cannot say. [ALGERNON crosses and hands tea.] Thank you. I’ve quite a treat for you to-night, Algernon. I am going to send you down with Mary Farquhar. She is such a nice woman, and so attentive to her husband. It’s delightful to watch them.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. ALGERNON

I am afraid, Aunt Augusta, I shall have to give up the pleasure of dining with you to-night after all.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Frowning.] I hope not, Algernon. It would put my table completely out. Your uncle would have to dine upstairs. Fortunately he is accustomed to that.

ALGERNON

It is a great bore, and, I need hardly say, a terrible disappointment to me, but the fact is I have just had a telegram to say that my poor friend Bunbury is very ill again. [Exchanges glances with Jack.] They seem to think I should be with him.

LADY BRACKNELL

It is very strange. This Mr. Bunbury seems to suffer from curiously bad health.

ALGERNON

Yes; poor Bunbury is a dreadful invalid.
Well, I must say, Algernon, that I think it is high time that Mr. Bunbury made up his mind whether he was going to live or to die. This shilly-shallying with the question is absurd. Nor do I in any way approve of the modern sympathy with invalids. I consider it morbid. Illness of any kind is hardly a thing to be encouraged in others. Health is the primary duty of life. I am always telling that to your poor uncle, but he never seems to take much notice... as far as any improvement in his ailments goes. I should be much obliged if you would ask Mr. Bunbury, from me, to be kind enough not to have a relapse on Saturday, for I rely on you to arrange my music for me. It is my last reception, and one wants something that will encourage conversation, particularly at the end of the season when every one has practically said whatever they had to say, which, in most cases, was probably not much.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. ALGERNON

I'll speak to Bunbury, Aunt Augusta, if he is still conscious, and I think I can promise you he'll be all right by Saturday. Of course the music is a great difficulty. You see, if one plays good music, people don't listen, and if one plays bad music people don't talk. But I'll run over the programme I've drawn out, if you will kindly come into the next room for a moment.

LADY BRACKNELL

Thank you, Algernon. It is very thoughtful of you. [Rising, and following ALGERNON.] I'm sure the programme will be delightful, after a few expurgations. French songs I cannot possibly allow. People always seem to think that they are improper, and either look shocked, which is vulgar, or laugh, which is worse. But German sounds a thoroughly respectable language, and indeed, I believe is so. Gwendolen, you will accompany me.
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

Certainly, mamma.

[LADY BRACKNELL and ALGERNON go into the music-room, GWENDOLEN remains behind.]

JACK

Charming day it has been, Miss Fairfax.

GWENDOLEN

Pray don’t talk to me about the weather, Mr. Worthing. Whenever people talk to me about the weather, I always feel quite certain that they mean something else. And that makes me so nervous.

JACK

I do mean something else.

GWENDOLEN

I thought so. In fact, I am never wrong.

JACK

And I would like to be allowed to take advantage of Lady Bracknell’s temporary absence . . .
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. GWENDOLEN

I would certainly advise you to do so. Mamma has a way of coming back suddenly into a room that I have often had to speak to her about.

JACK

[Nervously.] Miss Fairfax, ever since I met you I have admired you more than any girl . . . I have ever met since . . . I met you.

GWENDOLEN

Yes, I am quite well aware of the fact. And I often wish that in public, at any rate, you had been more demonstrative. For me you have always had an irresistible fascination. Even before I met you I was far from indifferent to you. [JACK looks at her in amazement.] We live, as I hope you know, Mr. Worthing, in an age of ideals. The fact is constantly mentioned in the more expensive monthly magazines, and has reached the provincial pulpits, I am told; and my ideal has always been to love some one of the name of Ernest.
BEING EARNEST

There is something in that name that inspires absolute confidence. The moment Algernon first mentioned to me that he had a friend called Ernest, I knew I was destined to love you.

JACK
   You really love me, Gwendolen?

GWENDOLEN
   Passionately!

JACK
   Darling! You don’t know how happy you’ve made me.

GWENDOLEN
   My own Ernest!

JACK
   But you don’t really mean to say that you couldn’t love me if my name wasn’t Ernest?

GWENDOLEN
   But your name is Ernest.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. JACK

Yes, I know it is. But supposing it was something else? Do you mean to say you couldn’t love me then?

GWENDOLEN

[Glibly.] Ah! that is clearly a metaphysical speculation, and like most metaphysical speculations has very little reference at all to the actual facts of real life, as we know them.

JACK

Personally, darling, to speak quite candidly, I don’t much care about the name of Ernest. . . . I don’t think the name suits me at all.

GWENDOLEN

It suits you perfectly. It is a divine name. It has a music of its own. It produces vibrations.

JACK

Well, really, Gwendolen, I must say that I think there are lots of other much nicer names. I think Jack, for instance, a ACT I. charming name.

GWENDOLEN

Jack? . . . No, there is very little music in the name Jack, if any at all, indeed. It does not thrill. It produces absolutely no vibrations. . . . I have known several Jacks, and they all, without exception, were more than usually plain. Besides, Jack is a notorious domesticity for John! And I pity any woman who is married to a man called John. She would probably never be allowed to know the entrancing pleasure of a single moment's solitude. The only really safe name is Ernest.

JACK

Gwendolen, I must get christened at once—I mean we must get married at once. There is no time to be lost.

GWENDOLEN

Married, Mr. Worthing?

JACK

[Astounded.] Well . . . surely. You
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. know that I love you, and you led me to believe, Miss Fairfax, that you were not absolutely indifferent to me.

GWENDOLEN
    I adore you. But you haven't proposed to me yet. Nothing has been said at all about marriage. The subject has not even been touched on.

JACK
    Well . . . may I propose to you now?

GWENDOLEN
    I think it would be an admirable opportunity. And to spare you any possible disappointment, Mr. Worthing, I think it only fair to tell you quite frankly beforehand that I am fully determined to accept you.

JACK Gwendolen!

GWENDOLEN
    Yes, Mr. Worthing, what have you got to say to me?
BEING EARNEST

JACK

You know what I have got to say to you.

GWENDOLEN

Yes, but you don't say it.

JACK

Gwendolen, will you marry me? [Goes on his knees.]

GWENDOLEN

Of course I will, darling. How long you have been about it! I am afraid you have had very little experience in how to propose.

JACK

My own one, I have never loved any one in the world but you.

GWENDOLEN

Yes, but men often propose for practice. I know my brother Gerald does. All my girl-friends tell me so. What wonderfully blue eyes you have, Ernest! They are quite, quite, blue. I hope you will always 87

THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. look at me just like that, especially when there are other people present.

[Enter Lady Bracknell.]

LADY BRACKNELL

Mr. Worthing! Rise, sir, from this semi-recumbent posture. It is most indecorous.

GWENDOLEN

Mamma! [He tries to rise; she restrains him.] I must beg you to retire. This is no place for you. Besides, Mr. Worthing has not quite finished yet.

LADY BRACKNELL

Finished what, may I ask?

GWENDOLEN

I am engaged to Mr. Worthing, mamma. [They rise together.]

LADY BRACKNELL

Pardon me, you are not engaged to any one. When you do become engaged to some one, I, or your father, should his health permit him, will inform you of the fact. An engagement should come on a actual young girl as a surprise, pleasant or unpleasant, as the case may be. It is hardly a matter that she could be allowed to arrange for herself. . . . And now I have a few questions to put to you, Mr. Worthing. While I am making these inquiries, you, Gwendolen, will wait for me below in the carriage.

Gwendolen

[Reproachfully.] Mamma!

Lady Bracknell

In the carriage, Gwendolen! [Gwendolen goes to the door. She and Jack blow kisses to each other behind Lady Bracknell's back. Lady Bracknell looks vaguely about as if she could not understand what the noise was. Finally turns round.] Gwendolen, the carriage!

Gwendolen

Yes, mamma. [Goes out, looking back at Jack.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. LADY BRACKNELL

[Sitting down.] You can take a seat, Mr. Worthing.

[Looks in her pocket for note-book and pencil.]

JACK

Thank you, Lady Bracknell, I prefer standing.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Pencil and note-book in hand.] I feel bound to tell you that you are not down on my list of eligible young men, although I have the same list as the dear Duchess of Bolton has. We work together, in fact. However, I am quite ready to enter your name, should your answers be what a really affectionate mother requires. Do you smoke?

JACK

Well, yes, I must admit I smoke.

LADY BRACKNELL

I am glad to hear it. A man should always have an occupation of some kind.
BEING EARNEST

There are far too many idle men in Act I London as it is. How old are you?

JACK

Twenty-nine.

LADY BRACKNELL

A very good age to be married at. I have always been of opinion that a man who desires to get married should know either everything or nothing. Which do you know?

JACK

[After some hesitation.] I know nothing, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRACKNELL

I am pleased to hear it. I do not approve of anything that tampers with natural ignorance. Ignorance is like a delicate exotic fruit; touch it and the bloom is gone. The whole theory of modern education is radically unsound. Fortunately in England, at any rate, education produces no effect whatsoever. If it did, it would prove a serious danger to the upper classes, and
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. probably lead to acts of violence in Grosvenor Square. What is your income?

JACK
   Between seven and eight thousand a year.

LADY BRACKNELL
   [Makes a note in her book.] In land, or in investments?

JACK
   In investments, chiefly.

LADY BRACKNELL
   That is satisfactory. What between the duties expected of one during one's lifetime, and the duties exacted from one after one's death, land has ceased to be either a profit or a pleasure. It gives one position, and prevents one from keeping it up. That's all that can be said about land.

JACK
   I have a country house with some land, of course, attached to it, about fifteen hundred acres, I believe; but I don't depend on that for my real income. In fact, as far as I can make out, the poachers are the only people who make anything out of it.

LADY BRACKNELL

A country house! How many bedrooms? Well, that point can be cleared up afterwards. You have a town house, I hope? A girl with a simple, unspoiled nature, like Gwendolen, could hardly be expected to reside in the country.

JACK

Well, I own a house in Belgrave Square, but it is let by the year to Lady Bloxham. Of course, I can get it back whenever I like, at six months' notice.

LADY BRACKNELL

Lady Bloxham? I don't know her.

JACK

Oh, she goes about very little. She is a lady considerably advanced in years.

LADY BRACKNELL

Ah, nowadays that is no guarantee of
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. respectability of character. What number in Belgrave Square?

149.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Shaking her head.] The unfashionable side. I thought there was something. However, that could easily be altered.

JACK

Do you mean the fashion, or the side?

LADY BRACKNELL

[Sternly.] Both, if necessary, I presume. What are your politics?

JACK

Well, I am afraid I really have none. I am a Liberal Unionist.

LADY BRACKNELL

Oh, they count as Tories. They dine with us. Or come in the evening, at any rate. Now to minor matters. Are your parents living?
I have lost both my parents.

To lose one parent, Mr. Worthing, may be regarded as a misfortune; to lose both looks like carelessness. Who was your father? He was evidently a man of some wealth. Was he born in what the Radical papers call the purple of commerce, or did he rise from the ranks of the aristocracy?

I am afraid I really don't know. The fact is, Lady Bracknell, I said I had lost my parents. It would be nearer the truth to say that my parents seem to have lost me. . . . I don't actually know who I am by birth. I was . . . well, I was found.

Found!

The late Mr. Thomas Cardew, an old gentleman of a very charitable and kindly disposition, found me, and gave me the name of Worthing, because he happened
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. to have a first-class ticket for Worthing in his pocket at the time. Worthing is a place in Sussex. It is a seaside resort.

LADY BRACKNELL
Where did the charitable gentleman who had a first-class ticket for this seaside resort find you?

