FOREWORD

The Rwanda Education Board is honoured to provide syllabuses which serve as official documents and guide to competency based teaching and learning in order to ensure consistency and coherence in the delivery of quality education across all levels of general education in Rwandan schools.

The Rwandan education philosophy is to ensure that young people at every level of education achieve their full potential in terms of relevant knowledge, skills and appropriate attitudes that prepare them to be well integrated into society and make the best use of employment opportunities.

In line with efforts to improve the quality of education, the government of Rwanda emphasises the importance of aligning the syllabus, teaching and learning and assessment approaches in order to ensure that the system is producing the kind of citizens the country needs. Many factors influence what children are taught, how well they learn and the competencies they acquire, among them the relevance of the syllabus, the quality of teachers' pedagogical approaches, the assessment strategies and the instructional materials available. The ambition to develop a knowledge based society and the growth of regional and global competition in the jobs market has necessitated the shift to a competence-based syllabus. With the help of the teachers, whose role is central to the success of the syllabus, learners will gain appropriate skills and be able to apply what they have learned in real life situations. Hence they will make a difference not only to their own lives but also to the success of the nation.

I wish to sincerely extend my appreciation to the people who contributed towards the development of this document, particularly REB and its staff who organised the whole process from its inception. Special appreciation goes to the development partners who supported the exercise throughout.

Mr GASANA I Janvier, Director General REB.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I wish to sincerely extend my special appreciation to the people who played a major role in development of this syllabus. It would not have been successful without the participation of a number of different education stakeholders and the financial support from different donors. For this I would like to express my deep gratitude.

My thanks first go to the Rwanda Education Board staff who were involved in the conception and writing of this syllabus. I wish to extend my appreciation to teachers from pre-primary to university level for their valuable efforts during the conception of the syllabus.

I owe sincere gratitude to different education partners such as UNICEF, UNFPA, DFID and Access to Finance Rwanda for their financial and technical support.

We also value the contribution of other education partner organisations such as CNLG, AEGIS trust, Itorero ry'Igihugu, Gender Monitoring Office, National Unity and Reconciliation Commission, RBS, REMA, Handicap International, Wellspring Foundation, Right to Play, MEDISAR, EDC/L3, EDC/Akazi Kanoze, Save the Children, Faith Based Organisations, WDA, MINECOFIN and local and international consultants. Their respective initiatives, cooperation and support significantly contributed to successful production of this syllabus by the Curriculum and Pedagogical Material Production Department (CPMD).

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1. Background to the syllabus review

Vision 2020 and other recent Rwandan Government policies emphasise the ambition of Rwanda becoming a knowledge based and technology led economy. These policies stress the need for the generation, dissemination and acquisition of scientific skills and technological innovations, critical thinking, and positive values. The integration of these skills into the social and economic development of Rwanda is critical. English is one of the official languages and medium of instruction in schools. It plays an important role in the achievement of this vision.

1.2. Rationale

Since Rwanda is an English speaking country and a member of the East African Community and the Commonwealth the teaching of English requires a competence based curriculum. The curriculum of any country acts as its guiding light. The basis of this English curriculum review is the need for Rwanda to shift towards a competence based curriculum that focuses on developing the wholeness of the learner. This wholeness will not only be achieved by providing knowledge and skills, but also through cultivating and inspiring certain attitudes as well as creating occasions and activities during the teaching learning process that would enable learners to think critically. This will allow learners to be able to compete favourably and fit into East Africa and the wider global community. This global outlook has underpinned the adoption and use of English as the language of instruction in Rwandan schools. One of the most important elements of this curriculum review was to organise and provide content and activities that would lead to a higher 'learning achievement'.

Therefore, well thought through learning activities and questions have been designed in the syllabus. This will challenge students to think independently as well as in groups. It is not just about the knowledge of language [the four skill areas] but how learners can work in English to reason, express themselves and solve problems in a wide range of situations.

