FOREWORD

The Rwanda Education Board is honoured to avail Syllabuses which serve as official documents and guide to competence based teaching and learning in order to ensure consistency and coherence in the delivery of quality education across all levels of general education in Rwandan schools.

The Rwandan education philosophy is to ensure that young people at every level of education achieve their full potential in terms of relevant knowledge, skills and appropriate attitudes that prepare them to be well integrated in society and exploit employment opportunities.

In line with efforts to improve the quality of education, the government of Rwanda emphasizes the importance of aligning the syllabus, teaching and learning and assessment approaches in order to ensure that the system is producing the kind of citizens the country needs. Many factors influence what children are taught, how well they learn and the competencies they acquire, among them the relevance of the syllabus, the quality of teachers' pedagogical approaches, the assessment strategies and the instructional materials available. The ambition to develop knowledge based society and the growth of regional and global competition in the jobs market has necessitated the shift to a competence based syllabus. With the help of the teachers, whose role is central to the success of the syllabus, learners will gain appropriate skills and be able to apply what they have learned in real life situations. Hence they will make a difference not only to their own lives but also to the success of the nation.

I wish to sincerely extend my appreciation to the people who contributed towards the development of this document particularly REB and its staff who organised the whole process from its inception. Any comment or contribution would be welcome for the improvement of this syllabus. Special appreciation goes to the development partners who supported the exercise throughout.

Mr. GASANA I. Janvier,
Director General REB.

1. INTRODUCTION

1.1. Background to curriculum review

The rationale behind the History and Citizenship curriculum revision is that a shift needs to be made from the existing Knowledge Based Curriculum to a new Competency Based Curriculum. This means a shift from a curriculum that emphasised and developed Lower Order Thinking Skills (LOTS) comprised of knowledge and understanding, to a new curriculum that emphasises and develops more Higher Order Thinking Skills (HOTS) extending from application to creation through analysis and evaluation/synthesis.

The previous Rwandan history curriculum covered a range of historical events from different continents of the world. History is part of the Ordinary Level (OL) curriculum (for secondary school senior 1, 2 and 3 and is one of the subjects the Rwanda Education Board (REB) examines at the end of Ordinary Level.

Previously, REB had political education and history as separate subjects. However, these two subjects share a lot in common. There was a great need to incorporate Political Education into History. The merger of the two subjects for this new curriculum made a new subject titled “History and Citizenship”. This is one of the compulsory subjects that are taught in Ordinary Level. Learners are expected to understand it, raise questions and develop skills that are relevant.

The new History and Citizenship syllabus guides the interaction between the teacher and the learners in the learning processes and highlights the competencies a learner should acquire during and the end of each learning unit. Learner will have the opportunity to apply History & Citizenship in different contexts, and discover its important in daily life. Teachers help the learners appreciate the relevance and benefits for studying this subject. This new History & Citizenship syllabus is prepared for all learners in Ordinary Level and it has to be taught in three periods per week. This lower secondary level syllabus will enter into force in 2016.

1.2. Rationale of learning and teaching of History and Citizenship

The rationale of the review process for history and citizenship was to ensure that the new joint syllabus is responsive to the needs of the learner and shift from objective and knowledge based learning to competency based learning. Emphasis in the review has been more on building skills and competencies. The new History and Citizenship syllabus guides the interaction between the teacher and the learner in the learning process and highlights skills and values a learner should acquire by the end of each unit of learning.

1.2.1. History and Citizenship in society

History and Citizenship is an important discipline that has contributed to human activities, and political and social transformation throughout the whole world. This has enabled man to understand the past and present so as to anticipate the future. It is in line with the Political Education Sector, Economic Development and Poverty Reduction Strategy (II), Education Sector Strategic Plan 2013/14 – 2017/18, Education for All, Government Seven Year Program 2010-2017, Vision 2020 and the East African Community Protocol. This is one reason why it is included in the national and regional context.

An application of the knowledge of History and Citizenship is relevant to Political Science, Leadership, Management and Sociology. History and Citizenship should therefore play a central role in uniting people, the preservation of culture and conservation of social identities.

1.2.2. History and Citizenship and learners

History and Citizenship prepares learners to take combinations at a higher level that include history-economics-geography, (HEG), history-economics-literature (HEL) and history-geography-literature (HGL). These are intended to help young people to become good citizens. History and Citizenship is a subject that aims to prepare learners for the real world of work through career path ways such as law, administration, management, political science and sociology. The subject provides the skills and values that will help society in problem solving and empower it to manage both human and natural resources.