JACK
[Gravely.] In a hand-bag.

LADY BRACKNELL
A hand-bag?

JACK
[Very seriously.] Yes, Lady Bracknell. I was in a hand-bag—a somewhat large, black leather hand-bag, with handles to it—an ordinary hand-bag in fact.

LADY BRACKNELL
In what locality did this Mr. James, or Thomas, Cardew come across this ordinary hand-bag?

JACK
In the cloak-room at Victoria Station.

46
It was given to him in mistake for his actual own.

LADY BRACKNELL

The cloak-room at Victoria Station?

JACK

Yes. The Brighton line.

LADY BRACKNELL

The line is immaterial. Mr. Worthing, I confess I feel somewhat bewildered by what you have just told me. To be born, or at any rate bred, in a hand-bag, whether it had handles or not, seems to me to display a contempt for the ordinary decencies of family life that remind one of the worst excesses of the French Revolution. And I presume you know what that unfortunate movement led to? As for the particular locality in which the hand-bag was found, a cloak-room at a railway station might serve to conceal a social indiscretion—has probably, indeed, been used for that purpose before now—but it could hardly be regarded as an assured basis for a recognised position in good society.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. JACK

May I ask you then what you would advise me to do? I need hardly say I would do anything in the world to ensure Gwendolen's happiness.

LADY BRACKNELL

I would strongly advise you, Mr. Waring, to try and acquire some relations as soon as possible, and to make a definite effort to produce at any rate one parent, of either sex, before the season is quite over.

JACK

Well, I don't see how I could possibly manage to do that. I can produce the hand-bag at any moment. It is in my dressing-room at home. I really think that should satisfy you, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRACKNELL

Me, sir! What has it to do with me? You can hardly imagine that I and Lord Bracknell would dream of allowing our only daughter—a girl brought up with the utmost care—to marry into a cloak-room, and form an alliance with a parcel?  Good ACT I morning, Mr. Worthing!

[LADY BRACKNELL sweeps out in majestic indignation.]

JACK

Good morning!  [ALGERNON, from the other room, strikes up the Wedding March. JACK looks perfectly furious, and goes to the door.] For goodness' sake don't play that ghastly tune, Algy!  How idiotic you are!

[The music stops and ALGERNON enters cheerily.]

ALGERNON

Didn’t it go off all right, old boy?  You don’t mean to say Gwendolen refused you?  I know it is a way she has.  She is always refusing people.  I think it is most ill-natured of her.

JACK

Oh, Gwendolen is as right as a trivet.  As far as she is concerned, we are engaged.  Her mother is perfectly unbearable.  Never
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. met such a Gorgon. . . . I don’t really know what a Gorgon is like, but I am quite sure that Lady Bracknell is one. In any case, she is a monster, without being a myth, which is rather unfair. . . . I beg your pardon, Algy, I suppose I shouldn’t talk about your own aunt in that way before you.

ALGERNON
My dear boy, I love hearing my relations abused. It is the only thing that makes me put up with them at all. Relations are simply a tedious pack of people, who haven’t got the remotest knowledge of how to live, nor the smallest instinct about when to die.

JACK
Oh, that is nonsense!

ALGERNON
It isn’t!

JACK
Well, I won’t argue about the matter.
You always want to argue about things.

50
That is exactly what things were originally made for.

Upon my word, if I thought that, I'd shoot myself. ... [A pause.] You don't think there is any chance of Gwendolen becoming like her mother in about a hundred and fifty years, do you, Algy?

All women become like their mothers. That is their tragedy. No man does. That's his.

Is that clever?

It is perfectly phrased! and quite as true as any observation in civilised life should be.

I am sick to death of cleverness. Everybody is clever nowadays. You can't go anywhere without meeting clever people.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. The thing has become an absolute public nuisance. I wish to goodness we had a few fools left.

ALGERNON

We have.

JACK

I should extremely like to meet them. What do they talk about?

ALGERNON

The fools? Oh! about the clever people, of course.

JACK

What fools!

ALGERNON

By the way, did you tell Gwendolen the truth about your being Ernest in town, and Jack in the country?

JACK

[In a very patronising manner.] My dear fellow, the truth isn’t quite the sort of thing one tells to a nice, sweet, refined girl.

52
BEING EARNEST

What extraordinary ideas you have about ACT 1. the way to behave to a woman!

ALGERNON

The only way to behave to a woman is to make love to her, if she is pretty, and to some one else, if she is plain.

JACK

Oh, that is nonsense.

ALGERNON

What about your brother? What about the profligate Ernest?

JACK

Oh, before the end of the week I shall have got rid of him. I'll say he died in Paris of apoplexy. Lots of people die of apoplexy, quite suddenly, don't they?

ALGERNON

Yes, but it's hereditary, my dear fellow. It's a sort of thing that runs in families. You had much better say a severe chill.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I.  JACK

You are sure a severe chill isn’t hereditary, or anything of that kind?

ALGERNON

Of course it isn’t!

JACK

Very well, then. My poor brother Ernest is carried off suddenly, in Paris, by a severe chill. That gets rid of him.

ALGERNON

But I thought you said that... Miss Cardew was a little too much interested in your poor brother Ernest? Won’t she feel his loss a good deal?

JACK

Oh, that is all right. Cecily is not a silly romantic girl, I am glad to say. She has got a capital appetite, goes long walks, and pays no attention at all to her lessons.

ALGERNON

I would rather like to see Cecily.
I will take very good care you never do. She is excessively pretty, and she is only just eighteen.

Have you told Gwendolen yet that you have an excessively pretty ward who is only just eighteen?

Oh! one doesn’t blurt these things out to people. Cecily and Gwendolen are perfectly certain to be extremely great friends. I’ll bet you anything you like that half an hour after they have met, they will be calling each other sister.

Women only do that when they have called each other a lot of other things first. Now, my dear boy, if we want to get a good table at Willis’s, we really must go and dress. Do you know it is nearly seven?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I

JACK

[Irritably.] Oh! it always is nearly seven.

ALGERNON

Well, I'm hungry.

JACK

I never knew you when you weren't...

ALGERNON

What shall we do after dinner? Go to a theatre?

JACK

Oh no! I loathe listening.

ALGERNON

Well, let us go to the Club?

JACK

Oh, no! I hate talking.

ALGERNON

Well, we might trot round to the Empire at ten?

JACK

Oh no! I can't bear looking at things. It is so silly.

56
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON

Well, what shall we do?

JACK

Nothing!

ALGERNON

It is awfully hard work doing nothing. However, I don't mind hard work where there is no definite object of any kind.

[Enter LANE.]

LANE

Miss Fairfax.

[Enter GWENDOLEN. LANE goes out.]

ALGERNON

Gwendolen, upon my word!

GWENDOLEN

Algy, kindly turn your back. I have something very particular to say to Mr. Worthing.

ALGERNON

Really, Gwendolen, I don’t think I can allow this at all.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. GWENDOLEN

Algy, you always adopt a strictly immoral attitude towards life. You are not quite old enough to do that. [ALGERNON retires to the fireplace.]

JACK

My own darling!

GWENDOLEN

Ernest, we may never be married. From the expression on mamma’s face I fear we never shall. Few parents nowadays pay any regard to what their children say to them. The old-fashioned respect for the young is fast dying out. Whatever influence I ever had over mamma, I lost at the age of three. But although she may prevent us from becoming man and wife, and I may marry some one else, and marry often, nothing that she can possibly do can alter my eternal devotion to you.

JACK

Dear Gwendolen!
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

The story of your romantic origin, as related to me by mamma, with unpleasing comments, has naturally stirred the deeper fibres of my nature. Your Christian name has an irresistible fascination. The simplicity of your character makes you exquisitely incomprehensible to me. Your town address at the Albany I have. What is your address in the country?

JACK

The Manor House, Woolton, Hertfordshire.

[ALGERNON, who has been carefully listening, smiles to himself, and writes the address on his shirt-cuff. Then picks up the Railway Guide.]

GWENDOLEN

There is a good postal service, I suppose? It may be necessary to do something desperate. That of course will require serious consideration. I will communicate with you daily.

JACK

My own one!
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. GWENDOLEN
  How long do you remain in town?

JACK Till Monday.

GWENDOLEN
  Good! Algy, you may turn round now.

ALGERNON
  Thanks, I've turned round already.

GWENDOLEN
  You may also ring the bell.

JACK
  You will let me see you to your carriage, my own darling?

GWENDOLEN Certainly.

JACK
  [To LANE, who now enters.] I will see Miss Fairfax out.

LANE
  Yes, sir. [JACK and GWENDOLEN go off.]
  [LANE presents several letters on a salver] to ALGERNON. It is to be surmised that they are bills, as ALGERNON, after looking at the envelopes, tears them up.]
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON

A glass of sherry, Lane.

LANE

Yes, sir.

ALGERNON

To-morrow, Lane, I’m going Bunbury-ing.

LANE

Yes, sir.

ALGERNON

I shall probably not be back till Monday. You can put up my dress clothes, my smoking jacket, and all the Bunbury suits . . .

LANE

Yes, sir. [Handing sherry.]

ALGERNON

I hope to-morrow will be a fine day. Lane.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT I. LANE
It never is, sir.

ALGERNON
Lane, you’re a perfect pessimist.

LANE
I do my best to give satisfaction, sir.

[Enter JACK. LANE goes off.]

JACK
There’s a sensible, intellectual girl! the only girl I ever cared for in my life.

[ALGERNON is laughing immoderately.] What on earth are you so amused at?

ALGERNON
Oh, I’m a little anxious about poor Bunbury, that is all.

JACK
If you don’t take care, your friend Bunbury will get you into a serious scrape some day.

ALGERNON
I love scrapes. They are the only things that are never serious.
BEING EARNEST

JACK

Oh, that's nonsense, Algy. You never talk anything but nonsense.

ALGERNON

Nobody ever does.

[Jack looks indignantly at him, and leaves the room. Algernon lights a cigarette, reads his shirt-cuff, and smiles.]

Act Drop SECOND ACT
SECOND ACT

SCENE

Garden at the Manor House. A flight of grey stone steps leads up to the house. The garden, an old-fashioned one, full of roses. Time of year, July. Basket chairs, and a table covered with books, are set under a large yew-tree.

[MISS PRISM discovered seated at the table. CECILY is at the back watering flowers.]

MISS PRISM

[Calling.] Cecily, Cecily! Surely such a utilitarian occupation as the watering of flowers is rather Moulton’s duty than yours? Especially at a moment when intellectual pleasures await you. Your German grammar is on the table. Pray open it at page fifteen. We will repeat yesterday’s lesson.

CECILY

[Coming over very slowly.] But I don’t like German. It isn’t at all a becoming
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. language. I know perfectly well that I look quite plain after my German lesson.

MISS PRISM

Child, you know how anxious your guardian is that you should improve yourself in every way. He laid particular stress on your German, as he was leaving for town yesterday. Indeed, he always lays stress on your German when he is leaving for town.

CECILY

Dear Uncle Jack is so very serious! Sometimes he is so serious that I think he cannot be quite well.

MISS PRISM

[Drawing herself up.] Your guardian enjoys the best of health, and his gravity of demeanour is especially to be commended in one so comparatively young as he is. I know no one who has a higher sense of duty and responsibility.
CECILY
I suppose that is why he often looks a little bored when we three are together.

MISS PRISM
Cecily! I am surprised at you. Mr. Worthing has many troubles in his life. Idle merriment and triviality would be out of place in his conversation. You must remember his constant anxiety about that unfortunate young man his brother.