1.2.1. English and society

Communication sits at the very base of every development trend in any country and this is particularly true for Rwanda. Learning English will not only enable learners to pass their exams but will also place them in a better position once they have finished school to transact business with ease, and exploit opportunities at local and international levels, particularly where the knowledge of English is a key prerequisite. For this reason, English will be taught as a subject from nursery through to university, and it will be fully used as the language of instruction from Primary four onwards. Students at lower primary level will be hopefully building on the solid language foundation they should have acquired from pre-primary up to this level.

As indeed before engaging English as both an official language and the language of instruction in schools of Rwanda, Rwandans could not effectively relate with, transact and fully exploit business and other opportunities in East Africa, the Commonwealth and the rest of the English speaking world. With the introduction of English in Rwanda, these problems will be solved.

1.2.2. English and the learners

English language is crucial for learners of this level to further and achieve learning in other subjects at higher levels of education since English would be thereafter their medium of instruction from upper primary level of education and onwards. As one of the official languages, English is also useful for learners to integrate into business and working situations in Rwanda.

As Rwanda is part of the East Africa Community and the Commonwealth, students with a mastery of the English language will be able to explore opportunities provided through these political and economic alliances and become competitive in the job market.

Finally, English has become a global language, especially in the science and technology fields. Students with higher educational goals will benefit from learning English in Rwanda so they can access education abroad.

1.2.3. Competences

A competency is the ability to perform a particular task successfully, resulting from having gained an appropriate combination of knowledge, skills and attitudes. The national policy documents, based on the national aspirations, identify 'basic competences' alongside the 'generic competences' that will develop higher order thinking skills. Basic competences are addressed in the stated broad subject competences and in the objectives highlighted on a year on year basis and in each of the units of learning. The selection of types of learning activities must focus on how the learners are able to demonstrate these competences throughout and at the end of the learning process. A generic competence is a competence that is not specific to a particular subject or situation. Generic competences are transferrable and applicable to a range of subjects and situations including employment. The core competences that must be emphasised and reflected in the learning process are briefly described below and teachers will ensure that learners are exposed to tasks that help the learners acquire such skills.

Critical thinking and problem solving skills: The acquisition of these skills will help learners to think imaginatively and broadly to evaluate and find solutions to problems encountered in all situations.

Creativity and innovation: The acquisition of these skills will help learners take initiative and use imagination beyond the knowledge provided to generate new ideas and construct new concepts.

Research: This will help learners find answers to questions based on existing information and concepts, and to explain phenomena based on findings from information gathered.

Communication in official languages: Teachers, irrespective of not being teachers of language, will ensure the proper use of the language of instruction by learners which will help them to communicate clearly and confidently. It will also help them to convey ideas effectively through speaking and writing and using the correct language structure and relevant vocabulary.

Cooperation, interpersonal management and life skills: This will help the learner to cooperate with others as a team in whatever task is assigned and to practise positive ethical moral values and respect for the rights, feelings and views of others. Learners will perform practical activities related to environmental conservation and protection. They will also advocate for personal, family and community health, hygiene and nutrition and respond creatively to the variety of challenges encountered in life.

Lifelong learning: The acquisition of these skills will help learners update knowledge and skills with minimum external support and to cope with evolution of knowledge advances for personal fulfilment in areas that need improvement and development.

Broad English syllabus competences

The syllabus competences listed below describe the educational purposes of a course based on this syllabus. They outline the educational context in which the syllabus content should be viewed. These competences are the same for all learners and are not listed in order of priority. Some of these competences may be delivered by the use of suitable local, international or historical examples and applications, or through collaborative experimental work.

The pupils at lower primary level should be helped to:

- Communicate information, ideas and feelings appropriately and effectively using related simple language in a range of different social settings and cultural contexts.
- Listen attentively and read fluently both for information and for pleasure.
- Demonstrate an adequate command of vocabulary and language patterns in simple texts and pictures to enable learning and communication in English in a given situation.
- Listen to and understand English as it is spoken in a given authentic situation.