1.2.3. Competences

Competence is defined as the ability to use an appropriate combination of knowledge, skills, attitudes, values and behaviour to accomplish a particular task. That is the ability to apply learning with confidence in a range of situations. Basic competencies are addressed as broad subject competences and key competences embodied in the curriculum on a year on year basis and in clearly defined units of learning. The generic competencies, basic competences that must be emphasised and reflected in the learning process, are briefly described below and teachers will ensure that learners are exposed to tasks that help their learners acquire the skills.

Generic Competences

Critical and problem solving skills: The acquisition of such skills will help learners think imaginatively, innovatively and broadly to evaluate and find solutions to problems encountered in their surroundings.

Creativity and innovation: The acquisition of such skills will help learners to take initiative and use imagination beyond the knowledge provided in the classroom to generate new ideas and construct new concepts.

Research: This will help learners find answers to questions based on existing information and concepts and use it to explain phenomena from the gathered information.

Communication: Teachers, irrespective of being language teachers will ensure the proper use of the language of instruction by learners. Teachers should communicate clearly and confidently and convey ideas effectively both in spoken and written form by applying the appropriate language and relevant vocabulary.

Cooperation, inter personal management and life skills: This will help learners cooperate as a team in whatever task is assigned and to practice positive ethical moral values whilst respecting the rights, feelings and views of others. Learners will perform practical activities related to environmental conservation and protection. They will advocate for personal, family and community health, hygiene and nutrition and respond creatively to a variety of challenges encountered in life.

Lifelong learning: The acquisition of such skills will help learners update their knowledge and skills with minimum external support. Learners will be able to cope with the evolution of knowledge for personal fulfilment in areas that are relevant to their improvement and development.

Broad History and Citizenship competencies at the end of Ordinary Level

At end of the History and Citizenship course, the learner should be able to:

- Analyse and understand how societies evolved in order to know appropriately both near and distant environments so as to apply such techniques in developing his or her own society.
- Develop into a mature, informed, responsible and active participating citizen.
- Live in harmony and tolerance with others without any distinction of religion or other form of discrimination and exclusion that have caused problems in society such as the Tutsi genocide of 1994.
- Appreciate Rwandan values, universal values of peace, respecting human rights, gender equality, democracy, justice, solidarity and good governance.
- Promote moral, intellectual, social values through which learners will improve the competences and skills that are essential for the sustainable development of the country.
- Develop patriotic spirit, the sense of civic pride and awareness of what happens in the global community.
- Develop a sense of moral responsibility and commitment to social justice and gender equality.
- Encourage learners to assume responsibility for their own behaviour and to respect the rights of others.
- Promote the spirit of self reliance, dignity and cooperation among nations.

History and Citizenship and developing competences

The History and Citizenship syllabus is designed in such a way that teaching and learning activities will contribute to the development of generic competencies of critical thinking, research and problem solving, creativity and innovation, communication, and cooperation. It is through regular engagement with learning experiences which develop these competences that learners rise above the level of rote memorisation of knowledge and understanding as they become confident in applying their learning. The real life demands of the global economy are for people capable of performing in these practical ways rather than simply in test and examination situations. The learning activities in all syllabuses contribute to the development of these competences. In doing so, not only do learners develop the vital competences, they truly engage with what they have learned and so reinforce their knowledge and deepen their understanding. The overall focus of each unit is to develop a subject competence, something subject specific learners will be able to do as a result of studying the unit. The generic competences developed in the course of the unit all contribute to the overall subject competence. The generic competences should be regarded not as an additional burden on teachers and learners but as a critical element of the curriculum and as a key strategy for improving life chances and subject learning.

2. PEDAGOGICAL APPROACH

The implementation of the History and Citizenship syllabus will use learner centred methods of teaching. This approach will promote learning through doing where students are active participants in their own learning. It is a known fact that learners learn better when they are actively involved in the learning process through a high degree of participation, contribution and production. At the same time, each learner is an individual with his/her own needs, pace of learning, experiences and abilities. Teaching strategies must therefore be varied but flexible within well structured sequences of lessons: learner centred education does not mean that the teacher no longer has responsibility for seeing that learning takes place. Therefore the learning process should be dominated by the learner guided by the teacher.

A great emphasis should be put on practical and comparative studies. Learners must be fully involved in the collection of historical information, reading and interpreting maps, photographs and statistics in History. The teacher must act as a guide and not as a source of all information.

The History and Citizenship syllabus puts great importance on the active participation of learners in the teaching and learning process.