CECILY
I wish Uncle Jack would allow that unfortunate young man, his brother, to come down here sometimes. We might have a good influence over him, Miss Prism. I am sure you certainly would. You know German, and geology, and things of that kind influence a man very much. [CECILY begins to write in her diary.]

MISS PRISM
[Shaking her head.] I do not think that even I could produce any effect on a char-
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. actor that according to his own brother's admission is irremediably weak and vacillating. Indeed I am not sure that I would desire to reclaim him. I am not in favour of this modern mania for turning bad people into good people at a moment's notice. As a man sows so let him reap. You must put away your diary, Cecily. I really don't see why you should keep a diary at all.

CECILY

I keep a diary in order to enter the wonderful secrets of my life. If I didn't write them down, I should probably forget all about them.

MISS PRISM

Memory, my dear Cecily, is the diary that we all carry about with us.

CECILY

Yes, but it usually chronicles the things that have never happened, and couldn't possibly have happened. I believe that Memory is responsible for nearly all the three-volume novels that Mudie sends us.
Do not speak slightingly of the three-volume novel, Cecily. I wrote one myself in earlier days.

Did you really, Miss Prism? How wonderfully clever you are! I hope it did not end happily? I don’t like novels that end happily. They depress me so much.

The good ended happily, and the bad unhappily. That is what Fiction means.

I suppose so. But it seems very unfair. And was your novel ever published?

Alas! no. The manuscript unfortunately was abandoned. [Cecily starts.] I use the word in the sense of lost or mislaid. To your work, child, these speculations are profitless.

[Smiling.] But I see dear Dr. Chasuble coming up through the garden.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. MISS PRISM

[Rising and advancing.] Dr. Chasuble! This is indeed a pleasure.

[Enter Canon Chasuble.]

CHASUBLE

And how are we this morning? Miss Prism, you are, I trust, well?

CECILY

Miss Prism has just been complaining of a slight headache. I think it would do her so much good to have a short stroll with you in the Park, Dr. Chasuble.

MISS PRISM

Cecily, I have not mentioned anything about a headache.

CECILY

No, dear Miss Prism, I know that, but I felt instinctively that you had a headache. Indeed I was thinking about that, and not about my German lesson, when the Rector came in.

CHASUBLE

I hope, Cecily, you are not inattentive.
Oh, I am afraid I am.

That is strange. Were I fortunate enough to be Miss Prism’s pupil, I would hang upon her lips. [Miss Prism glares.] I spoke metaphorically.—My metaphor was drawn from bees. Ahem! Mr. Worthing, I suppose, has not returned from town yet?

We do not expect him till Monday afternoon.

Ah yes, he usually likes to spend his Sunday in London. He is not one of those whose sole aim is enjoyment, as, by all accounts, that unfortunate young man his brother seems to be. But I must not disturb Egeria and her pupil any longer.

Egeria? My name is Lætitia, Doctor.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CHASUBLE

[Bowing.] A classical allusion merely, drawn from the Pagan authors. I shall see you both no doubt at Evensong?

MISS PRISM

I think, dear Doctor, I will have a stroll with you. I find I have a headache after all, and a walk might do it good.

CHASUBLE

With pleasure, Miss Prism, with pleasure. We might go as far as the schools and back.

MISS PRISM

That would be delightful. Cecily, you will read your Political Economy in my absence. The chapter on the Fall of the Rupee you may omit. It is somewhat too sensational. Even these metallic problems have their melodramatic side.

[Goes down the garden with DR. CHASUBLE.]

CECILY

[ Picks up books and throws them back on 74 ]
BEING EARNEST

[Entered Horrid Political Economy! Horrid Geography! Horrid, horrid German!
[Enter Merriman with a card on a salver.]

MERRIMAN

Mr. Ernest Worthing has just driven over from the station. He has brought his luggage with him.

CECILY

[Takes the card and reads it.] "Mr. Ernest Worthing, B. 4, The Albany, W." Uncle Jack's brother! Did you tell him Mr. Worthing was in town?

MERRIMAN

Yes, Miss. He seemed very much disappointed. I mentioned that you and Miss Prism were in the garden. He said he was anxious to speak to you privately for a moment.

CECILY

Ask Mr. Ernest Worthing to come here. I suppose you had better talk to the housekeeper about a room for him.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. MERRIMAN
    Yes, Miss. [MERRIMAN goes off.]

CECILY
    I have never met any really wicked person before. I feel rather frightened. I am so afraid he will look just like everyone else.
    [Enter ALGERNON, very gay and debonair.]
    He does!

ALGERNON
    [Raising his hat.] You are my little cousin Cecily, I’m sure.

CECILY
    You are under some strange mistake. I am not little. In fact, I believe I am more than usually tall for my age. [ALGERNON is rather taken aback.] But I am your cousin Cecily. You, I see from your card, are Uncle Jack’s brother, my cousin Ernest, my wicked cousin Ernest.

ALGERNON
    Oh! I am not really wicked at all, cousin Cecily. You mustn't think that I act if am wicked.
BEING EARNEST

CECILY

If you are not, then you have certainly been deceiving us all in a very inexcusable manner. I hope you have not been leading a double life, pretending to be wicked and being really good all the time. That would be hypocrisy.

ALGERNON

[Looks at her in amazement.] Oh! Of course I have been rather reckless.

CECILY

I am glad to hear it.

ALGERNON

In fact, now you mention the subject, I have been very bad in my own small way.

CECILY

I don't think you should be so proud of that, though I am sure it must have been very pleasant.

77
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. ALGERNON

It is much pleasanter being here with you.

CECILY

I can’t understand how you are here at all. Uncle Jack won’t be back till Monday afternoon.

ALGERNON

That is a great disappointment. I am obliged to go up by the first train on Monday morning. I have a business appointment that I am anxious . . . to miss?

CECILY

Couldn’t you miss it anywhere but in London?

ALGERNON

No: the appointment is in London.

CECILY

Well, I know, of course, how important it is not to keep a business engagement, if one wants to retain any sense of the beauty of life, but still I think you had better wait 78 till Uncle Jack arrives. I know he wants ACT II. to speak to you about your emigrating.

ALGERNON
  About my what?

CECILY
  Your emigrating. He has gone up to buy your outfit.

ALGERNON
  I certainly wouldn't let Jack buy my outfit. He has no taste in neckties at all.

CECILY
  I don't think you will require neckties. Uncle Jack is sending you to Australia.

ALGERNON
  Australia! I'd sooner die

CECILY
  Well, he said at dinner on Wednesday night, that you would have to choose between this world, the next world, and Australia.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. ALGERNON

Oh, well! The accounts I have received of Australia and the next world, are not particularly encouraging. This world is good enough for me, cousin Cecily.

CECILY

Yes, but are you good enough for it?

ALGERNON

I'm afraid I'm not that. That is why I want you to reform me. You might make that your mission, if you don't mind, cousin Cecily.

CECILY

I'm afraid I've no time, this afternoon.

ALGERNON

Well, would you mind my reforming myself this afternoon?

CECILY

It is rather Quixotic of you. But I think you should try.

ALGERNON

I will. I feel better already.

80
CECILY

You are looking a little worse.

ALGERNON

That is because I am hungry

CECILY

How thoughtless of me. I should have remembered that when one is going to lead an entirely new life, one requires regular and wholesome meals. Won't you come in?

ALGERNON

Thank you. Might I have a buttonhole first? I never have any appetite unless I have a buttonhole first.

CECILY

A Maréchal Niel? [Picks up scissors.]

ALGERNON

No, I'd sooner have a pink rose.

CECILY

Why? [Cuts a flower.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. ALGERNON

Because you are like a pink rose, Cousin Cecily.

CECILY

I don’t think it can be right for you to talk to me like that. Miss Prism never says such things to me.

ALGERNON

Then Miss Prism is a short-sighted old lady. [CECILY puts the rose in his button-hole.] You are the prettiest girl I ever saw.

CECILY

Miss Prism says that all good looks are a snare.

ALGERNON

They are a snare that every sensible man would like to be caught in.

CECILY

Oh, I don’t think I would care to catch a sensible man. I shouldn’t know what to talk to him about.

[They pass into the house. MISS PRISM and DR. CHASUBLE return.]
MISS PRISM

You are too much alone, dear Dr. Chasuble. You should get married. A misanthrope I can understand—a woman-thrope, never!

CHASUBLE

[With a scholar's shudder.] Believe me, I do not deserve so neologistic a phrase. The precept as well as the practice of the Primitive Church was distinctly against matrimony.

MISS PRISM

[Sententiously.] That is obviously the reason why the Primitive Church has not lasted up to the present day. And you do not seem to realise, dear Doctor, that by persistently remaining single, a man converts himself into a permanent public temptation. Men should be more careful; this very celibacy leads weaker vessels astray.

CHASUBLE

But is a man not equally attractive when married?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. MISS PRISM

No married man is ever attractive except to his wife.

CHASUBLE

And often, I’ve been told, not even to her.

MISS PRISM

That depends on the intellectual sympathies of the woman. Maturity can always be depended on. Ripeness can be trusted. Young women are green. [DR. CHASUBLE starts.] I spoke horticulturally. My metaphor was drawn from fruits. But where is Cecily?

CHASUBLE

Perhaps she followed us to the schools.

[Enter Jack slowly from the back of the garden. He is dressed in the deepest mourning, with crape hatband and black gloves.]

MISS PRISM

Mr. Worthing!

CHASUBLE

Mr. Worthing?
This is indeed a surprise. We did not look for you till Monday afternoon.

I have returned sooner than I expected. Dr. Chasuble, I hope you are well?

Dear Mr. Worthing, I trust this garb of woe does not betoken some terrible calamity?

My brother.

More shameful debts and extravagance?

Still leading his life of pleasure?

[Shaking his head.] Dead!

Your brother Ernest dead?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. JACK

Quite dead.

MISS PRISM

What a lesson for him! I trust he will profit by it.

CHASUBLE

Mr. Worthing, I offer you my sincere condolence. You have at least the consolation of knowing that you were always the most generous and forgiving of brothers.

JACK

Poor Ernest! He had many faults, but it is a sad, sad blow.

CHASUBLE

Very sad indeed. Were you with him at the end?

JACK

No. He died abroad; in Paris, in fact. I had a telegram last night from the manager of the Grand Hotel.

CHASUBLE

Was the cause of death mentioned?

86
BEING EARNEST

JACK

A severe chill, it seems.

MISS PRISM

As a man sows, so shall he reap.

CHASUBLE

[Raising his hand.] Charity, dear Miss Prism, charity! None of us are perfect. I myself am peculiarly susceptible to draughts. Will the interment take place here?

JACK

No. He seems to have expressed a desire to be buried in Paris?

CHASUBLE

In Paris! [Shakes his head.] I fear that hardly points to any very serious state of mind at the last. You would no doubt wish me to make some slight allusion to this tragic domestic affliction next Sunday. [Jack presses his hand convulsively.] My sermon on the meaning of the manna in the wilderness can be adapted to almost any
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. occasion, joyful, or, as in the present case, distressing. [All sigh.] I have preached it at harvest celebrations, christenings, confirmations, on days of humiliation and festal days. The last time I delivered it was in the Cathedral, as a charity sermon on behalf of the Society for the Prevention of Discontent among the Upper Orders. The Bishop, who was present, was much struck by some of the analogies I drew.

JACK

Ah! that reminds me, you mentioned christenings I think, Dr. Chasuble? I suppose you know how to christen all right? [DR. CHASUBLE looks astounded.] I mean, of course, you are continually christening, aren't you?

