

TPRS Mini-Story for Day Two

Teacher translates this mini-story into Target Language and provides text to student pairs for translation:

A photographer at (name of local newspaper) is planning the layout and choosing some of the photographs taken at the scene to include in the layout for the following article:

An enormous fire occurred yesterday in the center of town. The firefighters fought the blaze for more than five hours. Unfortunately, the apartment building in which the fire started was burned to the ground.

Witnesses saw lots of smoke coming out of the windows of the 4th floor. A police officer saw an old man looking out of a window on that floor. The old man was yelling, "Save me, Save me!" The police immediately called for an ambulance.

One of the fire fighters at the scene, (name of fire fighter), ran into the burning building and came out about three minutes later. He was carrying the old man in his arms. Several ambulance paramedics ran to the old man and carried him to the ambulance. They drove away at top speed, their siren screaming.

(Name of fire fighter) risked his own life to save the life of the old man. What a hero!

©Flo Martin, 2008