2. PEDAGOGICAL APPROACH

Since each learner is an individual with own needs, pace of learning, experiences and abilities, teaching strategies must be varied but flexible within well-structured sequences of lessons. However, learner centered education does not mean that the teacher no longer has responsibility for seeing that learning takes place. Teachers will find useful suggestions to implement the learner centered and interactive learning approach in the activities and methodology columns of this curriculum.

Language learning is a process. But at this level, a learner is expected to have achieved some English language basics. When learners make errors, the teacher should support them accordingly, but also accept their attempts to use the language correctly.

At this stage, pupils are also encouraged and expected to progressively develop a culture of reading for both information and enjoyment.

Schools should provide a conducive environment for learners to practise their English by participating in different activities such as role playing, poetry, drawing and music. This is will be of benefit as pupils learn well when they are actively involved in the learning process through a high degree of participation, contribution and production.

With improved language abilities at this level and with continued teacher to learner support, learners will read more fluently and write accurately simple words and texts. Teachers must bear in mind that pupils learn in different ways and at different rates.

Teachers need to provide a variety of learning experiences to support all learners. The classroom should be a safe and friendly place in which to learn and experiment with the language by:

- Ensuring constant access for pupils to the library and encouraging them to read and write within and beyond the framework of the curriculum with comprehension.

- Writing accurately for both functional and creative writing purposes.
- Integrating into other English speaking communities with a minimum command of the English language characterised by related adequate competences, knowledge and attitudes.

2.1. Role of the teacher

The change to a competence based curriculum is about transforming learning, ensuring that it is deep, enjoyable and habit forming.

The teacher ought to shift from the traditional method of instruction to a facilitator role. This will allow learners to actively be involved in the teaching learning process.

The teacher must identify the needs of learners, the nature of the learning to be carried out, and the means to shape learning experiences through challenging level appropriate situations in order to enhance critical thinking and problem solving skills. The role of the teacher is to organise learners in and outside the classroom and to engage them while using participatory and interactive methods throughout the learning process. Tasks can be given to individuals, pairs and groups. This ensures that learning is personalised, participative and cooperative. The teacher will design and introduce tasks to the class to perform [as in a role play] or for immediate discussion. The role of the teacher will be to guide the learners in constructing their own knowledge and to translate that knowledge into set competences.

Learners should be taught how to use the textbooks and other resource materials in different ways, including searching for and making use of information in expressive, denotative and connotative contexts.

2.2. Role of the learner

The activities of the learner are indicated in each learning unit and reflect appropriate engagement in the learning process.

The teaching and learning processes should be tailored towards creating a learner friendly environment based on learners' capabilities, needs, experience and interests.

The learning activities should be organised in a way that encourages learners to construct knowledge, either individually or in groups, in an active and engaging way.

Learners work on key competences, in the form of concrete units, with specific learning outcomes broken down into knowledge, skills and attitude.

In practical lessons, learners will work in groups as much as possible for mutual and peer language learning. They will also be encouraged to do simple project work individually.

2.3. Special needs education and inclusive approach

All Rwandans have the right to access education regardless of their different needs. The underpinnings of this provision would naturally hold that all citizens benefit from the same menu of educational programs. The possibility of this assumption is the focus of special needs education. The critical issue is that we have persons/ learners who are totally different in their ways of living and learning, as opposed to the majority. These differences can either be emotional, physical or sensory. Traditionally intellectual learning challenges were known as mental retardation.

These learners equally have the right to benefit from the free and compulsory basic education in the nearby ordinary/mainstream school. Therefore, the school's role is to enrol them and also set strategies to provide them with relevant education. The teacher is requested to consider each learner's needs during the teaching and learning process. Assessment strategies and conditions should also be standardised to the needs of these learners. Detailed guidance for each category of learner with special education needs is provided for in the guidance for teachers.

3. ASSESSMENT APPROACHES

Assessment is the process of evaluating the teaching and learning processes through collecting and interpreting evidence of an individual learner's learning progress. It also makes a judgment about a learner's achievements measured against defined standards. Assessment is an integral part of the teaching learning processes. In the new competence based curriculum assessment must also be competence based. As such, learners will be given a complex situation related to their everyday life and asked to try to overcome the situation by applying what they have learned.