MISS PRISM

It is, I regret to say, one of the Rector's most constant duties in this parish. I have often spoken to the poorer classes on the subject. But they don't seem to know what thrift is.

88
BEING EARNEST

CHASUBLE

But is there any particular infant in whom you are interested, Mr. Worthing? Your brother was, I believe, unmarried, was he not?

JACK

Oh yes.

MISS PRISM

[Bitterly.] People who live entirely for pleasure usually are.

JACK

But it is not for any child, dear Doctor. I am very fond of children. No! the fact is, I would like to be christened myself, this afternoon, if you have nothing better to do.

CHASUBLE

But surely, Mr. Worthing, you have been christened already?

JACK

I don't remember anything about it.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CHASUBLE

But have you any grave doubts on the subject?

JACK

I certainly intend to have. Of course I don’t know if the thing would bother you in any way, or if you think I am a little too old now.

CHASUBLE

Not at all. The sprinkling, and, indeed, the immersion of adults is a perfectly canonical practice.

JACK

Immersion!

CHASUBLE

You need have no apprehensions. Sprinkling is all that is necessary, or indeed I think advisable. Our weather is so changeable. At what hour would you wish the ceremony performed?

JACK

Oh, I might trot round about five if that would suit you.

90
Perfectly, perfectly! In fact I have two similar ceremonies to perform at that time. A case of twins that occurred recently in one of the outlying cottages on your own estate. Poor Jenkins the carter, a most hard-working man.

Oh! I don’t see much fun in being christened along with other babies. It would be childish. Would half-past five do?

Admirably! Admirably! [Takes out watch.] And now, dear Mr. Worthing, I will not intrude any longer into a house of sorrow. I would merely beg you not to be too much bowed down by grief. What seem to us bitter trials are often blessings in disguise.

This seems to me a blessing of an extremely obvious kind.

[Enter Cecily from the house.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II, CECILY

Uncle Jack! Oh, I am pleased to see you back. But what horrid clothes you have got on! Do go and change them.

MISS PRISM

Cecily!

CHASUBLE

My child! my child! [CECILY goes towards JACK; he kisses her brow in a melancholy manner.]

CECILY

What is the matter, Uncle Jack? Do look happy! You look as if you had toothache, and I have got such a surprise for you. Who do you think is in the dining-room? Your brother!

JACK

Who?

CECILY

Your brother Ernest. He arrived about half an hour ago.
BEING EARNEST

ACT II

JACK

What nonsense! I haven’t got a brother.

CECILY

Oh, don’t say that. However badly he may have behaved to you in the past he is still your brother. You couldn’t be so heartless as to disown him. I’ll tell him to come out. And you will shake hands with him, won’t you, Uncle Jack?

[Runs back into the house.]

CHASUBLE

These are very joyful tidings.

MISS PRISM

After we had all been resigned to his loss, his sudden return seems to me peculiarly distressing.

JACK

My brother is in the dining-room? I don’t know what it all means. I think it is perfectly absurd.

[Enter ALGERNON and CECILY hand in hand. They come slowly up to J ACK.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. JACK

Good heavens! [Motions ALGERNON away.]

ALGERNON

Brother John, I have come down from town to tell you that I am very sorry for all the trouble I have given you, and that I intend to lead a better life in the future. [JACK glares at him and does not take his hand.]

CECILY

Uncle Jack, you are not going to refuse your own brother’s hand?

JACK

Nothing will induce me to take his hand. I think his coming down here disgraceful. He knows perfectly well why.

CECILY

Uncle Jack, do be nice. There is some good in every one. Ernest has just been telling me about his poor invalid friend Mr. Bunbury whom he goes to visit so often. And surely there must be much good in one who is kind to an invalid, and ACT II. leaves the pleasures of London to sit by a bed of pain.
BEING EARNEST

JACK

Oh! he has been talking about Bunbury, has he?

CECILY

Yes, he has told me all about poor Mr. Bunbury, and his terrible state of health.

JACK

Bunbury! Well, I won’t have him talk to you about Bunbury or about anything else. It is enough to drive one perfectly frantic.

ALGERNON

Of course I admit that the faults were all on my side. But I must say that I think that Brother John’s coldness to me is peculiarly painful. I expected a more enthusiastic welcome, especially considering it is the first time I have come here.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CECILY

Uncle Jack, if you don't shake hands with Ernest I will never forgive you.

JACK

Never forgive me!

CECILY

Never, never, never!

JACK

Well, this is the last time I shall ever do it. [Shakes hands with ALGERNON and glares.]

CHASUBLE

It's pleasant, is it not, to see so perfect a reconciliation? I think we might leave the two brothers together.

MISS PRISM

Cecily, you will come with us.

CECILY

Certainly, Miss Prism. My little task of reconciliation is over.

96
BEING EARNEST

CHASUBLE

You have done a beautiful action to-day, dear child.

MISS PRISM

We must not be premature in our judgments.

CECILY

I feel very happy. [They all go off except Jack and Algernon.]

JACK

You young scoundrel, Algy, you must get out of this place as soon as possible. I don’t allow any Bunburying here. [Enter Merriman.]

MERRIMAN

I have put Mr. Ernest’s things in the room next to yours, sir. I suppose that is all right?

JACK

What?

MERRIMAN

Mr. Ernest’s luggage, sir. I have un-
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. packed it and put it in the room next to your own.

JACK
His luggage!

MERRIMAN
Yes, sir. Three portmanteaus, a dressing-case, two hat-boxes, and a large luncheon-basket.

ALGERNON
I am afraid I can’t stay more than a week this time.

JACK
Merriman, order the dog-cart at once. Mr. Ernest has been suddenly called back to town.

MERRIMAN
Yes, sir. [Goes back into the house.]

ALGERNON
What a fearful liar you are, Jack. I have not been called back to town at all.

JACK
Yes, you have.
I haven't heard any one call me.

Your duty as a gentleman calls you back.

My duty as a gentleman has never interfered with my pleasures in the smallest degree.

I can quite understand that.

Well, Cecily is a darling.

You are not to talk of Miss Cardew like that. I don't like it.

Well, I don't like your clothes. You look perfectly ridiculous in them. Why on earth don't you go up and change? It is perfectly childish to be in deep mourning for a man who is actually staying for a
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. whole week with you in your house as a guest. I call it grotesque.

JACK
 You are certainly not staying with me for a whole week as a guest or anything else. You have got to leave . . . by the four-five train.

ALGERNON
 I certainly won't leave you so long as you are in mourning. It would be most unfriendly. If I were in mourning you would stay with me, I suppose. I should think it very unkind if you didn't.

JACK
 Well, will you go if I change my clothes?

ALGERNON
 Yes, if you are not too long. I never saw anybody take so long to dress, and with such little result.

JACK
 Well, at any rate, that is better than being always over-dressed as you are.
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON

If I am occasionally a little over-dressed, I make up for it by being always immensely over-educated.

JACK

Your vanity is ridiculous, your conduct an outrage, and your presence in my garden utterly absurd. However, you have got to catch the four-five, and I hope you will have a pleasant journey back to town. This Bunburying, as you call it, has not been a great success for you.

[Goes into the house.]

ALGERNON

I think it has been a great success. I’m in love with Cecily, and that is everything.

[Enter Cecily at the back of the garden. She picks up the can and begins to water the flowers.] But I must see her before I go, and make arrangements for another Bunbury. Ah, there she is.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CECILY
Oh, I merely came back to water the roses. I thought you were with Uncle Jack.

ALGERNON
He's gone to order the dog-cart for me.

CECILY
Oh, is he going to take you for a nice drive?

ALGERNON
He's going to send me away.

CECILY
Then have we got to part?

ALGERNON
I am afraid so. It's a very painful parting.

CECILY
It is always painful to part from people whom one has known for a very brief space of time. The absence of old friends one can endure with equanimity. But even a momentary separation from any one to whom one has just been introduced is ACT II. almost unbearable.
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON
    Thank you.
    [Enter Merriman.]

MERRIMAN
    The dog-cart is at the door, sir.  [Algernon looks appealingly at Cecily.]

CECILY
    It can wait, Merriman . . . for . . . five minutes.

MERRIMAN
    Yes, Miss.  [Exit Merriman.]

ALGERNON
    I hope, Cecily, I shall not offend you if I state quite frankly and openly that you seem to me to be in every way the visible personification of absolute perfection.

CECILY
    I think your frankness does you great credit, Ernest.  If you will allow me, I

103
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. will copy your remarks into my diary. [Goes over to table and begins writing in diary.]

ALGERNON

Do you really keep a diary? I'd give anything to look at it. May I?

CECILY

Oh no. [Puts her hand over it.] You see, it is simply a very young girl's record of her own thoughts and impressions, and consequently meant for publication. When it appears in volume form I hope you will order a copy. But pray, Ernest, don't stop. I delight in taking down from dictation. I have reached 'absolute perfection.' You can go on. I am quite ready for more.

ALGERNON

[Somewhat taken aback.] Ahem! Ahem!

CECILY

Oh, don't cough, Ernest. When one is dictating one should speak fluently and not cough. Besides, I don’t know how to spell act il. a cough. [Writes as ALGERNON speaks.]
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON

[Speaking very rapidly.] Cecily, ever since I first looked upon your wonderful and incomparable beauty, I have dared to love you wildly, passionately, devotedly, hopelessly.

CECILY

I don’t think that you should tell me that you love me wildly, passionately, devotedly, hopelessly. Hopelessly doesn’t seem to make much sense, does it?

ALGERNON

Cecily!

[Enter MERRIMAN.]

MERRIMAN

The dog-cart is waiting, sir.

ALGERNON

Tell it to come round next week, at the same hour.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. MERRIMAN

[Looks at CECILY, who makes no sign.]
Yes, sir. [MERRIMAN retires.]

CECILY
Uncle Jack would be very much annoyed if he knew you were staying on till next week, at the same hour.

ALGERNON
Oh, I don't care about Jack. I don't care for anybody in the whole world but you. I love you, Cecily. You will marry me, won't you?

CECILY
You silly boy! Of course. Why, we have been engaged for the last three months.

ALGERNON
For the last three months?

CECILY
Yes, it will be exactly three months on Thursday.

106
But how did we become engaged?

Well, ever since dear Uncle Jack first confessed to us that he had a younger brother who was very wicked and bad, you of course have formed the chief topic of conversation between myself and Miss Prism. And of course a man who is much talked about is always very attractive. One feels there must be something in him, after all. I daresay it was foolish of me, but I fell in love with you, Ernest.

Darling! And when was the engagement actually settled?

On the 14th of February last. Worn out by your entire ignorance of my existence, I determined to end the matter one way or the other, and after a long struggle with myself I accepted you under this dear old tree here. The next day I bought this ACT II. little ring in your name, and this is the little bangle with the true lovers’ knot I promised you always to wear.

ALGERNON
Did I give you this? It’s very pretty, isn’t it?

CECILY
Yes, you’ve wonderfully good taste, Ernest. It’s the excuse I’ve always given for your leading such a bad life. And this is the box in which I keep all your dear letters. [Kneels at table, opens box, and produces letters tied up with blue ribbon.]

ALGERNON
My letters! But, my own sweet Cecily, I have never written you any letters.

CECILY
You need hardly remind me of that, Ernest. I remember only too well that I was forced to write your letters for you. I wrote always three times a week, and sometimes oftener.
Oh, do let me read them, Cecily?

Oh, I couldn't possibly. They would make you far too conceited. [Replaces box.] The three you wrote me after I had broken off the engagement are so beautiful, and so badly spelled, that even now I can hardly read them without crying a little.

But was our engagement ever broken off?