2.1. The role of teacher

The change to a competency-based curriculum is about transforming learning, ensuring that learning is deep, enjoyable and habit-forming. Teachers therefore need to shift from the traditional method of instruction but rather play the role of a facilitator in order to value learners' individual needs and expectations. The teacher must identify the needs of the learners, the nature of the learning to be done, and the means to shape learning experiences accordingly.

The teacher's roles are to organise the learners in and out of the classroom and engage them through participatory and interactive methods through the learning processes as individuals, in pairs, or in groups. This ensures that the learning is personalised, active and participative, and co-operative. The teacher will design and introduce the tasks for the class to perform or for immediate discussion. The role of the teacher will be to guide the learners in constructing their own learning and knowledge. Learners are taught how to use textbooks and other resource materials in different ways: to search for, and make use of information in writing their own notes.

The teacher must select and develop appropriate materials, such as teaching models and charts for the learners to use in their work. The teacher must devise remedial strategies in and outside the classroom to address the issue of low achievers and those with learning difficulties to ensure they keep pace with the rest in acquiring the required competencies.

The teacher must accompany learners to historical sites, museums and other field studies. While in the field, the teacher must guide learners to collect historical information.

2.2. The role of the learner

The activities of the learner are indicated against each learning unit and they all reflect the appropriate engagement of the learner in the learning process. The teaching and learning process will be tailored towards creating a learner friendly environment based on the learner's capabilities, needs, experience and interests. The learning activities will be organized in a way that encourages learners to construct the knowledge either individually or in groups in an active way. Learners will work on one competency at a time in the form of discrete units with specific learning outcomes broken down into knowledge, skills and attitude.

Learners are expected to carry out research, using the internet, reading a range of materials, using video, films and testimonies so as to get historical information. Thereafter, they should make presentations of the gathered information. Above all, learners are required to be obedient, honest and hardworking in order to make learning process productive.

2.3. Special needs education and inclusive approach

All Rwandans have the right to access education regardless of their different needs. The underpinnings of this provision would naturally hold that all citizens benefit from the same menu of educational programmes. This assumption is the focus of special needs education. The critical issue is that we have persons/learners who may be different in their ways of living and learning as opposed to the majority. The difference can either be emotional, physical, sensory and intellectually learning challenged traditionally known as learning difficulties.

These learners equally have the right to benefit from the free and compulsory basic education in mainstream schools. Therefore the schools' responsibility is to enrol them and set strategies to provide relevant education for them. The teacher therefore is required to consider each learner's needs during the teaching and learning process. Assessment strategies and conditions should also be standardised to the needs of these learners. Detailed proposals for each category of learners with special needs education needs are provided for in the guidance for teachers.

3. ASSESSMENT APPROACH

Assessment is the process of evaluating the teaching and learning processes through collecting and interpreting evidence of an individual learner's progress in learning and to make a judgment about his or her achievements measured against defined standards. Assessment is an integral part of the teaching and learning processes. In the new competence based curriculum assessment must also be competence based; whereby a learner is given a complex situation related to his/her everyday life and asked to try to overcome the situation by applying what he/she has learned. Assessment will be organized at the following levels: school-based assessment, District examinations, national assessment (LARS) and national examinations.

3.1. Types of assessments

3.1.1. Formative and continuous assessment (assessment for learning)

Continuous assessment involves formal and informal methods used by schools to check whether learning is taking place. When a teacher is planning his/her lesson, he/she should establish criteria for performance and behavior changes at the beginning of a unit. Then at the end of every unit, the teacher should ensure that all the learners have mastered the stated key unit competencies based on the criteria stated, before going to the next unit. The teacher will assess how well each learner masters both the subject and the generic competencies described in the syllabus and from this the teacher will gain a picture of the all round progress of the learner. The teacher will use one or a combination of the following: (a) observation (b) written (c) oral questioning.

3.1.2. Summative assessment (assessment of learning)

When assessment is used to record a judgment of a competence or performance of the learner, it serves a summative purpose. Summative assessment gives a picture of a learner's competence or progress at any specific moment. The main purpose of summative assessment is to evaluate whether learning objectives have been achieved and to use the results for the ranking or grading of learners, for deciding on progression, for selection into the next level of education, and for certification. This assessment should have an integrative aspect whereby a student must be able to show mastery of all competencies.