Assessment at lower primary is normally done at school level or through any organised event such as school competition or National Assessment (LARS).

3.1. Types of assessment

3.1.1. Formative and continuous assessment (assessment for learning)

Continuous assessment involves formal and informal methods used by schools to check whether learning is taking place. When teachers are planning their lessons, they should establish criteria for performance and behavioural changes at the beginning of a unit. Then at the end of every unit, the teacher should ensure that all the learners have mastered the stated key unit competences based on the criteria stated, before going to the next unit. The teacher will assess how well each learner masters both the subject and the generic competences described in the syllabus, and from this, the teacher will gain a picture of the all-round progress of the learner. The teacher will use one or a combination of the following: (a) observation (b) pen and paper (c) oral questioning.

3.1.2. Summative assessment (assessment of learning)

When assessment is used to record a judgment of a competence or the performance of the learner, it serves a summative purpose. Summative assessment provides a picture of a learner's competence or progress at any specific moment. The main purpose of summative assessment is to evaluate whether learning objectives have been achieved. The results of the assessment is used for the ranking or grading of learners, for deciding on progression, for selection into the next level of education, and for certification. This assessment should have an integrative aspect whereby a student must be able to show mastery of all competences.

For this level, assessment can be internal school based or external in the form inter school competitions. School based summative assessment should take place once at the end of each term and once at the end of the year.

3.2. Record keeping

This is gathering facts and evidence from assessment instruments and using them to judge the learner's performance by assigning an indicator against the set criteria or standard. Whatever the assessment procedures that are used they shall generate data in the form of scores which will be carefully recorded and stored in a portfolio. These scores will be used for remedial action, for alternative instructional strategy, for feedback to the learner and to their parents to check the learning progress and to advice accordingly, or for the final assessment of the learners.

This portfolio is a folder (or binder or even a digital collection) containing the learner's work as well as the learner's evaluation of the strengths and weaknesses of their work. Portfolios reflect not only work produced (such as papers and assignments), but are also a record of the activities undertaken over time as part of student learning. They also serve as a verification tool for each learner that they attended the whole learning before they undergo the summative assessment for the subject.

3.3. Item writing in summative assessment

Before developing a question paper, a plan or specification of what is to be tested or examined must be developed. This plan should show the units or topics to be tested on, the number of questions in each level of Bloom's taxonomy and the marks allocation for each question. In a competency based curriculum, questions from the higher levels of Bloom's taxonomy should be given more weight than those from the knowledge and comprehension level.

Before developing a question paper, the item writer must ensure that the test or examination questions are tailored towards competency based assessment by doing the following:

- Identify the topic areas to be tested from the subject syllabus.
- Outline subject matter content to be considered as the basis for the test.
- Identify learning outcomes to be measured by the test.
- Prepare a table of specifications.
- Ensure the verbs used in the formulation of questions do not require memorisation or recall answers only, but test for broad competencies as stated in the syllabus.

Structure and format of assessing for English Language:

At lower primary level, English language will be assessed through:

Sentence writing, grammar and vocabulary as well as correctness of pronunciation.

3.4. Reporting to parents

The wider range of learning in the new curriculum means that it is necessary to think again about how to share learners' progress with their parents. A single mark is not sufficient to convey the different expectations of learning which are in the learning objectives. The most helpful reporting is to share what students are doing well and where they need to improve.

4. RESOURCES

4.1. Materials needed for implementation

Teaching and learning of English language is presented in context in order for the learners to practice the language. The successful implementation of this curriculum requires appropriate teaching aids including text books, teachers' guides, audio visuals, maps, real materials for primary school learners. It is hoped that ICT also will help in this language learning process.

4.2. Human resource

Skills required for the teacher of this subject

- Engage students in variety of learning activities.
- Use multiple teaching and assessment methods
- Adjust instructions to the level of the learner.
- Creativity and innovation.
- Makes connections/links with other subjects.
- Should have a high level of knowledge of the content.
- Effective discipline skills.