Of course it was. On the 22nd of last March. You can see the entry if you like. [Shows diary.] 'To-day I broke off my engagement with Ernest. I feel it is better to do so. The weather still continues charming.'

But why on earth did you break it off? What had I done? I had done nothing at all. Cecily, I am very much hurt indeed.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. to hear you broke it off. Particularly when the weather was so charming.

CECILY

It would hardly have been a really serious engagement if it hadn't been broken off at least once. But I forgave you before the week was out.

ALGERNON

[Crossing to her, and kneeling.] What a perfect angel you are, Cecily.

CECILY

You dear romantic boy. [He kisses her, she puts her fingers through his hair.] I hope your hair curls naturally, does it?

ALGERNON

Yes, darling, with a little help from others.

CECILY

I am so glad.

ALGERNON

You'll never break off our engagement again, Cecily?

110
I don’t think I could break it off now that I have actually met you. Besides, of course, there is the question of your name.

Yes, of course. [Nervously.]

You must not laugh at me, darling, but it had always been a girlish dream of mine to love some one whose name was Ernest. [Algernon rises, Cecily also.] There is something in that name that seems to inspire absolute confidence. I pity any poor married woman whose husband is not called Ernest.

But, my dear child, do you mean to say you could not love me if I had some other name?

But what name?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. ALGERNON

Oh, any name you like—Algernon—for instance . . .

CECILY

But I don’t like the name of Algernon.

ALGERNON

Well, my own dear, sweet, loving little darling, I really can’t see why you should object to the name of Algernon. It is not at all a bad name. In fact, it is rather an aristocratic name. Half of the chaps who get into the Bankruptcy Court are called Algernon. But seriously, Cecily . . . [Moving to her] . . . if my name was Algy, couldn’t you love me?

CECILY

[Rising.] I might respect you, Ernest, I might admire your character, but I fear that I should not be able to give you my undivided attention.

ALGERNON

Ahem! Cecily! [Picking up hat.] Your Rector here is, I suppose, thoroughly exexperienced in the practice of all the rites act il and ceremonials of the Church?
BEING EARNEST

CECILY

Oh, yes. Dr. Chasuble is a most learned man. He has never written a single book, so you can imagine how much he knows.

ALGERNON

I must see him at once on a most important christening—I mean on most important business.

CECILY

Oh!

ALGERNON

I shan't be away more than half an hour.

CECILY

Considering that we have been engaged since February the 14th, and that I only met you to-day for the first time. I think it is rather hard that you should leave me for so long a period as half an hour. Couldn't you make it twenty minutes?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. ALGERNON
   I'll be back in no time.
   [Kisses her and rushes down the garden.]

CECILY
   What an impetuous boy he is! I like his hair so much. I must enter his proposal in my diary.
   [Enter MERRIMAN.]

MERRIMAN
   A Miss Fairfax has just called to see Mr. Worthing. On very important business, Miss Fairfax states.

CECILY
   Isn't Mr. Worthing in his library?

MERRIMAN
   Mr. Worthing went over in the direction of the Rectory some time ago.

CECILY
   Pray ask the lady to come out here; Mr. Worthing is sure to be back soon. And you can bring tea.
   114
Yes, Miss.

[Enter Merriman.] [Exit Merriman.]

CECILY
Miss Fairfax! I suppose one of the many good elderly women who are associated with Uncle Jack in some of his philanthropic work in London. I don’t quite like women who are interested in philanthropic work. I think it is so forward of them.

[Enter Merriman.]

MERRIMAN
Miss Fairfax.

[Enter Gwendolen.][Exit Merriman.]

CECILY
[Advancing to meet her.] Pray let me introduce myself to you. My name is Cecily Cardew.

GWENDOLEN
Cecily Cardew? [Moving to her and shaking hands.] What a very sweet name! Something tells me that we are going to be great friends. I like you already more
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. than I can say. My first impressions of people are never wrong.

CECILY
How nice of you to like me so much after we have known each other such a comparatively short time. Pray sit down.

GWENDOLEN
[Still standing up.] I may call you Cecily, may I not?

CECILY
With pleasure!

GWENDOLEN
And you will always call me Gwendolen, won't you?

CECILY
If you wish.

GWENDOLEN
Then that is all quite settled, is it not?

CECILY
I hope so. [A pause. They both sit down together.]
Perhaps this might be a favourable opportunity for my mentioning who I am. My father is Lord Bracknell. You have never heard of papa, I suppose?

CECILY

I don’t think so.

GWENDOLEN

Outside the family circle, papa, I am glad to say, is entirely unknown. I think that is quite as it should be. The home seems to me to be the proper sphere for the man. And certainly once a man begins to neglect his domestic duties he becomes painfully effeminate, does he not? And I don’t like that. It makes men so very attractive. Cecily, mamma, whose views on education are remarkably strict, has brought me up to be extremely shortsighted; it is part of her system; so do you mind my looking at you through my glasses?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CECILY

Oh! not at all, Gwendolen. I am very fond of being looked at.

GWENDOLEN

[After examining CECILY carefully through a lorgnette.] You are here on a short visit, I suppose.

CECILY

Oh no! I live here.

GWENDOLEN

[Severely.] Really? Your mother, no doubt, or some female relative of advanced years, resides here also?

CECILY

Oh no! I have no mother, nor, in fact, any relations.

GWENDOLEN

Indeed?

CECILY

My dear guardian, with the assistance of Miss Prism, has the arduous task of looking after me.

118
GWENDOLEN

Your guardian?

CECILY

Yes, I am Mr. Worthing's ward.

GWENDOLEN

Oh! It is strange he never mentioned to me that he had a ward. How secretive of him! He grows more interesting hourly. I am not sure, however, that the news inspires me with feelings of unmixed delight. [Rising and going to her.] I am very fond of you, Cecily; I have liked you ever since I met you! But I am bound to state that now that I know that you are Mr. Worthing's ward, I cannot help expressing a wish you were—well, just a little older than you seem to be—and not quite so very alluring in appearance. In fact, if I may speak candidly—

CECILY

Pray do! I think that whenever one has anything unpleasant to say, one should always be quite candid.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. GWENDOLEN

Well, to speak with perfect candour, Cecily, I wish that you were fully forty-two, and more than usually plain for your age. Ernest has a strong upright nature. He is the very soul of truth and honour. Disloyalty would be as impossible to him as deception. But even men of the noblest possible moral character are extremely susceptible to the influence of the physical charms of others. Modern, no less than Ancient History, supplies us with many most painful examples of what I refer to. If it were not so, indeed, History would be quite unreadable.

CECILY

I beg your pardon, Gwendolen, did you say Ernest?

GWENDOLEN

Yes.

CECILY

Oh, but it is not Mr. Ernest Worthing who is my guardian. It is his brother—his ACT II. elder brother.
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

[Sitting down again.] Ernest never mentioned to me that he had a brother.

CECILY

I am sorry to say they have not been on good terms for a long time.

GWENDOLEN

Ah! that accounts for it. And now that I think of it I have never heard any man mention his brother. The subject seems distasteful to most men. Cecily, you have lifted a load from my mind. I was growing almost anxious. It would have been terrible if any cloud had come across a friendship like ours, would it not? Of course you are quite, quite sure that it is not Mr. Ernest Worthing who is your guardian?

CECILY

Quite sure. [A pause.] In fact, I am going to be his.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. GWENDOLEN

[Inquiringly.] I beg your pardon?

CECILY

[Rather shy and confidingly.] Dearest Gwendolen, there is no reason why I should make a secret of it to you. Our little county newspaper is sure to chronicle the fact next week. Mr. Ernest Worthing and I are engaged to be married.

GWENDOLEN

[Quite politely, rising.] My darling Cecily, I think there must be some slight error. Mr. Ernest Worthing is engaged to me. The announcement will appear in the Morning Post on Saturday at the latest.

CECILY

[Very politely, rising.] I am afraid you must be under some misconception. Ernest proposed to me exactly ten minutes ago. [Shows diary.]

GWENDOLEN

[Examines diary through her lorgnette carefully.] It is certainly very curious, for he asked me to be his wife yesterday afternoon at 5.30. If you would care to verify the incident, pray do so. [Produces diary of her own.] I never travel without my diary. One should always have something sensational to read in the train. I am so sorry, dear Cecily, if it is any disappointment to you, but I am afraid I have the prior claim.

CECILY

It would distress me more than I can tell you, dear Gwendolen, if it caused you any mental or physical anguish, but I feel bound to point out that since Ernest proposed to you he clearly has changed his mind.

GWENDOLEN

[Meditatively.] If the poor fellow has been entrapped into any foolish promise I shall consider it my duty to rescue him at once, and with a firm hand.

CECILY

[Thoughtfully and sadly.] Whatever un-123
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. fortunate entanglement my dear boy may have got into, I will never reproach him with it after we are married.

GWENDOLEN

Do you allude to me, Miss Cardew, as an entanglement? You are presumptuous. On an occasion of this kind it becomes more than a moral duty to speak one's mind. It becomes a pleasure.

CECILY

Do you suggest, Miss Fairfax, that I entrapped Ernest into an engagement? How dare you? This is no time for wearing the shallow mask of manners. When I see a spade I call it a spade.

GWENDOLEN

[Satirically.] I am glad to say that I have never seen a spade. It is obvious that our social spheres have been widely different.

[Enter MERRIMAN, followed by the footman. He carries a salver, table cloth, and plate stand. CECILY is about to retort. The presence of the servants exercises a restraining influence, under which both girls chafe."

MERRIMAN

Shall I lay tea here as usual, Miss?

CECILY

[Sternly, in a calm voice.] Yes, as usual.

MERRIMAN begins to clear table and lay cloth. A long pause. CECILY and GWENDOLEN glare at each other.

GWENDOLEN

Are there many interesting walks in the vicinity, Miss Cardew?

CECILY

Oh! yes! a great many. From the top of one of the hills quite close one can see five counties.

GWENDOLEN

Five counties! I don't think I should like that; I hate crowds.

CECILY

[Sweetly.] I suppose that is why you live in town? [GWENDOLEN bites her lip, 125
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. and beats her foot nervously with her parasol.

GWENDOLEN
[Looking round.] Quite a well-kept garden this is, Miss Cardew.

CECILY
So glad you like it, Miss Fairfax.

GWENDOLEN
I had no idea there were any flowers in the country.

CECILY
Oh, flowers are as common here, Miss Fairfax, as people are in London.

GWENDOLEN
Personally I cannot understand how anybody manages to exist in the country, if anybody who is anybody does. The country always bores me to death.

CECILY
Ah! This is what the newspapers call agricultural depression, is it not? I believe the aristocracy are suffering very much. from it just at present. It is almost an act II epidemic amongst them, I have been told. May I offer you some tea, Miss Fairfax?

GWENDOLEN

[With elaborate politeness.] Thank you. [Aside.] Detestable girl! But I require tea!

CECILY

[Sweetly.] Sugar?

GWENDOLEN

[Superciliously.] No, thank you. Sugar is not fashionable any more. [CECILY looks angrily at her, takes up the tongs and puts four lumps of sugar into the cup.]

CECILY

[Severely.] Cake or bread and butter?

GWENDOLEN

[In a bored manner.] Bread and butter, please. Cake is rarely seen at the best houses nowadays.

127
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. CECILY

[Cuts a very large slice of cake, and puts it on the tray.] Hand that to Miss Fairfax.

[MERRIMAN does so, and goes out with footman. GWENDOLEN drinks the tea and makes a grimace. Puts down cup at once, reaches out her hand to the bread and butter, looks at it, and finds it is cake. Rises in indignation.]