The process can be internal school based assessment or external assessment in the form of national examinations. School based summative assessment should take place once at the end of each term and once at the end of the year. School summative assessment average scores for each subject will be weighted and included in the final national examinations grade. School based assessment average grades will contribute a certain percentage as teachers gain more experience and confidence in assessment techniques and in the third year of the implementation of the new curriculum it will contribute 10% of the final grade, but will be progressively increased. Districts will be supported to continue their initiative to organize a common test per class for all the schools to evaluate the performance and the achievement level of learners in individual schools. External summative assessment will be done at the end of P6, S3 and S6.

3.2. Record keeping

This is gathering facts and evidence from assessment instruments and using them to judge the student's performance by assigning an indicator against the set criteria or standards. Whatever assessment procedures used shall generate data in the form of scores which will be carefully be recorded and stored in a portfolio because they will contribute to possible remedial actions and alternative instructional strategies, to feed back to the learner and his or her parents as well as to the final assessment of the students.

This portfolio will be a folder (or binder or even a digital collection) containing the student's work as well as the student's evaluation of the strengths and weaknesses of their work. Portfolios will reflect not only work produced (such as papers and assignments), but also a record of the activities undertaken over time as part of student learning. The portfolio output (formative assessment) will be considered. It will also serve as a certification tool for each learner that he/she has attended the whole learning process before he/she undergoes the summative assessment for the subject. The results from the portfolio will contribute 50% of summative assessment of each year.

3.3. Item writing in summative assessment

Before developing a question paper, a plan or specification of what is to be tested or examined must be prepared to show the units or topics to be tested, the number of questions relating to in each level and the mark allocation for each question. In a competency based curriculum, questions from higher levels of Bloom's taxonomy should be given more weight than those from the knowledge and comprehension level.

Before developing a question paper, the item writer must ensure that the test or examination questions are tailored towards competency based assessment by doing the following:

- Identify topic areas to be tested from the subject syllabus.
- Outline subject matter content to be considered as the basis for the test.
- Identify learning outcomes to be measured by the test.
- Prepare a table of specifications.
- Ensure that the terms used in the formulation of questions do not require memorization or recall answers only but test broad competencies as stated in the syllabus.

Structure and format of the examination:

There will be two (2) papers in the History & Citizenship subject.

Paper 1

- History of Rwanda.
- History of Africa: North Africa, East Africa, Central Africa, South Africa and West Africa.

Paper 2

- History of the World.
- Citizenship.

3.4. Reporting to parents

The wider range of learning in the new curriculum means that it is necessary to think again about how to share learners' progress with parents. A single mark is not sufficient to convey the different expectations of which are in the learning objectives. The most helpful reporting is to share what students are doing well and where they need to improve.

4. RESOURCES

4.1. Materials needed for implementation

Materials needed for implementation (Relevant textbooks about):

4.2. Human resource

To teach History and Citizenship syllabus well, teachers need to be qualified for secondary level, to be open-minded, to behave professionally and to act as a role model, as well as being properly trained for delivering the national curriculum.

For effective and efficient teaching of this History and Citizenship syllabus, a teacher should:

5. SYLLABUS UNITS

5.1. Presentation of the structure of the History syllabus units

The History and Citizenship subject is taught and learned in lower secondary education as a core subject, i.e. in S1, S2 and S3 respectively. At every grade, the syllabus is structured in Topic Areas, sub-topic Areas where applicable and then further broken down into Units.

The Units have the following elements:

- The Unit is aligned with the Number of Lessons.
- Each Unit has a Key Unit Competency whose achievement is pursued by all teaching and learning activities undertaken by both the teacher and the learners.
- Each Unit Key Competency is broken into three types of Learning Objectives as follows:
  - a. Type I: Learning Objectives relating to Knowledge and Understanding (Type I Learning Objectives are also known as Lower Order Thinking Skills or LOTS).
  - b. Type II and Type III: These Learning Objectives relate to acquisition of skills, Attitudes and Values (Type II and Type III Learning Objectives are also known as Higher Order Thinking Skills or HOTS). These Learning Objectives are actually considered to be the ones targeted by the present reviewed curriculum.
    - Each Unit has a content which indicates the scope of coverage of what a teacher should teach and a learner should in line with stated learning objectives.
    - Each Unit suggests Learning Activities that are expected to engage learners in an interactive learning process as much as possible (learner centered and participatory approach).
    - Finally, each Unit is linked to other subjects, its Assessment Criteria and the Materials (or Resources) that are expected to be used in the teaching and learning process.

The syllabus of History and Citizenship has 7 Topic Areas (Collecting and Analyzing Historical Sources History of Rwanda, History of Africa, World History Society, Individual and Family and Individual. As for units, they there are 16 Units in S1, 18 in S2, and 16 in S3.