- Good classroom management skills.
- Good communicator.
- Guide and counsellor.
- Passion for children teaching and learning.

5. LOWER PRIMARY SYLLABUS UNITS

5.1. Presentation of the structure of the English syllabus units

English language is taught from pre-primary onwards.

English language subject is structured in Topic Areas that are oral and written communication that apply to all education levels.

English language subject is taught in different contexts/situations that make learning units.

Units are characterised by the following features:

1. Each Unit shows the number of corresponding lessons in it.
2. Each Unit has a key unit competency that is based on an elaborate subject Overview and which is accomplished through all teaching and learning activities undertaken by both the teacher and the learners. Through these activities with adequate methodologies and techniques the key competences are hence achieved.
3. In each unit there are stated learning objectives including knowledge and understanding, skills and attitudes and values. These have been developed based on Bloom's taxonomy that is from lower order thinking level to higher order thinking level.
4. Each Unit has a detailed content referred to as Language use.
5. Each Unit is provided with learning activities that are expected to engage learners in an interactive learner centered participatory approach.

6. Finally, each Unit shows its links to other subjects, its assessment criteria and the materials (or resources) that are needed during the teaching-and-learning process.

5.2. English Syllabus for Primary one

5.2.1. Key competences at the end of P1

At the end of P1, the learner should be able to:

- Appreciate simple stories rhymes, and poems when read aloud
- Ask and answer simple questions including in short dialogues
- Recognize and read aloud some common and familiar English words and simple phrases.
- Copy simple common and familiar words, label drawings and begin to write some from memory.
- Use simple English vocabulary, language structures, phrases, sounds and conventions of prints already learned.

Notes on sounds and letters

The sounds of English

When writing English we use the 26 letters of the alphabet. Spoken English has more than 26 sounds though. There are roughly 44 different sounds. Therefore it's not very easy only to use the letters of the alphabet to show the pronunciation of English.

There is a system which uses a group of symbols. Some of these symbols look the same as letters and some are very different. You can use these symbols to write out the pronunciation of words and in many dictionaries for English learners you will see the pronunciation written out.

To show that what is written are sounds and not letters the transcriptions are written between slashes, / /. For example, the pronunciation of the word 'pet' is written: /pet/.

In this example the sound symbols look exactly the same as the letters. You can only tell we are talking about pronunciation rather than spelling because of the / /. However, some words look very different when you see their pronunciation. /tʃɜːtʃ/ is the word 'church'.

Sounds and letters

Vowel sounds are not the same as vowel letters. The word European begins with the vowel letter 'E' but the first sound is actually a consonant sound /j/. So, when speaking the word European will be preceded by the article 'a' and not 'an'.

Sounds and spelling

It's important to note that the spelling of a word is not always an accurate guide to how it is pronounced. Similarly the pronunciation of a word is not always helpful when working out how that word should be spelt.

There are 26 letters in the English alphabet but there are many more sounds in the English language. This means that the number of sounds in a word is not always the same as the number of letters. For example, the word 'CAT' has three letters and three sounds but the word 'CATCH' has five letters but still only three sounds.

If we write these words using sound symbols, we can see exactly how many sounds they have.

CAT is written /kæt/ CATCH is written /kætf/

In 'CATCH' the three letters TCH are one sound represented by one symbol /tʃ/

Stress and syllable

Stress could be roughly described as the relative strength of a syllable. We can study stress from the point of view of production and of perception. The production of stress is generally believed to depend on the speaker using more muscular energy than is used for unstressed syllables.

A syllable is a very important unit. We can divide a word into one or more syllables. For example mum has one syllable, mother has two syllables and grandmother has three syllables. A syllable is a group of one or more sounds. The essential part of a syllable is a vowel sound (V). Some syllables are just one vowel sound. For example, these words have one syllable, and the syllable is just one vowel sound: eye or I /aɪ/, owe /əʊ/, ear /ɪə/. A syllable can have consonant sounds (C) before the V: go, my, know, weigh, after the V: if, egg, ice, eight or before and after the V: ten, nose, mouth, knife