GWENDOLEN
You have filled my tea with lumps of sugar, and though I asked most distinctly for bread and butter, you have given me cake. I am known for the gentleness of my disposition, and the extraordinary sweetness of my nature, but I warn you, Miss Cardew, you may go too far.

CECILY

[Rising.] To save my poor, innocent, trusting boy from the machinations of any other girl there are no lengths to which I would not go.

128
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

From the moment I saw you I distrusted you. I felt that you were false and deceitful. I am never deceived in such matters. My first impressions of people are invariably right.

CECILY

It seems to me, Miss Fairfax, that I am trespassing on your valuable time. No doubt you have many other calls of a similar character to make in the neighbourhood.

[Enter JACK.]

GWENDOLEN

[Catching sight of him.] Ernest! My own Ernest!

JACK

Gwendolen! Darling! [Offers to kiss her.]

GWENDOLEN

[Drawing back.] A moment! May I ask if you are engaged to be married to this young lady? [Points to CECILY.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. JACK

[Laughing.] To dear little Cecily! Of course not! What could have put such an idea into your pretty little head?

GWENDOLEN

Thank you. You may! [Offers her cheek.]

CECILY

[Very sweetly.] I knew there must be some misunderstanding, Miss Fairfax. The gentleman whose arm is at present round your waist is my dear guardian, Mr. John Worthing.

GWENDOLEN

I beg your pardon?

CECILY

This is Uncle Jack.

GWENDOLEN

[Receding.] Jack! Oh! [Enter ALGERNON.]

CECILY

Here is Ernest.

180
ALGERNON

["Goes straight over to Cecily without noticing any one else."] My own love! ["Offers to kiss her."]

CECILY

["Drawing back."] A moment, Ernest! May I ask you—are you engaged to be married to this young lady?

ALGERNON

["Looking round."] To what young lady? Good heavens! Gwendolen!

CECILY

Yes! to good heavens, Gwendolen, I mean to Gwendolen.

ALGERNON

["Laughing."] Of course not! What could have put such an idea into your pretty little head?

CECILY

Thank you. ["Presenting her cheek to be kissed."] You may. [ALGERNON kisses her.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. GWENDOLEN

I felt there was some slight error, Miss Cardew. The gentleman who is now embracing you is my cousin, Mr. Algernon Moncrieff.

CECILY

[Breaking away from Algernon.] Algernon Moncrieff! Oh! [The two girls move towards each other and put their arms round each other's waists as if for protection.]

CECILY

Are you called Algernon?

ALGERNON

I cannot deny it.

CECILY

Oh!

GWENDOLEN

Is your name really John?

JACK

[Standing rather proudly.] I could deny it if I liked. I could deny anything if I liked. But my name certainly is John. ACT II. It has been John for years.

CECILY

[To GWENDOLEN.] A gross deception has been practised on both of us.

GWENDOLEN

My poor wounded Cecily!

CECILY

My sweet wronged Gwendolen!

GWENDOLEN

[Slowly and seriously.] You will call me sister, will you not? [They embrace. JACK and ALGERNON groan and walk up and down.]

CECILY

[Rather brightly.] There is just one question I would like to be allowed to ask my guardian.

GWENDOLEN

An admirable idea! Mr. Worthing, there is just one question I would like to be permitted to put to you. Where is your
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. brother Ernest? We are both engaged to be married to your brother Ernest, so it is a matter of some importance to us to know where your brother Ernest is at present.

JACK

[Slowly and hesitatingly.] Gwendolen—Cecily—it is very painful for me to be forced to speak the truth. It is the first time in my life that I have ever been reduced to such a painful position, and I am really quite inexperienced in doing anything of the kind. However, I will tell you quite frankly that I have no brother Ernest. I have no brother at all. I never had a brother in my life, and I certainly have not the smallest intention of ever having one in the future.

CECILY

[Surprised.] No brother at all?

JACK

[Cheerily.] None!

134
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

[Severely.] Had you never a brother of any kind?

JACK

[Pleasantly.] Never. Not even of any kind.

GWENDOLEN

I am afraid it is quite clear, Cecily, that neither of us is engaged to be married to any one.

CECILY

It is not a very pleasant position for a young girl suddenly to find herself in. Is it?

GWENDOLEN

Let us go into the house. They will hardly venture to come after us there.

CECILY

No, men are so cowardly, aren’t they?

[They retire into the house with scornful looks.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. JACK

This ghastly state of things is what you call Bunburying, I suppose?

ALGERNON

Yes, and a perfectly wonderful Bunbury it is. The most wonderful Bunbury I have ever had in my life.

JACK

Well, you've no right whatsoever to Bunbury here.

ALGERNON

That is absurd. One has a right to Bunbury anywhere one chooses. Every serious Bunburyist knows that.

JACK

Serious Bunburyist! Good heavens!

ALGERNON

Well, one must be serious about something, if one wants to have any amusement in life. I happen to be serious about Bunburying. What on earth you are serious about I haven't got the remotest idea. About everything, I should fancy. ACT II
BEING EARNEST

You have such an absolutely trivial nature.

JACK
Well, the only small satisfaction I have in the whole of this wretched business is that your friend Bunbury is quite exploded.
You won’t be able to run down to the country quite so often as you used to do, dear Algy. And a very good thing too.

ALGERNON
Your brother is a little off colour, isn’t he, dear Jack? You won’t be able to disappear to London quite so frequently as your wicked custom was. And not a bad thing either.

JACK
As for your conduct towards Miss Cardew, I must say that your taking in a sweet, simple, innocent girl like that is quite inexcusable. To say nothing of the fact that she is my ward.

ALGERNON
I can see no possible defence at all for
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. your deceiving a brilliant, clever, thoroughly experienced young lady like Miss Fairfax. To say nothing of the fact that she is my cousin.

JACK

I wanted to be engaged to Gwendolen, that is all. I love her.

ALGERNON

Well, I simply wanted to be engaged to Cecily. I adore her.

JACK

There is certainly no chance of your marrying Miss Cardew.

ALGERNON

I don't think there is much likelihood, Jack, of you and Miss Fairfax being united.

JACK

Well, that is no business of yours.

ALGERNON

If it was my business, I wouldn't talk about it. [Begins to eat muffins.] It is 188 very vulgar to talk about one's business. ACT II.
Only people like stockbrokers do that, and then merely at dinner parties.

JACK
How can you sit there, calmly eating muffins when we are in this horrible trouble, I can't make out. You seem to me to be perfectly heartless.

ALGERNON
Well, I can't eat muffins in an agitated manner. The butter would probably get on my cuffs. One should always eat muffins quite calmly. It is the only way to eat them.

JACK
I say it's perfectly heartless your eating muffins at all, under the circumstances.

ALGERNON
When I am in trouble, eating is the only thing that consoles me. Indeed, when I am in really great trouble, as any one who knows me intimately will tell you, I refuse everything except food and drink. At the
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. present moment I am eating muffins because I am unhappy. Besides, I am particularly fond of muffins. [Rising.]

JACK

[Rising.] Well, that is no reason why you should eat them all in that greedy way. [Takes muffins from Algernon.]

ALGERNON

[Offering tea-cake.] I wish you would have tea-cake instead. I don’t like tea-cake.

JACK

Good heavens! I suppose a man may eat his own muffins in his own garden.

ALGERNON

But you have just said it was perfectly heartless to eat muffins.

JACK

I said it was perfectly heartless of you, under the circumstances. That is a very different thing.

140
BEING EARNEST

ALGERNON

That may be. But the muffins are the same. [He seizes the muffin-dish from Jack.]

JACK

Algy, I wish to goodness you would go.

ALGERNON

You can’t possibly ask me to go without having some dinner. It’s absurd. I never go without my dinner. No one ever does, except vegetarians and people like that. Besides I have just made arrangements with Dr. Chasuble to be christened at a quarter to six under the name of Ernest.

JACK

My dear fellow, the sooner you give up that nonsense the better. I made arrangements this morning with Dr. Chasuble to be christened myself at 5.30, and I naturally will take the name of Ernest. Gwendolen would wish it. We can’t both be christened Ernest. It’s absurd. Besides, I have a perfect right to be christened if I like.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT II. There is no evidence at all that I ever have been christened by anybody. I should think it extremely probable I never was, and so does Dr. Chasuble. It is entirely different in your case. You have been christened already.

ALGERNON

Yes, but I have not been christened for years.

JACK

Yes, but you have been christened. That is the important thing.

ALGERNON

Quite so. So I know my constitution can stand it. If you are not quite sure about your ever having been christened, I must say I think it rather dangerous your venturing on it now. It might make you very unwell. You can hardly have forgotten that some one very closely connected with you was very nearly carried off this week in Paris by a severe chill.
BEING EARNEST

JACK
Yes, but you said yourself that a severe chill was not hereditary.

ALGERNON
It usen't to be, I know—but I daresay it is now. Science is always making wonderful improvements in things.

JACK
[Picking up the muffin-dish.] Oh, that is nonsense; you are always talking nonsense.

ALGERNON
Jack, you are at the muffins again! I wish you wouldn't. There are only two left. [Takes them.] I told you I was particularly fond of muffins.

JACK
But I hate tea-cake.

ALGERNON
Why on earth then do you allow tea-cake to be served up for your guests? What ideas you have of hospitality!
IMPORTANCE OF BEING EARNEST

ACT II. JACK

Algernon! I have already told you to go. I don't want you here. Why don't you go!

ALGERNON

I haven't quite finished my tea yet! and there is still one muffin left. [JACK groans, and sinks into a chair. ALGERNON still continues eating.]

Act Drop THIRD

ACT THIRD ACT

SCENE

Morning-room at the Manor House.

[GWENDOLEN and CECILY are at the window, looking out into the garden.]

GWENDOLEN

The fact that they did not follow us at once into the house, as any one else would have done, seems to me to show that they have some sense of shame left.

CECILY

They have been eating muffins. That looks like repentance.

GWENDOLEN

[After a pause.] They don’t seem to notice us at all. Couldn’t you cough?

CECILY

But I haven’t got a cough.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. GWENDOLEN
They're looking at us. What effrontery!

CECILY
They're approaching. That's very forward of them.

GWENDOLEN
Let us preserve a dignified silence.

CECILY
Certainly. It's the only thing to do now.

[Enter Jack followed by Algernon. They whistle some dreadful popular air from a British Opera.]

GWENDOLEN
This dignified silence seems to produce an unpleasant effect.

CECILY
A most distasteful one.

GWENDOLEN
But we will not be the first to speak.

CECILY
Certainly not.
BEING EARNEST

GWENDOLEN

Mr. Worthing, I have something very particular to ask you. Much depends on your reply.

CECILY

Gwendolen, your common sense is invaluable. Mr. Moncrieff, kindly answer me the following question. Why did you pretend to be my guardian’s brother?

ALGERNON

In order that I might have an opportunity of meeting you.

CECILY

[To GWENDOLEN.] That certainly seems a satisfactory explanation, does it not?

GWENDOLEN

Yes, dear, if you can believe him.

CECILY

I don’t. But that does not affect the wonderful beauty of his answer.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. GWENDOLEN

True. In matters of grave importance, style, not sincerity is the vital thing. Mr. Worthing, what explanation can you offer to me for pretending to have a brother? Was it in order that you might have an opportunity of coming up to town to see me as often as possible?

JACK

Can you doubt it, Miss Fairfax?

GWENDOLEN

I have the gravest doubts upon the subject. But I intend to crush them. This is not the moment for German scepticism. [Moving to CECILY.] Their explanations appear to be quite satisfactory, especially Mr. Worthing's. That seems to me to have the stamp of truth upon it.

CECILY

I am more than content with what Mr. Moncrieff said. His voice alone inspires one with absolute credulity.

150
GWENDOLEN

Then you think we should forgive them?

CECILY

Yes. I mean no.

GWENDOLEN

True! I had forgotten. There are principles at stake that one cannot surrender. Which of us should tell them? The task is not a pleasant one.

CECILY

Could we not both speak at the same time?

GWENDOLEN

An excellent idea! I nearly always speak at the same time as other people. Will you take the time from me?

CECILY

Certainly. [GWENDOLEN beats time with uplifted finger.]

GWENDOLEN and CECILY

[Speaking together.] Your Christian names are still an insuperable barrier. That is all!
THE IMPORTANCE OF

JACK and ALGERNON

[Speaking together.] Our Christian names! Is that all? But we are going to be christened this afternoon.

GWENDOLEN

[To JACK.] For my sake you are prepared to do this terrible thing?

JACK

I am.

CECILY

[To ALGERNON.] To please me you are ready to face this fearful ordeal?

ALGERNON

I am!

GWENDOLEN

How absurd to talk of the equality of the sexes! Where questions of self-sacrifice are concerned, men are infinitely beyond us.

152
BEING EARNEST

ACT III

JACK

We are. [Clasps hands with Algernon.]

CECILY

They have moments of physical courage of which we women know absolutely nothing.

GWENDOLEN

[To Jack.] Darling!

ALGERNON

[To Cecily.] Darling! [They fall into each other's arms.]

[Enter Merriman. When he enters he coughs loudly, seeing the situation.]

MERRIMAN

Ahem! Ahem! Lady Bracknell!

JACK

Good heavens!

[Enter Lady Bracknell. The couples separate in alarm. Exit Merriman.]

LADY BRACKNELL

Gwendolen! What does this mean?

153
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. GWENDOLEN

Merely that I am engaged to be married to Mr. Worthing, mamma.

LADY BRACKNELL

Come here. Sit down. Sit down immediately. Hesitation of any kind is a sign of mental decay in the young, of physical weakness in the old. [Turns to JACK.] Apprised, sir, of my daughter's sudden flight by her trusty maid, whose confidence I purchased by means of a small coin, I followed her at once by a luggage train. Her unhappy father is, I am glad to say, under the impression that she is attending a more than usually lengthy lecture by the University Extension Scheme on the Influence of a permanent income on Thought. I do not propose to undeceive him. Indeed I have never undeceived him on any question. I would consider it wrong. But of course, you will clearly understand that all communication between yourself and my daughter must cease immediately from this moment.
BEING EARNEST

On this point, as indeed on all points, I am firm.

JACK

I am engaged to be married to Gwendolen, Lady Bracknell!

LADY BRACKNELL

You are nothing of the kind, sir. And now, as regards Algernon!... Algernon!

ALGERNON

Yes, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL

May I ask if it is in this house that your invalid friend Mr. Bunbury resides?

ALGERNON

[Stammering.] Oh! No! Bunbury doesn’t live here. Bunbury is somewhere else at present. In fact, Bunbury is dead.

LADY BRACKNELL

Dead! When did Mr. Bunbury die? His death must have been extremely sudden.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. ALGERNON

[Airily.] Oh! I killed Bunbury this afternoon. I mean poor Bunbury died this afternoon.

LADY BRACKNELL

What did he die of?

ALGERNON

Bunbury? Oh, he was quite exploded.

LADY BRACKNELL

Exploded! Was he the victim of a revolutionary outrage? I was not aware that Mr. Bunbury was interested in social legislation. If so, he is well punished for his morbidity.

ALGERNON

My dear Aunt Augusta, I mean he was found out! The doctors found out that Bunbury could not live, that is what I mean—so Bunbury died.

LADY BRACKNELL

He seems to have had great confidence in the opinion of his physicians. I am glad, however, that he made up his mind at the last to some definite course of action, and acted under proper medical advice. And now that we have finally got rid of this Mr. Bunbury, may I ask, Mr. Worthing, who is that young person whose hand my nephew Algernon is now holding in what seems to me a peculiarly unnecessary manner?
BEING EARNEST

JACK

That lady is Miss Cecily Cardew, my ward. [LADY BRACKNELL bows coldly to CECILY.]

ALGERNON

I am engaged to be married to Cecily, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL

I beg your pardon?

CECILY

Mr. Moncrieff and I are engaged to be married, Lady Bracknell.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. LADY BRACKNELL

[With a shiver, crossing to the sofa and sitting down.] I do not know whether there is anything peculiarly exciting in the air of this particular part of Hertfordshire, but the number of engagements that go on seems to me considerably above the proper average that statistics have laid down for our guidance. I think some preliminary inquiry on my part would not be out of place. Mr. Worthing, is Miss Cardew at all connected with any of the larger railway stations in London? I merely desire information. Until yesterday I had no idea that there were any families or persons whose origin was a Terminus. [JACK looks perfectly furious, but restrains himself.]

JACK

[In a clear, cold voice.] Miss Cardew is the grand-daughter of the late Mr. Thomas Cardew of 149 Belgrave Square, S.W.; Gervase Park, Dorking, Surrey; and the Sporran, Fifeshire, N.B.
BEING EARNEST

LADY BRACKNELL

That sounds not unsatisfactory. Three addresses always inspire confidence, even in tradesmen. But what proof have I of their authenticity?

JACK

I have carefully preserved the Court Guides of the period. They are open to your inspection, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Grimly.] I have known strange errors in that publication.

JACK

Miss Cardew's family solicitors are Messrs. Markby, Markby, and Markby.

LADY BRACKNELL

Markby, Markby, and Markby? A firm of the very highest position in their profession. Indeed I am told that one of the Mr. Markby's is occasionally to be seen at dinner parties. So far I am satisfied.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. JACK

[Very irritably.] How extremely kind of you, Lady Bracknell! I have also in my possession, you will be pleased to hear, certificates of Miss Cardew’s birth, baptism, whooping cough, registration, vaccination, confirmation, and the measles; both the German and the English variety.

LADY BRACKNELL

Ah! A life crowded with incident, I see; though perhaps somewhat too exciting for a young girl. I am not myself in favour of premature experiences. [Rises, looks at her watch.] Gwendolen! the time approaches for our departure. We have not a moment to lose. As a matter of form, Mr. Worthing, I had better ask you if Miss Cardew has any little fortune?

JACK

Oh! about a hundred and thirty thousand pounds in the Funds. That is all. Goodbye, Lady Bracknell. So pleased to have seen you.

160
LADY BRACKNELL

[Sitting down again.] A moment, Mr. Worthing. A hundred and thirty thousand pounds! And in the Funds! Miss Cardew seems to me a most attractive young lady, now that I look at her. Few girls of the present day have any really solid qualities, any of the qualities that last, and improve with time. We live, I regret to say, in an age of surfaces. [To Cecily.] Come over here, dear. [Cecily goes across.] Pretty child! your dress is sadly simple, and your hair seems almost as Nature might have left it. But we can soon alter all that. A thoroughly experienced French maid produces a really marvellous result in a very brief space of time. I remember recommending one to young Lady Lancing, and after three months her own husband did not know her.

JACK

And after six months nobody knew her.

161
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. LADY BRACKNELL

[Glares at Jack for a few moments. Then bends, with a practised smile, to Cecily.] Kindly turn round, sweet child. [Cecily turns completely round.] No, the side view is what I want. [Cecily presents her profile.] Yes, quite as I expected. There are distinct social possibilities in your profile. The two weak points in our age are its want of principle and its want of profile. The chin a little higher, dear. Style largely depends on the way the chin is worn. They are worn very high, just at present. Algernon!

ALGERNON

Yes, Aunt Augusta!

LADY BRACKNELL

There are distinct social possibilities in Miss Cardew's profile.

ALGERNON

Cecily is the sweetest, dearest, prettiest girl in the whole world. And I don't care twopence about social possibilities.

162
LADY BRACKNELL

Never speak disrespectfully of Society, Algernon. Only people who can't get into it do that. [To Cecily.] Dear child, of course you know that Algernon has nothing but his debts to depend upon. But I do not approve of mercenary marriages. When I married Lord Bracknell I had no fortune of any kind. But I never dreamed for a moment of allowing that to stand in my way. Well, I suppose I must give my consent.

ALGERNON

Thank you, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL

Cecily, you may kiss me!

CECILY

[Kisses her.] Thank you, Lady Bracknell.

LADY BRACKNELL

You may also address me as Aunt Augusta for the future.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. CECILY
   Thank you, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL
   The marriage, I think, had better take place quite soon.

ALGERNON
   Thank you, Aunt Augusta.

CECILY
   Thank you, Aunt Augusta.

LADY BRACKNELL
   To speak frankly, I am not in favour of long engagements. They give people the opportunity of finding out each other's character before marriage, which I think is never advisable.

JACK
   I beg your pardon for interrupting you, Lady Bracknell, but this engagement is quite out of the question. I am Miss Cardew's guardian, and she cannot marry without my consent until she comes of age. That consent I absolutely decline to give.
BEING EARNEST

LADY BRACKNELL

Upon what grounds may I ask? Algernon is an extremely, I may almost say an ostentatiously, eligible young man. He has nothing, but he looks everything. What more can one desire?

JACK

It pains me very much to have to speak frankly to you, Lady Bracknell, about your nephew, but the fact is that I do not approve at all of his moral character. I suspect him of being untruthful. [ALGERNON and CECILY look at him in indignant amazement.]

LADY BRACKNELL

Untruthful! My nephew Algernon? Impossible! He is an Oxonian.

JACK

I fear there can be no possible doubt about the matter. This afternoon, during my temporary absence in London on an important question of romance, he obtained admission to my house by means of the
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. false pretence of being my brother. Under an assumed name he drank, I've just been informed by my butler, an entire pint bottle of my Perrier-Jouet, Brut, '89; a wine I was specially reserving for myself. Continuing his disgraceful deception, he succeeded in the course of the afternoon in alienating the affections of my only ward. He subsequently stayed to tea, and devoured every single muffin. And what makes his conduct all the more heartless is, that he was perfectly well aware from the first that I have no brother, that I never had a brother, and that I don't intend to have a brother, not even of any kind. I distinctly told him so myself yesterday afternoon.

LADY BRACKNELL

Ahem! Mr. Worthing, after careful consideration I have decided entirely to overlook my nephew's conduct to you.

JACK

That is very generous of you, Lady
BEING EARNEST

Bracknell. My own decision, however, is ACT III, unalterable. I decline to give my consent.

LADY BRACKNELL

[To CECILY.] Come here, sweet child. [CECILY goes over.] How old are you, dear?

CECILY

Well, I am really only eighteen, but I always admit to twenty when I go to evening parties.

LADY BRACKNELL

You are perfectly right in making some slight alteration. Indeed, no woman should ever be quite accurate about her age. It looks so calculating. . . . [In a meditative manner.] Eighteen, but admitting to twenty at evening parties. Well, it will not be very long before you are of age and free from the restraints of tutelage. So I don't think your guardian's consent is, after all, a matter of any importance.

JACK

Pray excuse me, Lady Bracknell, for
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. interrupting you again, but it is only fair to tell you that according to the terms of her grandfather's will Miss Cardew does not come legally of age till she is thirty-five.

LADY BRACKNELL

That does not seem to me to be a grave objection. Thirty-five is a very attractive age. London society is full of women of the very highest birth who have, of their own free choice, remained thirty-five for years. Lady Dumbleton is an instance in point. To my own knowledge she has been thirty-five ever since she arrived at the age of forty, which was many years ago now. I see no reason why our dear Cecily should not be even still more attractive at the age you mention than she is at present. There will be a large accumulation of property.

CECILY

Algy, could you wait for me till I was thirty-five?

168
Of course I could, Cecily. You know I could.

Yes, I felt it instinctively, but I couldn't wait all that time. I hate waiting even five minutes for anybody. It always makes me rather cross. I am not punctual myself, I know, but I do like punctuality in others, and waiting, even to be married, is quite out of the question.

Then what is to be done, Cecily?

I don't know, Mr. Moncrieff.

My dear Mr. Worthing, as Miss Cardew states positively that she cannot wait till she is thirty-five—a remark which I am bound to say seems to me to show a somewhat impatient nature—I would beg of you to reconsider your decision.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. JACK

But my dear Lady Bracknell, the matter is entirely in your own hands. The moment you consent to my marriage with Gwendolen, I will most gladly allow your nephew to form an alliance with my ward.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Rising and drawing herself up.] You must be quite aware that what you propose is out of the question.

JACK

Then a passionate celibacy is all that any of us can look forward to.

LADY BRACKNELL

That is not the destiny I propose for Gwendolen. Algernon, of course, can choose for himself. [Pulls out her watch.] Come, dear; [GWENDOLEN rises] we have already missed five, if not six, trains. To miss any more might expose us to comment on the platform.

[Enter DR. CHASUBLE.]
Everything is quite ready for the christenings.

Lady Bracknell

The christenings, sir! Is not that somewhat premature?

Chasuble

[Looking rather puzzled, and pointing to Jack and Algernon.] Both these gentlemen have expressed a desire for immediate baptism.

Lady Bracknell

At their age? The idea is grotesque and irreligious! Algernon, I forbid you to be baptized. I will not hear of such excesses. Lord Bracknell would be highly displeased if he learned that that was the way in which you wasted your time and money.

Chasuble

Am I to understand then that there are to be no christenings at all this afternoon?
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. JACK

I don't think that, as things are now, it would be of much practical value to either of us, Dr. Chasuble.

CHASUBLE

I am grieved to hear such sentiments from you, Mr. Worthing. They savour of the heretical views of the Anabaptists, views that I have completely refuted in four of my unpublished sermons. However, as your present mood seems to be one peculiarly secular, I will return to the church at once. Indeed, I have just been informed by the pew-opener that for the last hour and a half Miss Prism has been waiting for me in the vestry.

LADY BRACKNELL

[Starting.] Miss Prism! Did I hear you mention a Miss Prism?

CHASUBLE

Yes, Lady Bracknell. I am on my way to join her.
Pray allow me to detain you for a moment. This matter may prove to be one of vital importance to Lord Bracknell and myself. Is this Miss Prism a female of repellent aspect, remotely connected with education?

[Somewhat indignantly.] She is the most cultivated of ladies, and the very picture of respectability.

It is obviously the same person. May I ask what position she holds in your household?

[Severely.] I am a celibate, madam.

[Interposing.] Miss Prism, Lady Bracknell, has been for the last three years Miss Cardew's esteemed governess and valued companion.
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. LADY BRACKNELL

In spite of what I hear of her, I must see her at once. Let her be sent for.

CHASUBLE

[Looking off.] She approaches; she is nigh.

[Enter MISS PRISM hurriedly.]

MISS PRISM

I was told you expected me in the vestry, dear Canon. I have been waiting for you there for an hour and three-quarters. [Catches sight of LADY BRACKNELL who has fixed her with a stony glare. MISS PRISM grows pale and quails. She looks anxiously round as if desirous to escape.]

LADY BRACKNELL

[In a severe, judicial voice.] Prism! [MISS PRISM bows her head in shame.] Come here, Prism! [MISS PRISM approaches in a humble manner.] Prism! Where is that baby? [General consternation. The CANON starts back in horror. ALGERNON and JACK 174] pretend to be anxious to shield Cecily and Gwendolen from hearing the details of a terrible public scandal.] Twenty-eight years ago, Prism, you left Lord Bracknell’s house, Number 104, Upper Grosvenor Street, in charge of a perambulator that contained a baby of the male sex. You never returned. A few weeks later, through the elaborate investigations of the Metropolitan police, the perambulator was discovered at midnight, standing by itself in a remote corner of Bayswater. It contained the manuscript of a three-volume novel of more than usually revolting sentimentality. [MISS PRISM starts in involuntary indignation.] But the baby was not there! Every one looks at MISS PRISM.] Prism! Where is that baby? [A pause.]

MISS PRISM

Lady Bracknell, I admit with shame that I do not know. I only wish I did. The plain facts of the case are these. On the morning of the day you mention, a day that is for ever branded on my memory,
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. I prepared as usual to take the baby out in its perambulator. I had also with me a somewhat old, but capacious hand-bag in which I had intended to place the manuscript of a work of fiction that I had written during my few unoccupied hours. In a moment of mental abstraction, for which I never can forgive myself, I deposited the manuscript in the basinet, and placed the baby in the hand-bag.

JACK

[Who has been listening attentively.] But where did you deposit the hand-bag?

MISS PRISM

Do not ask me, Mr. Worthing.

JACK

Miss Prism, this is a matter of no small importance to me. I insist on knowing where you deposited the hand-bag that contained that infant.

MISS PRISM

I left it in the cloak-room of one of the larger railway stations in London.
What railway station?

[Quite crushed.] Victoria. The Brighton line. [Sinks into a chair.]

I must retire to my room for a moment. Gwendolen, wait here for me.

If you are not too long, I will wait here for you all my life.

[Exit Jack in great excitement.]

What do you think this means, Lady Bracknell?

I dare not even suspect, Dr. Chasuble. I need hardly tell you that in families of high position strange coincidences are not supposed to occur. They are hardly considered the thing.

[Noises heard overhead as if some one was throwing trunks about. Every one looks up.]
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. CECILY
Uncle Jack seems strangely agitated.

CHASUBLE
Your guardian has a very emotional nature.

LADY BRACKNELL
This noise is extremely unpleasant. It sounds as if he was having an argument. I dislike arguments of any kind. They are always vulgar, and often convincing.

CHASUBLE
[Looking up.] It has stopped now. [The noise is redoubled.]

LADY BRACKNELL
I wish he would arrive at some conclusion.

GWENDOLEN
This suspense is terrible. I hope it will last.

[Enter Jack with a hand-bag of black leather in his hand.]
Rushing over to Miss Prism. Is this the hand-bag, Miss Prism? Examine it carefully before you speak. The happiness of more than one life depends on your answer.

Miss Prism

[Calmly.] It seems to be mine. Yes, here is the injury it received through the upsetting of a Gower Street omnibus in younger and happier days. Here is the stain on the lining caused by the explosion of a temperance beverage, an incident that occurred at Leamington. And here, on the lock, are my initials. I had forgotten that in an extravagant mood I had had them placed there. The bag is undoubtedly mine. I am delighted to have it so unexpectedly restored to me. It has been a great inconvenience being without it all these years.

JACK

[In a pathetic voice.] Miss Prism, more
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. is restored to you than this hand-bag. I was the baby you placed in it.

MISS PRISM [Amazed.] You?

JACK
  [Embracing her.] Yes . . . mother!

MISS PRISM
  [Recoiling in indignant astonishment.]
Mr. Worthing! I am unmarried!

JACK
  Unmarried! I do not deny that is a serious blow. But after all, who has the right to cast a stone against one who has suffered? Cannot repentance wipe out an act of folly? Why should there be one law for men, and another for women? Mother, I forgive you. [Tries to embrace her again.]

MISS PRISM
  [Still more indignant.] Mr. Worthing, there is some error. [Pointing to Lady Bracknell.] There is the lady who can tell you who you really are.

BEING EARNEST

JACK

[After a pause.] Lady Bracknell, I hate to seem inquisitive, but would you kindly inform me who I am?

LADY BRACKNELL

I am afraid that the news I have to give you will not altogether please you. You are the son of my poor sister, Mrs. Moncrieff, and consequently Algernon's elder brother.

JACK

Algry's elder brother! Then I have a brother after all. I knew I had a brother! I always said I had a brother! Cecily,—how could you have ever doubted that I had a brother? [Seizes hold of Algernon.] Dr. Chasuble, my unfortunate brother. Miss Prism, my unfortunate brother. Gwendolen, my unfortunate brother. Algy, you young scoundrel, you will have to treat me with more respect in the future. You have never behaved to me like a brother in all your life.

THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III

ALGERNON

Well, not till to-day, old boy, I admit. I did my best, however, though I was out of practice. [Shakes hands.]

GWENDOLEN

[To Jack.] My own! But what own are you? What is your Christian name, now that you have become some one else?

JACK

Good heavens! ... I had quite forgotten that point. Your decision on the subject of my name is irrevocable, I suppose?

GWENDOLEN

I never change, except in my affections.

CECILY

What a noble nature you have, Gwendolen!

JACK

Then the question had better be cleared up at once. Aunt Augusta, a moment. At the time when Miss Prism left me in the hand-bag, had I been christened ACT III already?

LADY BRACKNELL

Every luxury that money could buy, including christening, had been lavished on you by your fond and doting parents.

JACK

Then I was christened! That is settled. Now, what name was I given? Let me know the worst.

LADY BRACKNELL

Being the eldest son you were naturally christened after your father.

JACK

[Irritably.] Yes, but what was my father's Christian name?

LADY BRACKNELL

[Meditatively.] I cannot at the present moment recall what the General's Christian name was. But I have no doubt he had one. He was eccentric, I admit. But only in later years. And that was the 183
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. result of the Indian climate, and marriage, and indigestion, and other things of that kind.

JACK

Algy! Can't you recollect what our father's Christian name was?

ALGERNON

My dear boy, we were never even on speaking terms. He died before I was a year old.

JACK

His name would appear in the Army Lists of the period, I suppose, Aunt Augusta?

LADY BRACKNELL

The General was essentially a man of peace, except in his domestic life. But I have no doubt his name would appear in any military directory.

JACK

The Army Lists of the last forty years are here. These delightful records should have been my constant study. [Rushes ACT III. to bookcase and tears the books out.] M. Generals . . . . Mallam, Maxbohm, Magley, what ghastly names they have—Markby, Migsby, Mobbs, Moncrieff! Lieutenant 1840, Captain, Lieutenant-Colonel, Colonel, General 1869, Christian names, Ernest John. [Puts book very quietly down and speaks quite calmly.] I always told you, Gwendolen, my name was Ernest, didn’t I? Well, it is Ernest after all. I mean it naturally is Ernest.

LADY BRACKNELL

Yes, I remember now that the General was called Ernest. I knew I had some particular reason for disliking the name.

GWENDOLEN

Ernest! My own Ernest! I felt from the first that you could have no other name!

JACK

Gwendolen, it is a terrible thing for a
THE IMPORTANCE OF

ACT III. man to find out suddenly that all his life he has been speaking nothing but the truth. Can you forgive me?

GWENDOLEN
I can. For I feel that you are sure to change.

JACK
My own one!

CHASUBLE
[To MISS PRISM.] Lætitia! [Embraces her.]

MISS PRISM
[Enthusiastically.] Frederick! At last!

ALGERNON
Cecily! [Embraces her.] At last!

JACK
Gwendolen! [Embraces her.] At last!

LADY BRACKNELL
My nephew, you seem to be displaying signs of triviality.

BEING EARNEST

ACT III

JACK

On the contrary, Aunt Augusta, I’ve now realised for the first time in my life the vital Importance of Being Earnest.
